SHARKEY BEATS SCHMELING AND ANNEXES TITLE

72,000 Shocked as Judges Vote Former Sailor 2-1 Decision.

CAUTIOUS BOUT ENDS WITH JACK WOBBLING

American's Eye Closed by German's Attack; No Knockdowns.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH
(Sports Editor of The Post).

Ringside, Madison Square Garden Bowl, Long Island City, N. Y., June 21.—Through a narrow and bulbous slit that represented his left eye, Jack Sharkey peered over a reddened and bulging nose and listened through two scrambled ears to a decision that proclaimed him the new heavyweight champion of the world in the cool of this evening, when one of the greatest chapters of pugilistic larceny was written into the fistic record.

Across the ring young Max Schmeling—unmarked—the little bundle of fistic energy and the winner of the fight before the decision was rendered, heard himself stripped of the title in a decision that jarred him out of his calmness and confidence—and well it should have, for the championship surely had passed this evening without benefit of either rhyme or reason.

The surprising display of official judgment that stunned the pre-depression throng of 72,000 in this gigantic butter dish that is the Garden's new stadium was committed by Referee Gunboat Smith and Judge George Kelly, who voted for Sharkey. Judge Charles Mathison cast the dissenting and popular vote for Schmeling, and for the first time in heavyweight history the world's championship passed on a divided verdict.

Six Rounds to Sharkey.

There was a saving grace for Sharkey in the last-round offensive that the American unloosed in a desperate bid to even the score, but the cold figures of this observer favored Schmeling without qualification, with eight rounds credited to the German, six to Sharkey, and one even.

But in the eight rounds that Schmeling won were confined the elements of clear-cut superiority that should have earned him the decision tonight.

The hush that settled over the vast gathering was still settled as the fight into the tenth round, for both challenger and champion seemed to be fighting with great restraint, and it was a tame combat as heavyweight championship bouts go. In the last five rounds were packed the action that saved the bout from a travesty on the championship ring.

Except for a few flurries, the fighters left their ferocity in their training camps, for not a single knockdown marked the fifteen rounds. It was the young German, tanned to a mulberry brown, who almost provided the supreme thrill when he punched Sharkey groggy in the fourteenth round and crowded him across the ring as the American retreated with buckling knees that welcomed the bell.

Sharkey Shows Restraint.

There was none of the temperamental, tempestuous, petulant Sharkey in the ring tonight. It was a calm, restrained, slightly older and much fatter veteran of the prize ring who was being whittled down to a has been by the young German lad, who never took a backward step from the opening gong.

And it was a new Schmeling in that 24-foot battleground tonight. It was a smarter Schmeling, a shiftier, harder-hitting, jabbing Schmeling

Gangster Freeing Is Laid to Politics

"Public Enemy" in Chicago Held Important Cog in Election Machinery.

Chicago, June 21 (A.P.).—The link between politics and crime was blamed today by the "secret six" for the freeing of Danny McGeoghegan of bank robbery charges by a nolle prosse yesterday.

Alexander Jamie, head investigator for the Association of Commerce crime crusading body, charged that the gangster and "public enemy" was freed because "he is an important cog in the Southwest Side election machinery."

McGeoghegan, a burly figure of the West Side beer wars, former intimate of William (Klondike) O'Donnell and once a defendant in a murder case with Henry J. (Midget) Pernekes, notorious slayer and bank robber, was charged with having participated in the $60,000 robbery of the St Fe Bank of Clearing, December 6, 1930.

Miss Earhart Given Medal by President

National Geographic Society Award Is First to Go to Woman; Aviatrix Is Greeted by Capital Leaders.

A smiling, slim young woman with wayward locks, Amelia Earhart Putnam, received a supreme award for courage and achievement last night when President Hoover presented her with the first gold medal of the National Geographic Society ever awarded to a woman.

After receiving the praise of the President and the applause of the diplomats, statesmen, military leaders and civilians who filled Constitution Hall, she modestly discounted the importance of her Atlantic feat and said her award was "too great an honor."

"Her splendid courage and skill, modesty and good humor" had been noted by the President. "All these things combine to place her in spirit with the great pioneering women to whom every generation of Americans has looked up with admiration for their firmness of will, their strength of character and their cheerful spirit of comradeship in the work of the world," he said.

"The Nation is proud that an American woman should be the first woman in history to fly an airplane across the Atlantic Ocean. As their spokesman, I take pride in conferring this rarely bestowed medal of the National Geographic Society upon Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam."

The aviatrix, who was gowned in blue satin, accepted the medal with brief words of thanks and appreciation while the President, Mrs. Hoover, Chief Justice Hughes and the rest of the noted audience applauded.

Then she, recipient of the award which has been bestowed by Presidents to such men as Admirals Peary and Byrd, and Col. Lindbergh, briefly described her flight from Newfoundland to Ireland.

Her inspiration was, she said, that

SENATE CONFEREES UPHOLD FURLOUGHS

Final Action in Chamber May Be Delayed by Relief Legislation.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Compulsory Federal furloughs moved one step nearer enactment yesterday. Senate economy conferees concurred in the House vote for payless Government vacations on the five-day week principle.

Debate on the Wagner relief bill remained the principal barrier to early Senate acceptance. Senator Wesley L. Jones, Senate economy chairman, may decide this morning to delay his privileged report until relief legislation is out of the way.

A fight on the controversial provisions written into the House version of the furlough plan when the report is submitted, was promised late yesterday by Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr (Republican), Wisconsin. He championed the furlough when the economy bill was before the Senate.

Senator La Follette predicted there would be "extended debate" on House changes in the measure. Earlier, Senator Sam B. Bratton (Democrat), New Mexico, said he will oppose iron clad elimination of all annual leave, when the conference report reaches the floor.

Other provisions on which a fight is foreshadowed include alterations in "impounding clause" excluding the earmarking of money for the retention of workers and employment of substitutes; also the section calling for dismissal of wives whose husbands are in the service.

The slightest change in the conference report automatically will send the whole matter back to the House for concurrence. On the other hand, acceptance of a motion to concur will speed the economy bill, with the furlough amendment, to the White House for signature.

Until just before the Senate recessed yesterday, Senator Jones was hoping to lay the conference report with the House changes before the chamber for action. He had the report

Japanese Slay 1,000 Guerrillas in Manchuria

Tokyo (Wednesday), June 22 (A.P.).—A dispatch to the Rengo (Japanese) News Agency from Harbin, Manchuria, today said a Japanese brigade had annihilated nearly 1,000 guerrillas in a battle north of Hailun.

The Japanese casualties were 13 dead and 28 wounded, the dispatch said.

BONUS ARMY PLANS POLICY CONVENTION

Question of Third Party to Come Up Next Week at 3-Day Sessions.

A convention of the bonus expeditionary forces will be held next week in the hope of fusing the widely divergent opinions among the leaders of the army on questions of policy, chief among which is the question of a third party.

Where the convention is to be held has not been decided, but the executive committee of the forces decided to call more than 500 delegates, representing the various States, to decide a definite program for the forces. The forces are widely split on the question of the third party.

On one side is the legislative committee and on the other is the executive committee and Commander in Chief Walter W. Waters. The differences between the two factions, all of which revolve around the third party question, are expected to be settled during the three days' deliberations.

Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, and Waters yesterday discussed a plan for evacuating the men in passenger trains. While Waters was quoted as having favored a plan to keep a large number of men here after evacuating a great number, the executive committee soon afterward dispatched recruiting officers to bring in more veterans.

To expedite the departure of the men, Gen. Glassford asked the principal railway lines out of Washington to agree on a minimum rate to carry the men to their homes. The request was made upon the suggestion of Representative Baldridge (Republican), of Nebraska, who said reduced fares were possible under the interstate commerce act. Gen. Glassford

Conferees on Army Bill Break Up in Deadlock

(Associated Press.)

Congressional conferees on the Army appropriation bill broke up in a deadlock yesterday over the House provision cutting off 2,000 officers. Chairman Reed, of the Senate conferees, announced the "deadlock" and said the conference had broken up without fixing a time for another meeting.

The House cut $3,000,000 from the bill for the salaries of the 2,000 officers. The Senate restored the appropriation by an overwhelming vote.

YOUNG PLAN'S OVERTHROW IS AIM OF PARIS

Reversal of Attitude Is Bared to MacDonald at Lausanne.

REPARATIONS "REST" SOUGHT BY FRANCE

Stimson Denies Attack Made on Big Arms Quotas at Conference.

Lausanne, Switzerland, June 21 (A.P.).—A reversal of the French reparations policy, involving overthrow of the Young plan, was outlined by Premier Edouard Herriot to Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain today.

The new French proposals, differing widely from that nation's traditional attitude of standing on existing schedules, revealed that Premier Herriot was willing to bury the Young plan and press for:

1. Suspension of reparations for one, two or more years.

2. Continuance of deliveries in kind.

3. A suggestion that after the suspension period France would ask that a final global sum be spread among the United States and recipients of reparations.

Final Sum Discussed.

The amount of the final sum already was being discussed by the French and Belgian representatives to the international conference here on reparations, war debts and other economic problems.

The British delegation indicated that the new French policy with some degree of favor, intimating that the new French policy might bring a Franco-British accord. The plan had not yet been discussed with the Germans.

The French plan asks for the reconstruction of Germany and Central Europe, with a restoration of credits.

If reparations were canceled without the abolition of debts to the United States, France would be economically ruined, a French spokesman said.

Train Kills Woman In Auto in Virginia

Sister-in-Law Is Injured; Baby of Victim Only Bruised in Crash.

Warrenton, Va., June 21.—Westbound Chesapeake & Ohio Railway train No. 5 struck an automobile near Calverton, Va., this afternoon, killing Mrs. Norma Ennis, daughter-in-law of W. R. Ennis, of Calverton, and seriously injuring Miss Catherine Ennis, daughter of W. R. Ennis.

A baby of Mrs. Ennis was in the car, but according to physicians in attendance, was only bruised. Mrs. Ennis' death was instantaneous. Miss Catherine Ennis' condition is very grave. She is in Fauquier Hospital, in undetermined condition.

No. 5 is a fast westbound Louisville train making no stop at Calverton. From what can be learned, the car was driven on the track in the path of the fast moving train. The automobile was demolished.

Harry Fleisher Indicted At Detroit in Massacres

Detroit, June 21 (A.P.).—Harry Fleisher, Detroit gangster, who surrendered recently after a Nation-wide search had been conducted for him, today was indicted by the Wayne County grand jury on a murder charge growing out of Detroit's Collingwood Apartment massacres last September.

SENATE SPEEDS RELIEF DEBATE FOR QUICK VOTE

Democratic Leader Plans to Seek Limit Today; Hopes Increase.

REPUBLICAN CHIEFS TO FIGHT BOND ISSUE

Tydings Asks Beer Tax to Aid Jobless; Chicago Body Appeals for Funds.

(Associated Press.)

Pushing ahead with action on a flood of amendments to the $2,000,000,000 Democratic unemployment relief bill, Senate leaders last night looked forward to an early agreement limiting debate and paving the way for a vote.

After working away for more than seven hours, the Senate defeated an effort to hold it in session throughout the evening in the hope of concluding, but Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader, served notice he would seek a limitation of debate after 5 p. m. today.

The prospect added to the hopes of leaders that the matter may be disposed of possibly by this evening.

Administration Fight Looms.

The controversial section providing for a $500,000,000 bond issue for Federal public works is expected to be reached early in the day with administration senators planning to fight it.

An avalanche of amendments, including one to legalize beer, yesterday descended upon tht Democratic relief bill as sponsors redoubled efforts to drive it through the Senate.

A fresh appeal for relief legislation, meanwhile, came from Mayor Cermak, of Chicago, and representative Britten, of Illinois, with the latter telling a House committee that the Federal Government would be sending troops to that city within six months unless aid were forthcoming.

Burden Thrown on Senate.

The entire burden of relief was thrown onto the Senate when Speaker Garner said the House would not consider the $300,000,000 bill for loans to States until the other house has acted on his measure.

He said he understood the latter

Curtis Is Reported Disclaiming Hoax

Paper Says He Declared Confession Forced by Police.

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—The Daily News in a copyrighted story says John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk boat builder, repudiated today his confession of having perpetrated a hoax in the Lindbergh case. Through his attorney, he said he acquiesced to police demands for a confession "after eight days of the Spanish inquisition, to escape further punishment," the paper says.

It adds that Curtis was at a loss to know why the negotiations in which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh participated should have been branded as a hoax, "despite their authenticity," and that he believed the police had overlooked opportunities to capture the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby in clews he had given them.

Curtis is scheduled for trial June 27 on a charge of obstructing justice. The News has criticised the New Jersey State police frequently in special articles in recent weeks for their conduct of the search.

GARNER URGES REPEAL OF 18TH AMENDMENT; BRANDS LAW FAILURE

Democratic Party Heads Regard Submission Plank Certain.

FARLEY AND SHOUSE LAUD SPEAKER'S VIEW

Raskob Attacks Roosevelt Men for Insisting on Post for Walsh.

Chicago, June 21 (A.P.).—Democrats centered attention on the rapidly moving presidential contests tonight as party leaders accepted a prohibition repeal submission plank as certain.

Statements in behalf of several presidential candidates sprang up during the day while workers of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, emphatically reiterated claims of his first ballot nomination.

Alfred E. Smith and William G. McAdoo departed from opposite shores of the Nation to open their fight tomorrow in opposition to Roosevelt. It became increasingly clear the first showdown to be sought by the anti-Roosevelt faction will be the election of Jouett Shouse as permanent chairman of the convention.

Garner Statement Praised.

Chairman John J. Raskob, of the Democratic national committee, declared upon his arrival that the Roosevelt men had showed bad faith in advancing Senator Walsh, of Montana, for the post after the committee on arrangements had commended Shouse.

The announcement in Washington by Speaker Garner, who is supported by McAdoo for President, in favor of repeal of the eighteenth amendment was accepted here as virtually assuring a repeal plank by the Democratic convention with the only question whether it would be simply a submission plank, or one committing the party.

Both James A. Farley, spokesman for Gov. Roosevelt, and Shouse, the chairman of the Democratic executive committee, lauded the statement of Garner's.

"Courageous," Says Farley.

"I think it was a fine and courageous declaration," said Farley.

"It was a good, clean statement," Shouse said.

At about the time the speaker was declaring in Washington for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, Chairman Raskob, was telling newspapermen here that prohibition would be the dominant issue of the coming campaign for the Presidency.

Coincidentally, Harry F. Byrd, carrying Virginia's 24 votes for the presidential nomination, reached the convention scene saying "on prohibition let our party speak clearly and frankly."

Meanwhile Byrd and spokesmen for Gov. Ritchie, of Maryland, and Mel-

Lausanne Not Surprised By Stimson Debt Denial

London, June 21 (A.P.).—The Exchange Telegraph Agency's correspondent at Lausanne said today that reparations conference circles were not surprised by Secretary of State Stimson's denial that American diplomats were discussing war debts.

The correspondent pointed out that when Hugh Gibson, chief of the American delegation to the disarmament conference, was conferring with Premier Herriot, of France, his remarks were limited to the statement that while Europe was unwilling to reduce armaments she could not expect debt revision. Thus, the correspondent said, strictly speaking, debts were not being discussed.

GOVERNOR OF OHIO BACKS DRY REPEAL

Legalizing of "Good Beer" Is Urged by George White in Baring Views.

Columbus, Ohio, June 21 (A.P.).—Gov. George White, Ohio's "favorite son" for the Democratic nomination for President, formally declared tonight in favor of submission of an amendment to repeal Federal prohibition and adoption by Congress of amendments to the Volstead act legalizing the manufacture and sale of "beer of good quality."

The governor's announcement of his position was made in a letter to former United States Senator Atlee Pomerene, of Cleveland, who will nominate the Ohio executive for President at the Chicago convention next week. It was in answer to Senator Pomerene's request for a statement of his views on national prohibition.

While Gov. White's announcement of his position with respect to the eighteenth amendment is an affirmation in detail of a similar stand announced several months ago before a convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union here, his declaration in favor of modification of the Volstead law to permit manufacture and sale of "beer of good quality" was hailed with rejoicing by the Liberals.

The governor's plea for legalization of the manufacture and sale of beer was based upon the contention that it would "go a long way toward putting an end to racketeering and widespread lawlessness in our large cities."

Farm-Labor Candidacy Is Resigned by Webb

(Associated Press.)

Frank E. Webb last night announced his resignation as the Farmer-Labor party's candidate for President.

The party already has disavowed him in a statement by Roy M. Harrop, chairman of the party's executive committee, which said the committee was convinced that Webb was a "spy for Hoover" and intent on wrecking the party.

Suspect Identified In Kidnaping Case

Los Angeles, June 21 (A.P.).—Police said today a suspect held in Balboa, Canal Zone, had been identified through fingerprints as J. P. Bailey, indicted here for participation in the $50,000 kidnaping of E. L. Caress, Tia Juana betting commissioner.

BORAH SAYS BROWN WANTS OLD SALOON

Texan, in Telling Attitude on Dry Law, Recognizes Boom at Chicago.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, the "dry" South's offering for the Democratic nomination for President, yesterday came out flatly for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"When the prohibition amendment was proposed," Garner said, "I, as a member of Congress, voted against it.

"I have never believed it sound or workable, and it should be repealed."

Capitol Hill had hardly recovered from this shock when Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, accused a member of President Hoover's Cabinet—Postmaster General Walter Brown—of saying that he expected to see the saloon return and would rather have it than the present condition of affairs.

How Borah Quotes Brown.

Borah's charge was a sequel to his dramatic speech of Monday in which he announced that he would not support President Hoover on the Republican platform adopted in Chicago. Yesterday the Idaho orator, goaded into revealing a private conversation with Brown by Senator Simeon D. Fess (Republican), of Ohio, who insisted that Brown was not for repeal, quoted the Postmaster General as making this statement:

"I expect to see the return of the saloon and I would rather have it than the present condition of affairs."

Speaker Garner's statement, conceived during his ten-day illness, led politicians, Republicans as well as Democrats, to predict that the Democratic national convention, opening in Chicago next week, would adopt a plank calling for the submission of a straight repeal amendment to the voters.

Makes Garner "Wringing."

Such a plank was advocated at the Republican convention last week, but rejected in favor of a "straddle" plank put forth by the forces of President Hoover.

As a result of his statement of yesterday, Speaker Garner stands out as a "wringing wet." He does not merely say that he favors letting the people vote on repeal of the eighteenth amendment; he comes right out and says it "should be repealed."

Alfred E. Smith, whose wetness and religion caused Texas to bolt to Herbert Hoover in 1928, never has gone farther than Garner went, yesterday. Neither has Franklin D. Roosevelt nor Albert C. Ritchie, nor any of the other Democratic candidates for President. The fact is they couldn't go any farther; they couldn't, that is, unless they came out for return of the saloon.

Sheppard Still Backs Him.

For Garner's fellow-Texan, Senator Morris Sheppard, the Speaker's pronouncement must have been a terrific blow. Sheppard, a quiet little man with a passionate hatred of liquor,

Former Klan Official Held In Chicago for Sanity Test

Edward Y. Clarke, Recent Promoter of New Organization to Cure National Ills, Alleged to Be Victim of Paranoia Dementia.

Chicago, June 21 (A.P.).—Edward Young Clarke, once prominent in the Ku-Klux Klan and recently promoter of a new fraternal organization he called Eskaye, was committed to the Cook County Psychopathic Hospital today for observation.

The court set June 30 for hearing to determine his sanity.

Clarke appeared voluntarily with several friends, including Leonard Grossman, attorney for Eskaye. Grossman informed the court they desired Clarke be sent to the hospital for a test of his sanity.

The court was reluctant to grant the request, although Clarke raised no objection. The court told Grossman to bring in a statement from a psychiatrist and he returned later in the day with one signed by Dr. H. S. Hulbert, which said Clarke was suffering from paranoia dementia.

Clarke appeared in Chicago several months ago and announced he was launching Eskaye, a fraternal organization dedicated to "the cure of all national ills." The Chicago Better Business Bureau and the State's attorney's office both instituted investigations but neither has so far taken public action. No one was available at the headquarters of the organization today and the telephone had been disconnected.

2 Police Using Official Cars Are Arrested by Glassford

Two Eleventh Precinct policemen found themselves under arrest last night on traffic charges. They will not fight the case. Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintenient of police, appears as complainant.

Detective Sheldon R. McKee and Private Milton M. Welch are the losers of $2 each for parking official police cars they were using in a prohibited zone just outside the Eleventh Precinct Station.

McKee had come to the station to round up some men to help him make a raid on two colored men who had allegedly been selling liquor to the bonus marchers. He parked the squad car he was assigned to on Chicago street, but chose a spot marked off by a white line within 25 feet of a stop sign at Nichols avenue southeast.

A few moments later Welch drove up in an Eleventh Precinct radio car. He had just been called in by the station clerk to do some extra work inside the station. A short time later Gen. Glassford arrived on his motorcycle from the bonus camps in Anacostia. He took one look at the official cars and walked inside the station. The arrests followed. Both defendants said they would forfeit collateral.

The new white lines in the restricted parking area had just been placed there last night, and the police were the first victims.

Arm Crushed by Elevator, Boy Banters Rescue Squad

High School Student, Pinioned by Car as He Delivers Newspapers, Keeps Nerve; Extricated After 31 Minutes and Taken to Hospital.

Dangling by his crushed left arm from the floor of an automatic elevator which had trapped him late yesterday afternoon, James Perley, 17-year-old newsboy, kept up a running fire of repartee with members of the fire rescue squad as they labored 31 minutes to free him. He was taken to Sibley Hospital, where it was said last night his arm probably would be saved.

Young Perley, who lives at 1016 Douglas street northeast, had gone to the Dahlgren Court Apartments, at 2504 Tenth street northeast, to serve his newspaper route.

He started to enter the elevator on the third floor. The outer door slammed behind him and before he could open the grilled safety door on the inside of the elevator, some one on the [illegible]th floor pushed the button. The car started up, snagging the boy's arm in the door and jerking him along with it.

His feet dangled from the floor of the car and he managed to twist his body to safety, but his left arm was caught between the elevator and the fourth floor landing. He was pinned there, his feet dangling in empty space and his body held only by his injured left arm.

The boy managed to kick out the

"Rumpers'" Candidate for Governor Claims Repudiation of New Yorker.

St. Paul, Minn., June 21 (A.P.).—New forces won control of the Democratic party in Minnesota's Statewide primaries Monday, and tonight the nominal head of the movement hailed the returns as "repudiation" of the State party's prior indorsement of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidential nomination.

John E. Regan, who won the nomination for governor and led a faction, the "Rumpers," to a surprise victory, declared the group will demand seats for an uninstructed delegation favorable to Alfred E. Smith at the Chicago convention. Regan charged the "Regulars" controlled the March State convention by "fraud" and by packing the voting delegate ranks with Roosevelt supporters. He was a leader of a bolt at the meeting, helped organize a "rump" convention which selected an uninstructed delegation and then entered primary candidates, most of whom were swept to victory yesterday in the party's first upheaval in years.

Candidates advocating resubmission of the prohibition question snapped up congressional nominations in three parties in the primary with strong prospects of a clean sweep in final returns. Each party nominated nine. Only one outspoken dry remained in a challenging position among the Republicans. Three of the probable Republican winners advocated repeal of the eighteenth amendment, with five apparent winners being for resubmission. The Democrats in the lead favor resubmission with several also favoring repeal.

Mrs. Ruth Haynes Carpenter, heralded by the "Rumpers" as their "Joan of Arc," won the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Regan will oppose Gov. Floyd B. Olson, Farmer-Laborite, and Earle E. Brown, Republican.

Democrats Name McNutt For Indiana's Governor

Indianapolis, June 21 (A.P.).—In a State convention dominated by young members of the party, Paul V. McNutt, former national commander of the American Legion, wa nominated today by acclamation as the Democratic candidate for Governor of Indiana.

Fred Van Nuys, Indianapolis lawyer and a wet, was chosen as the nominee for United States senator. He will oppose Senator James E. Watson, administration floor leader, at the November election.

McNutt, dean of the law school of Indiana University, will have a legionnaire as his opponent in the gubernatorial race. The Republicans a fortnight ago selected Raymond S. Springer, of Connersville, as their candidate. He was the first State commander of the legion.

Maine Governorship Fight Involves Liquor Question

Portland, Me., June 21 (A.P.).—A wet Democratic nominee for governor and a Republican generally considered to be favorable to his party's traditional support of prohibition in Maine will face each other in next September's State election as a result of the vote in yesterday's primaries.

Burleigh Martin, of Augusta, received the Republican gubernatorial nomination in a battle among five candidates, none of whom had dissented from the "bone dry" plank adopted by the party's State convention.

Louis J. Brann, of Lewiston, the Democratic choice, was the single gubernatorial candidate in either party to commit himself specifically on the prohibition question. He stands for submission of a repeal amendments.

Thatcher Loses G.O.P. Support in Kentucky

Louisville, Ky., June 21 (A.P.).—The Third District Republican organization today was committed to support the candidacy of Frank B. Russell, Louisville business man, for representative. The announcement was made by Mayor William B. Harrison of Louisville last night, who said the organization had decided not to support Representative Maurice H. Thatcher for reelection.

Although the statement did not give any reason for the abandonment of Thatcher, it was generally known in political circles here that Thatcher's vote at the present session of Congress on matters involving the prohibition question was unsatisfactory to leaders here.

1,000 Cheer Smith, Off for Chicago.

REPEAL URGED BY GARNER

is known as the "father of prohibition." It was he who introduced the eighteenth amendment in the Senate.

What was he do in the face of Garner's bold indictment of his law?

He issued this brief statement:

"I do not agree with Speaker Garner on repeal, but this does not affect my support of him for President. I regard him as sound on all other vital questions."

Until yesterday, Speaker Garner had never mentioned his presidential boom. When people pressed him for his stand on prohibition, he referred them to the Congressional Record. This showed that while he had voted against the eighteenth amendment he had voted in favor of all enforcement laws. Consequently the word went out that Garner's prohibition stand was a "mystery."

Now Garner not noly has cleared up his position on prohibition, but he has thrown his sombrero squarely into the presidential ring.

"I appreciate the support of my friends," he said, "and am willing to serve my country and my party to the limit of my capacity."

The Texan then denounced the Republican tariff walls, reiterated his plea for a public works program to help out the unemployed, demanded collection of Europe's debts to this country on the basis of Europe's ability to pay, and assailed socialism and communism.

Constitutes Platform.

Taken as a whole, his statement represents the platform on which he stands in his quest for the highest honor in his party—the presidential nomination.

Today, on the basis of pledged delegates, Garner is third in the running. Roosevelt is first, with close to 600 delegates pledged, instructed and claimed. Smith is next, with 100 or so.

Garner has 96—the 44 of his home State of Texas, and the 46 of California.

Six months ago, Garner looked like a formidable candidate. As the first Speaker the Democrats had had in thirteen years, he was the outstanding man in his party. It was generally agreed that the manner in which he handled the Democratic-controlled House would have much to do with the fate of the Democratic party in the 1932 election. Then, as the presidential boom for him got under way, it also was agreed that the manner in which he handled the House would have an important bearing on his own political fate.

Lost Control of House.

In March, when the sales tax fight broke in the House, the Democrats got out of control, broke away from Garner, and the newspaper headlines of the next few days announced that the Garner presidential boom had "collapsed."

What is to happen to Garner's candidacy at Chicago remains to be seen, but this much is certain: Garner is going to be a power in the convention. It is even conceivable that he may make the decision as to whether or not the nomination is to go to Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The 96 Texas and California delegates pledged to Garner are an important element in the "stop Roosevelt" bloc. If Garner should let them go and if they should go to Roosevelt, the New Yorker's nomination would be virtually assured. If, on the other hand, Garner should definitely array himself with Al Smith and the others who are seeking to keep a third of the delegates from Roosevelt, the latter would have mighty hard sledding.

Borah's New Outburst.

Senator Borah's new outburst against the Republican prohibition plank yesterday was the result of his statement of Monday that both Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills and Postmaster General Brown, both of whom had a hand in writing the Chicago plank, were advocates of repeal.

Senator Fess read a statement from Postmaster General Brown and also one from E. A. Van Valkenburg, of Philadelphia, describing the conversation they had with Senator Borah several weeks ago relative to a prohibition plank. Mr. Van Valkenburg's statement, as read by Senator Fess, said:

"Mr. Brown and myself were opposed to naked repeal of the eighteenth amendment and favored modification."

Replying to Senator Fess, Mr. Borah said:

"It all turns upon what one considers repeal. I know that since the adoption of the platform at Chicago there has come to be a fine-spun theory about repeal. I understand repeal to mean when you have destroyed the fundamental principle in the eighteenth amendment, to wit, the prohibition against the sale of intoxicating liquors. When a man says to me that he is in favor of permitting the States to have the right to sell, which Mr. Brown argued every moment we sat there——"

Senator Borah's Version of Talk.

"The Postmaster General," interrupted Senator Fess, "was arguing simply for the right to submit the matter to the people and let them determine whether they wanted this or not."

Senator Borah then declared that he would put his own interpretation of his conversation with Mr. Brown into the record, and let the public decide.

"I said in that conversation," Borah continued, "that I had been for months undertaking to devise a plan by which you could protect the States which wanted to be dry, and, secondly, by which you could prevent the return of the American saloon. That is precisely what I stated to Mr. Brown.

"I said that I had made progress with reference to the question of protecting the States which wanted to be dry, but that I had reached the conclusion that unless you legalized the sale of intoxicating liquors in the United States, there was no possible way to prevent the return of the American saloon. That is practically word for word what I said.

"Would Rather Have Saloon."

"Mr. Brown replied, 'I think you are right. Once we legalize the sale of intoxicating liquors, I do not see how you are going to control the method of selling them.'

"He said, 'I expect to see the return of the saloon and I would rather have it than the present state of affairs.'

"Now I ask whether or not Mr. Brown is in favor of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment? There could not be any sale unless it was repealed. We could not have the saloon unless we did repeal the eighteenth amendment. I drew the conclusion, therefore, unmistakably that he is in favor of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and setting up what he has in a crude way set up in the platform at Chicago.

"As I said a moment ago, it turns on what is considered a repeal. Let me say, too, that I do not find any fault with what Mr. Van Valkenburg said. Substantially it is what took place, but when Mr. Van Valkenburg came to my office the next morning he said, 'Senator, Mr. Brown's scheme means the return of the American saloon and I can not go along with that proposition.'

Quotes Mills on Dry Law.

"So, Mr. President, there was no question about the view of Mr. Brown as I understood it. There was no question as to the conclusion which we had all reached, that if repeal took place or sale was permitted in all probability the saloon would come back. It is not very material about what took place. It is perhaps unfortunate even that I said that I had had a conversation with Mr. Brown. It is the only one I ever had. Perhaps I did not understand his language, but I came away from there, and Mr. Van Valkenburg came away from there, with the idea that the sale was to be permitted throughout the United States and that that would inevitably return the saloon to American life."

Borah quoted Secretary Mills as having said on one occasion that "the eighteenth amendment is the object of scorn and contempt," and that it was "a festering sore on the body politic."

"I haven't any doubt in my own mind what the position of Mr. Mills is," Borah said.

Later he made public his own prohibition plank, which is printed elsewhere in The Post.

Text of Garner 'Platform' That Recognizes His Boom

Speaker John N. Garner yesterday issued the following statement:

Many of my friends, not only those residing in my own district and State, but throughout the country, have asked me repeatedly to express myself on various public questions. I have maintained the position I assumed when I was elected Speaker of the House of Representatives that I would not indulge in the discussion of controversial issues not immediately under consideration by the House. Moreover, during the 30 years I have been a member of Congress, practically every principle involved in the problems of the Nation today have been before the House, and my views thereon are a matter of record.

This country has erected tariff barriers that are practically excluding the products of foreign nations. This makes it economically impossible for these nations to buy from us the products of our farms and our factories, thereby aggravating our industrial depression.

All relief measures so far have been purely temporary and do not go to the root of the trouble. No sound thinking citizen can favor the dole; neither can the Government sit idly by and see its people starve when they are willing to work. Enough work must be provided to keep the people from starving, and we shall be fortunate indeed if this irreducible cost minimum does not greatly exceed the amount provided in the relief measure which I sponsored.

Before genuine and permanent relief can be accomplished, the finances of the basic industries of this Nation must be placed on a saner basis, thereby removing the specter of receiverships and foreclosures and restoring their buying power and ability to employ labor.

International trade must be reestablished by the restoration of international confidence and credits. Honesty among nations is as essential a virtue as honesty among individuals. An individual who borrows and makes no honest effort to pay is dishonest; the same applies to a nation. If foreign debts should be canceled the credit of the nations involved would be destroyed and they can not borrow again. The Government of the United States owes it to its citizens to collect from the debtor nations to the extent of their ability to pay, and there should be no flimflam accepted as to that ability to pay.

When the prohibition amendment was proposed, I, as a member of Congress, voted against it. I have never believed it sound or workable, and it should be repealed.

The cost of government—city, county, State and national—can, and should be reduced not less than one-third.

The principal obligation of a government, established in accordance with the American principles and traditions, is to protect all of its people in the free enjoyment of the fruits of their labor and the pursuit of happiness. The constantly increasing tendency toward Socialism and Communism is the gravest possible menace. The Government should use every means within its power to prevent their further spread, and they should receive no encouragement from any American citizen, high or low.

The Democrats of California and of my native State, Texas, are sending delegations to the national convention in Chicago instructed to vote for my nomination for the Presidency. This has been done without my solicitation. I appreciate the support of my friends and am willing to serve my country and my party to the limit of my capacity.

Garner Stand Cowardly, Texas Dry Chief Holds

Austin, Tex., June 21 (A.P.).—Mrs. Claude de Van Watts, president of the Texas Woman's Christian Temperance Union, said today she was not surprised at Speaker Garner's declaration for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"He was too cowardly to come out some months ago," she said. "The Texas W. C. T. U. and all the dry women of the South, I am sure, will work consistently against the nomination for the Presidency, and against his election should he be the party nominee."

Ohio Governor Predicts 15 Ballots at Chicago

Columbus, Ohio, June 21 (A.P.).—At least fifteen ballots will be required by the Democratic national convention in Chicago next week to nominate a presidential candidate, Gov. George White of Ohio, "native-son" candidate of the Buckeye State, predicted today.

The governor will not go to Chicago to attend the convention, he said. Ohio's delegation of 86, having 52 votes, is pledged to Gov. White for the presidential nomination.

McAdoo Says Garner Would Uphold Party

Salt Lake City, June 21 (A.P.).—The opinion that Speaker John N. Garner, if nominated as the Democratic presidential candidate, will "accept the decision of the party on prohibition and all other questions" was expressed here today by William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury in the Wilson administration.

McAdoo, strongest supporter of the Garner candidacy, was informed here that the Texan had come out for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Text of Senator Borah's Own Prohibition Plank

(United Press.)

Senator William E. Borah's own prohibition plank, which he urged on Republican leaders before the Chicago convention last week, was made public yesterday. It said:

The Republican party is a party of obedience to law and observance of the Constitution. Its first great achievement was the preservation of constitutional government. It holds with George Washington that:

"The Constitution which at any time exists, until changed by the explicit and authentic act of the whole people, is sacredly obligatory upon all."

The eighteenth amendment has been written into the Constitution by the will of the people in the way the Constitution prescribes. It can be taken out of the Constitution by similar procedure. It can be taken out in no other way.

Whenever a majority of the people in two-thirds of the congressional districts and in two-thirds of the States tire of prohibition they can easily elect enough senators and representatives pledged to propose to the States an amendment for repeal, and when three-fourths of the States ratify that amendment it will become effective.

That "referendum" is available every two years, and it is the only referendum the Constitution contemplates or provides for. Until the people choose to exercise it, the eighteenth amendment will remain in the Constitution, and as long as it remains in the Constitution the Republican party pledges itself and its nominees to its observance and enforcement.

Capitol Hill Colleagues Applaud Garner's Stand

(United Press.)

Members of Congress agreed last night that the declaration of Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, would insure the adoption of a brief, specific prohibition plank in the Democratic campaign platform, with a leaning toward the wet side.

No one doubted its influence on the platform, but there was some doubt that it would enhance Garner's chance for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Supporters of Franklin D. Roosevelt said they still believed Roosevelt would be nominated on the first or second ballot. There was some talk of the possibility of offering a Roosevelt-Garner ticket.

Some comment on the Democratic Speaker's declaration for repeal of the eighteenth amendment follows:

Senator Royal Copeland (Democrat), New York.—Good. I'm glad to hear it. It is significant that a man in his position should express himself like that.

Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), New York.—It shows the drift. I was for repeal when it was unpopular.

Senator Key Pittman (Democrat), Nevada—It is evident that the statement will find a popular majority in approval at the convention.

Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi.—It certainly is news.

Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin.—They turn wet awfully quick, don't they?"

Senator Simeon D. Fess (Republican), Ohio.—There is no doubt that the Democratic convention will swing to repeal. Mr. Garner may be anticipating the popular sentiment.

Representative John McDuffie, Alabama, Democratic Whip.—I believe there is sentiment enough in the country to justify submission of the straight question of repeal. The statement is honest and straightforward.

Representative Thomas H. Cullen (Democrat), New York, leader of the Tammany delegation.—It is the kind of statement the people want from every man in public life. It's a great statement—no evasion in it.

Representative Edgar Howard (Democrat), Nebraska, one time secretary to William Jennings Bryan.—It means a repeal plank in the platform.

Representative Loring Black (Democrat), New York.—Borah kicked the Republican platform into splinters and now with Garner's help we'll have a good one.

Representative Isaac Bacharach (Republican), New Jersey.—He has courage.

Will Not Go to Chicago, Roosevelt Reiterates

Albany, N. Y., June 21 (A.P.).—Recurrence of reports that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt would appear at the Chicago Democratic national convention to press his fight for the presidential nomination met with a reiterated denial tonight by the executive.

STOCK MARKET QUIZ WILL BE CONTINUED

Extension of Inquiry to March 4 Authorized by Senate.

(Associated Press.)

Tales of alleged tax evasions mounting into the millions, the Senate yesterday authorized its banking committee to continue its investigation of the stock market until the expiration of the present Congress on March 4.

Not only did the Senate give a new lease of life to the investigation which otherwise would have terminated on adjournment for the summer, but it voted the committee the full $50,000 expense money it requested, despite the recommendation of the committee on audit and control that the amount be cut in half.

The action means that the committee's investigators will continue their work in New York and elsewhere with the prospect that numerous cases will be added to the bulky record of testimony when Congress reconvenes in December.

William Fox Accused.

Senator Johnson (Republican), California, said it appeared the cost of continuing the investigation would be more than repaid in recovered taxes and in benefit to the country, while Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana, said that if those responsible for the market crash can be identified they should be prosecuted.

"We find," said Chairman Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota, of the banking committee, "that William Fox, of the Fox Theaters, speculated on his own account in the stock of his own firm. When the market shrank and he lost some $3,000,000 or $4,000,000, he had that loss taken over by his company, but in making up his tax return he charged it to himself and deducted that loss from his own income.

"So there is no doubt that probably $500,000 of taxes can easily be recovered on the record in that case, and no defense is possible against it, if the man is financially responsible, and he is reputed to be worth between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 yet.

Canada Trick Exposed.

"We discovered in another case that it is a regular practice to evade taxes by setting up corporations in Canada so that profits can be entered on the books up there, although the business is conducted here. The worst case we have found so far was where a Cleveland firm sent their securities to Canada. * * * the tax evasion in that case amounted to about $2,000,000. * * * I have not any doubt that recovery in this case can be made."

"Mr. Whitney," said Norbeck, referring to President Richard Whitney, of the New York Stock Exchange, "admitted that 25,000,000 people lost their money in the market crash, and that their losses amounted to $50,000,000,000, against which Teapot Dome looks like a very small affair."

SENATE SPEEDS RELIEF DEBATE IN HOPE OF GETTING QUICK VOTE

measure would be offered as an amendment to the measure now pending in the Senate so that all the relief plans could go to conference together.

Mr. Cermak, accompanied by Chicago officials and the Illinois congressional delegation, appeared before the House banking committee in behalf of an amendment to the $300,000,000 bill to permit loans to municipalities for meeting their expenses.

Cermak Fears Trouble.

Unless Federal aid were extended, Mr. Cermak said, "I am unable to say what will happen in Chicago after August 1."

"Unless you gentlemen provide for relief of the city of Chicago," Mr. Britten said, "within the next six months you will be sending Federal troops to Chicago."

Mr. Cermak told of raising $10,000,000 from the citizens of Chicago to support relief stations and supplementing this fund by the sale of $12,000,000 in bonds.

"These funds ran out June 1," he said.

"Then more than $5,000,000 of additional bonds were sold. This is sufficient to last until August 1. I don't know what we'll do then."

The proposal to legalize and tax 2.75 per cent beer for unemployment relief as a substitute for the Democratic relief bill was offered by Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland.

Among amendments adopted by the Senate was one by Senators Steiwer (Republican), Oregon, and Carey (Republican), Wyoming, authorizing the Reconstruction Corporation to create in any of the land bank districts regional agricultural credit corporations with at least $3,000,000 paid-up capital.

The capital would be provided from the $200,000,000 allocated to agriculture in the original reconstruction act.

Another amendment to give preference to former service men with dependents in the employment of labor on projects financed by the bill also was adopted.

Must Vote on Amendments.

The controversial amendments by Senator LaFollette (Republican), Wisconsin, to increase the bond issue for public construction from $500,000,000 to $5,500,000,000 and by administration forces to eliminate the bond issue entirely must be voted upon before the bill goes to the House.

Senator Trammel (Democrat), Florida, revived the bonus issue with an amendment he introduced to the relief bill. It provides for paying 50 per cent of the face value of certificates to veterans who now can borrow half on them.

A veteran could ask for cash payment at any time prior to July 1, 1934. Treasury notes, as provided in the recently defeated $2,400,000,000 cash bonus bill, would be issued to pay the certificates. A reduction to 3 per cent in the interest rate on loans also is sought.

2 DEAD, MANY HURT IN GERMAN FIGHTING

Showdown Nears on Display of Fascist Uniforms; Hundreds Arrested.

Berlin, June 21 (A.P.).—The brown shirts of Adolf Hitler's followers provoked disorders throughout the Reich today that took two lives and injured many on the eve of an apparently inevitable showdown between the federal and state governments over display of the Fascist uniforms.

Baron Wilhelm von Gayl, minister of interior, will confer tomorrow with the interior ministers of the states over the question of whether the uniformed National Socialists shall be permitted to walk the streets of Germany.

One Hitlerite was shot dead in Berlin and a young anti-Fascist was stabbed to death in Essen, making the week's toll six in political disorders. Several were gravely injured today and hundreds were arrested in skirmishes involving National Socialists, Communists and police.

In Berlin Communists used bludgeons, knives and rocks, smashing street lights in various quarters and attacking the police under cover of darkness.

Policeman Is Stabbed.

One Brunswick policeman was seriously stabbed during the breaking up of a Communist meeting. In Munich several Nazis, who were attempting to make a demonstration, were injured in a clash with police.

In serious disturbances at Cologne, Nazis hammered police with iron rods. At Wandsbek, near Hamburg, police fired on fighting Nazis and Communists, seriously injuring two. In Oppeln one Nazi was reported dying as a result of a Communist attack.

The appearance of the National Socialist uniforms at Frankfort-on-Main University resulted in student fights, with a suspension of classes.

The issue between the federal and state governments was brought to a head today when the irate Hitler and three of his chief lieutenants called on the interior minister and demanded complete freedom for his uniformed National Socialist groups.

Peace Declared Endangered.

Local authorities in several states have declared that civic peace is endangered by the parading Nazi storm troopers.

It is understood Baron von Cayl considers the state governments to be justified in their contention that they have a right to restrict extreme political groups if they think peace is endangered.

Hurt von Schleicher, minister of defense, is reported to have urged the cabinet to take extreme measures if necessary to compel the states to permit the Nazis to parade and wear their uniforms.

The political situation will be further agitated tomorrow by elections in the Prussion Diet. Hans Kerri, selected temporary president of the Diet a month ago, must be approved again before the post is his permanently and the Leigslature will attempt to name a premier. The election of Kerri seemed assured tonight.

The Nazi and Centrast factions in the Diet agreed late tonight to postpone selection of the premier until after the Reichstag elections.

The two parties together constitute a majority. This action means that the drawn cabinet will remain in charge of the state government at least until August.

REPEAL SUBMISSION PLANK HELD CERTAIN AT CONVENTION

vin Traylor, of Chicago, focused attention on the economic issue. Byrd expressed a willingness for the United States "to enter, without commitment, any general world conference to consider disarmament coincident with a just revision of war debts and reparations."

Frank Scofield, of Texas, issued a statement saying that Traylor was the man of the hour because "he has a first-hand knowledge of the problems of the farmer and of the business man."

Ritchie's Economic Plank.

Howard Bruce, of Maryland, made public a platform plank advocated by Gov. Ritchie calling for shorter working hours and a stagger system of employment for those now out of work to relieve unemployment.

The day also saw the arrival of Senator Huey Long, of Louisiana, who declared himself "100 per cent for Roosevelt" and predicted the New Yorker's nomination on the first ballot. Long's delegation is facing a contest by another Louisiana group of delegates, but he dismissed that with a wave of the hand.

The prohibition statement by Garner today was in line with many such that have emanated from party leaders in Washington and Chicago in the last day or so. Farley said today that those "who voted for the minority repeal plank in the Republican convention will have an opportunity to show if they were on the level."

Most of the leaders now in Chicago seem to agree that the Democratic plank will be brief and that it will call for submission to the people of a prohibition repeal resolution.

Two-Thirds Rule Dispute.

About the Congress Hotel, where most of their conferences were held, there was a hum of activity. Elaborate suites were set aside for presidential candidates whose pictures, bigger than life, looked out from huge posters. The "G. O. P." that had stood between "Welcome" signs a week ago was replaced by a mule rampant.

The buzz that ran through the lobbies centered largely upon three questions: Who will be the presidential nominee? What will the Democrats do about prohibition and will there be a concerted attempt to abolish the two-thirds rule?

There was keen dispute over the first, some slight harmony on the second, and no unanimity of opinion on the third.

Raskob called for retention of the two-thirds rule so long as States were bound by the unit rule, but Farley, while withholding a statement on whether Roosevelt would attempt to abolish it, observed that it seemed significant that those opposed to Roosevelt were insisting upon its retention.

SENORA CALLES PUT TO BED IN HOSPITAL

Wife of Former President of Mexico to Undergo Brain Tumor Operation.

Boston, June 21 (A.P.).—Senora Leonor Calles, wife of former President Plutarco Elias Calles of Mexico, arrived in Boston by train at 7:38 Eastern standard time tonight to undergo an operation at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital for removal of a brain tumor. Dr. Harvey Cushing, noted brain surgeon, was to perform the operation.

The train was 13 minutes late, the engineer having pulled in and out of stations and negotiated curves slowly in order not to cause discomfort to the ill woman.

The car in which she rode was on the rear of the train and was pulled in close to the track entrance, where an ambulance waited to take the patient to the hospital.

The ambulance crept to the hospital at a snail-like pace. Dr. Cushing was awaiting the arrival of the sick woman and shortly after she had been admitted issued the following bulletin:

"The wife of Gen. Calles was brought to Brigham Hospital supposed to be critically ill. The hospital has no information to give out concerning her."

Although no other announcement was made or no information was given as to the time of the operation, it was believed about the hospital that Dr. Cushing would operate as soon as possible.

Shortly afterward, however, Dr. Cushing left the hospital. He said all further information on the senora's condition would come from the Mexican Ambassador. This was taken to indicate no operation would be performed tonight.

BEFORE PRESENTING OF MEDAL

President Hoover is shown giving Amelia Earhart Putnam a White House preview of the medal which he presented to her last night at Constitution Hall. It is the gold medal of the National Geographic Society. Mrs. Putnam was the first woman to receive it. It was awarded in recognition of her solo Atlantic flight.

she had been termed "a sack of potatoes" in England when she first crossed the ocean as a passenger. She told of the low clouds and the ice which hampered her flying.

That her flight added to the knowledge of aviation she denied. Its only claim was as an achievement of her sex, she said. She praised Bernt Balchen, famous pilot, who aided her in preparation for the attempt.

The ceremony at Constitution Hall lasted barely half an hour. Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the society, presided. The medal bore the inscription, "Awarded by the National Geographic Society to Amelia Earhart, first woman to achieve a solo transatlantic flight, May 20-21, 1932."

Greeted by Notables.

From the time when the slim young woman stepped out of the plane of the Ludington Line, which brought her to the Washington-Hoover Airport, until she received the Geographic's award, she was busy receiving the official greetings of the Capital's great.

Met at the airport by a guard of honor of cavalry from Fort Myer commanded by Lieut. Col. C. P. George, Mrs. Putnam was escorted immediately to the White House where President and Mrs. Hoover chatted with her and congratulated her achievement.

With her in the plane were her husband, George Palmer Putnam; his son, David Binney Putnam; Mrs. Lucy Challiss, a cousin of Mrs. Putnam, and Eugene Vidal, vice president of the Ludington Airlines.

Honored at Luncheon.

From the White House Mrs. Putnam was escorted to the new building of the National Geographic Society on Sixteenth street. There she was guest of honor of the trustees of the society.

The reception room was decorated with 50 enlarged photographs from the society's many explorations, included among which were photographic records of Admiral Byrd's Arctic and Antarctic expeditions.

Among those who honored Mrs. Putnam at the luncheon were:

Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor and Mrs. Grosvenor, Dr. John Oliver la Gorce and Mrs. La Gorce, John Joy Edson, Robert V. Fleming and Mrs. Fleming, Dr. J. Howard Gore, Judge John Barton Payne, Dr. George R. Putnam, Dr. George Otis Smith and Miss Louise Coburn Smith.

Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming and Mrs. Cumming, Mrs. John Greely, Miss Rose Greely, Dr. William M. Mann and Mrs. Mann, Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, William P. MacCracken and Mrs. MacCracken, Capt. Ralph W. McDowell and Mrs. McDowell, the Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J.; Mrs. Raymond S. Patton, Admiral William V. Pratt and Mrs. Pratt, George Palmer Putnam, Dr. Alexander Wetmore and Mrs. Wetmore.

Albert H. Bunstead and Mrs. Bunstead, Franklin L. Fisher and Mrs. Fisher, L. W. Gillette and Mrs. Gillette, Ralph A. Graves and Mrs. Graves, Melville Bell Grosvenor and Mrs. Grosvenor, J. R. Hildebrand and Mrs. Hildebrand, George W. Hutchison and Mrs. Hutchison, Charles Martin, Herbert A. Pole and Mrs. Pole, Mrs. William J. Showalter, Frederick Simpich and Mrs. Simpich, Maynard Owen Williams and Mrs. Williams.

Received by Curtis.

The luncheon over, she turned to the Capitol, where the plaudits of the Nation's legislators awaited her.

She was greeted by Vice President Curtis, who took her to the Senate. A short recess was taken for the senators to pass by in single file and shake her hand.

Applause and cheers rose up from the House floor when she was presented by Representative Millard, who said "no woman is more gentle, no man more courageous." She stood smiling in the gallery.

Then she was whisked to the offices of the Secretaries of War, Navy and Commerce. Later she was the dinner guest of the President and Mrs. Hoover.

The presentation program was broadcast over the National Broadcasting network, through Station WRC.

DUBLIN EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS TO OPEN

500,000 Gather for Great Demonstration That Will Start Today.

Dublin, Irish Free State, June 21 (A.P.).—The thirty-first International Eucharistic Congress, attended by 500,000 pilgrims from 25 nations, will be opened tomorrow with magnificent ceremony in Dublin's procathedral.

A dozen cardinals will occupy red thrones within the sanctuary and the cathedral will be crowded with numerous clerics in their richest vestments when the congress is formally inaugurated by Archbishop Byrne of Dublin.

The city has been vivid during the last few days with the robes of princes of the church and the habits of religious orders from faraway places.

Tonight, from the windows of rich and poor alike, gleamed the flame of candles.

Dublin Castle Reception.

Prayers concluded a three-day devotion for the success of the convention. This morning there was general communion of children in Ireland in celebration of the feast of St. Aloysius, patron of youth.

This afternoon thousands of the clergy and the laity were guests of the Archbishop of Dublin and the Irish bishops at a garden party in honor of the papal legate, Cardinal Lauri.

It was the first opportunity of many to meet the Pope's representative, as only a few hundred could be admitted to the cathedral when he was ceremonially welcomed yesterday.

The government honored the papal legate and other church dignitaries at a formal reception this evening in historic Dublin Castle. President Eamon De Valera and his ministers attended.

Archbishop Byrne, sponsor of the congress, will make the first address tomorrow. He will be followed by Bishop Heylen, of Namur, president of the permanent congress committee, and by the cardinal legate.

Political Foes Invited.

The Republican government of the Irish Free State may have excluded the king's representative, Gov. Gen. James McNeill, from the list of those invited to the governmental reception for the papal legate, but today's garden party in the legate's honor included leading representatives of the various Irish political factions.

Gov. Gen. McNeill, President De Valera and William T. Cosgrave, leader of the opposition in the Dail, were among the guests of the hierarchy at the fete in Blackrock College. More than 16,000 people crowded the college lawns for the affair.

At the end of the party Cardinal Lauri, surrounded by purple-robed bishops, gave his blessing to the throng. Dropping to their knees for the blessing, the pilgrims then rose to sing the hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers."

Hayes to Baptize Baby Of U.S. Consul at Dublin

Dublin, Irish Free State, June 21 (A.P.).—The biggest moment of the Eucharistic Congress for F. A. Sterling, American consul here, will come Friday afternoon when Cardinal Hayes, of New York, will baptize his infant daughter.

It is possible that all the other cardinals now in Dublin will witness the ceremony, as they have been invited to a garden party at the consulate to be held the same afternoon. Members of the American colony also will attend the party.

CONTRACTS URGED FOR LOCAL FIRMS

Buy-in-Washington Council Hears R. J. Cottrell Score Out of Town Awards.

Every time that money is withdrawn from the City of Washington it simply adds itself on to the amount that the citizens must contribute to the Community Chest and to the amount they have to pay in taxes, declared Robert J. Cottrell, executive secretary of the Washington Board of Trade, addressing a luncheon meeting of the Buy-in-Washington Council yesterday at the Raleigh Hotel.

Marcy L. Sperry, new president of the Washington Gas Light Co., was the club's principal guest. He gave a brief talk in answer to the welcome extended him by Edward J. Murphy, president of the Buy-in-Washington conference, who presided at the meeting.

"Yet here in the District we tax our local people to raise money to give to out-of-town concerns," Mr. Cottrell went on. "For instance, in the past three years, $7,905,000 has been spent in the local school building program. Of this approximately $3,600,000 has been given to out-of-town contractors."

Tendency Is Increasing.

"That is bad enough," Mr. Cottrell said, "but the serious part of it is that instead of this tendency slackening it is increasing, as in the fiscal year 1931-1932 contracts totaling $2,720,000 for new school buildings were awarded, of which $2,095,544 were awarded to out-of-town contractors."

Mr. Cottrell went on to enumerate the schools and the amounts of the contracts awarded to builders from Atlanta, Goldsboro, N. C.; Baltimore, Richmond, Philadelphia and other cities.

"How can the people of this community expect to maintain their tax rates where they are when they so penalize the local business man?" he asked.

"Only until the people of Washington realize, in refusing to deal with local concerns, they are not only directly contributing to the undermining of the economic status of the city but they are indirectly hurting themselves, will this condition be remedied," he said.

Two Women Among Speakers.

Mrs. Grace Hayes Riley, dean of the Washington College of Law and treasurer of the Women's City Club, and Mrs. Helena Doocy Reed, of the Soroptimist Club and the trust department of the Lincoln National Bank, also spoke to the members of the council.

Other guests included Miss M. A. Lunn, of the American Association of University Women; Mrs. N. R. Street, of the Zonta Club; Miss M. E. Conley, and Mrs. A. M. Kleinpeter, of the Soroptimist Club.

Arthur D. Marks, business manager of The Washington Post and original sponsor of the Buy-in-Washington Council, and John Poole, president of the Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co., who gave the council its slogan, were introduced.

Among those attending were Marx Lansburgh, John Eynon, Edward Rule, S. R. Bowen, Col. E. Goring Bliss, and Joshua Evans.

Man Identified As Bank Robber

Arrested While at Trial in Paintsville, Ky., of Suspect.

Paintsville, Ky., June 21 (A.P.).—A man giving his name as Wilson Jennings, Huntington, W. Va., was arrested today when he came here to attend the trial of Lawrence Piercy, formerly of Lexington, Va., charged with the $47,000 robbery of the Paintsville National Bank March 9.

As Robert Meade, assistant cashier of the bank, entered the courthouse he said he recognized Jennings as one of the three men who entered the bank. He stepped into the sheriff's office, summoned a deputy and Jennings was arrested and charged with bank robbery.

Ross Lyons, cashier, who was abducted and given a brief ride in the robber car, also identified Jennings as one of the robbers, as did Miss Oliver Blanton, another employe of the bank. Jennings denied the charge.

Americans' Safety Pledged by Davila

Junta Promises Protection With Plea for Aid in Ousting Radicals.

Santiago, Chile, June 21 (A.P.).—Carlos Davila's Socialist junta today responded to a request from William S. Culbertson, the American Ambassador, for protection of American lives and property with a promise of immediate protective measures.

The ambassador had advised the junta that American lives might be endangered by antiforeign reaction, especially in the Rancagua copper area, 50 miles from the capital. There are located the $100,000,000 Braden mines, subsidiaries of the Guggenheim interests.

Coupled with the promise of protection was a request from the junta that the mining interests help stamp out radicals. Officials of the Braden company at Teniente, where street fighting has occurred, expressed satisfaction with the government's attitude.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE ELMER TWITCHELL MODEL KEYNOTE SPEECH.

"GENTLEMEN of the Convention:

"Four years ago we met in party convention to dedicate ourselves to the people. Today we assemble again with two additional national hook-ups thrown in. Our country is split over these grave questions: Has free-wheeling come to stay? Is Marlene Dietrich as good as Greta Garbo? Why are the can openers attached to the average canned produce useless? Is the gulf stream shifting closer to the United States?

* * * *

"Fellow citizens, no red-blooded American can look these questions in the face without feeling a sense of deep responsibility. They are problems that can beat be solved by the party of Napoleon, the party of Gen. U. S. Grant, Phil Sheridan, Molly Pitcher, Alexander the Great, Christopher Columbus, Tony Wons, Admiral Farragut and Kate Smith. (Gavel and applause.)

* * * *

"Our party is not ashamed of its record. (Cries of "What about Gen. Ma?") Our party can look over its accomplishments with pride. (Voices, "How about the defeat of Tick On in the Kentucky Derby?") Our record of accomplishment is without parallel." (Cries of, "How do you stand on Mahatma Gandhi?")

* * * *

"What party gave the American people wizard control? We did. What party gave you Morton Downey? What party gave you the lighter golf balls? (Voice: "So, you're the fellow!") What party gave America the V-back bathing suit, backgammon and Pepper Martin? (Voice: "What do you intend to do about the Chinese War?")

* * * *

"Ah, my friends, we have ample reason to point with pride. Ours is the party of the selected leaf cigarette, the international bridge tournament, and the nonbreakable windshield. (Cries of "How do you stand on Manchuria and Ivar Kreuger?)

* * * *

"But it is not enough to look back. We must look forward. And so it is my proud privilege to outline the benefactions which we pledge for the future. We know the needs of the hour. We appreciate the requirements of the American people. First and foremost, there is the issue of the cellophane wrapper. We believe the country is entitled to a vote on whether this has gone far enough, and we favor resubmission. (Terrific cheers.)

* * * *

"Second, we favor limitation of contract bridge tournaments, it being our conviction that the people can play poorly enough without following the plays of experts.

* * * *

"Third, we stand unequivocally for more feathers in feather beds, the standardization of safety razor blades, the abolition of all statements on the steel trade, and Federal control of hitch-hiking. (Cheers and gavel.)

* * * *

"I could go on forever (cries of "That's what we're afraid of!"), but I have said enough. (Cheers.) Our party faces the election without fear. We stand on the record. And in the words of the immortal Lincoln at Valley Forge, let your conscience be your guide. I thank you." (Cries of "What about the Polish corridor?")

VIEWS ON THAT PROHIBITION PLANK.

ELMER TWITCHELL says that what the G. O. P. plank does is to give the voter a corkscrew and a bottle of milk and warn him that there'll be Federal intervention if he makes whoopee.

T. P. L.'s analysis is that it combines the Stein Song with The Old Oaken Bucket, but insists that it have power to summon the Army and Navy if the quartets start singing Sweet Adeline.

And then there is the Democrat who says the Republican prohibition plank has a chicken heart in every paragraph.

PROBABLY HAD HIS FINGERS CROSSED.

Mr. France, of Maryland, was nominated for the Presidency and tossed out of the convention the same day. Some fellows get all the breaks.

BANG! AND ANOTHER PROOF READER BIT THE DUST.

"Perplexed by swindling business, the Michigan avenue bank announced it would liquidate its affairs."—Philadelphia Ledger.

ADJOURNMENT HELD UNLIKELY THIS WEEK

Borah and Ashurst Protest Night Sessions in Effort to Finish by Saturday.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, told the Senate last night it would be impossible to finish its work in time to adjourn next Saturday.

The leaders remained hopeful the work could be finished by that time, but considerable doubt was expressed.

"There is no possible way for us to get away from here next Saturday unless we quit work," Borah said. "We can't possibly finish."

Senator Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona, promptly agreed, saying, "It is utterly fantastic for us to attempt to drive all these great things through in the next few days."

Ashurst said he had resigned himself to missing the Democratic national convention, opening next Monday.

Both Borah and Ashurst protested the program of night sessions being followed in an effort to finish by Saturday.

Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, said he felt members would get away quicker "if we functioned as normal human beings instead of in these unwanted hours."

Senator Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, who described himself as "unable to digest" most of the sections of the relief bill and amendments then under consideration, so rapidly were they coming up, said he was "half dazed" because of the combination of long hours and speed.

Senator Jones (Republican), Washington, said, "I can not see how it is possible to do what the Senate ought to do between now and Saturday."

Senator McNary, of Oregon, the assistant Republican leader, expressed the opinion that the business of the country would be better off with Congress in adjournment and that members should submit to night sessions to pass the "emergent legislation" and adjourn by Saturday if possible.

Support Is Pledged for U. S. Delegates' Moves at Geneva.

A resolution to support the United States delegates at the Geneva Disarmament Conference in their attempts to abolish aggressive methods and weapons of warfare, was adopted by the public affairs committee of the Young Women's Christian Association at the June open meeting of the committee at Vacation Lodge, Cherrydale, Va.

Mrs. Ernest E. Dany, chairman of the committee, presented the resolution. The public affairs committee has promoted an active study of the Geneva conference.

National convention reports were made by Mrs. Edwin B. Parker, first vice president of the board of directors, and Miss Margaret Hill, president of the Blue Triangle Club of Young Business Women. Without a relief budget, reports of the association show that 22 meals and six lodgings were given free, and a number of girls outfitted with clothes during last month. Twenty-six full or part time positions were found for unemployed women.

SENATE ECONOMY CONFEREES UPHOLD HOUSE FURLOUGH VOTE

before him on his desk and expected immediate acceptance.

Then Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic leader, espousing a plan under which general debate on the relief bill would close at 5 o'clock today, with speeches limited thereafter 10 minutes to each senator, asked him to withhold his economy report until the Wagner bill is passed on.

Called Controversial.

Senator Robinson declared the economy conference report "controversial" in nature. Senator La Follette interposed that a number of senators had informed him they wished to question some of the House changes.

The result was, Senator Jones promised the Democratic leader he will not call up his economy report until the relief legislation is disposed of, providing the Robinson proposal for limiting debate is agreed to by the Senate this morning.

Senator Bratton vainly attempted yesterday to persuade Senate economy conferees of the unwisdom of provisions of the House furlough plan depriving some workers of all leave, while substituting a pay cut. Conferees, however, declared that under no circumstances would they open the troubled question.

Describing the clause as a "joker," the New Mexico senator pointed out that members of the District police and fire departments and others specifically exempted from one month furloughs, would get no leave at all.

He said conferees had not intended to work injustices on Federal or District employes. When the report is made in the Senate he will take the matter up on the floor and attempt to "straighten it out," he said.

The conference report reduced all annual leave with pay permanently to fifteen days. This provision is rendered inoperative by the furlough amendment, canceling all leave with pay and substituting payless furloughs or pay cuts ranging from 8.3 to 20 per cent.

First reaction to the House change in the "impounding" clause, turning money paid from Federal salaries back into the Treasury, came yesterday from the Bureau of Standards.

Dr. George K. Burgess, director, announced that because of reduced appropriations 70 employes will be discharged July 1 and the rest put on a five-day week.

Under the "impounding clause" before it was revised by Representative John McDuffie (Democrat), Alabama, money saved from the furlough plan would be used in part to retain such workers in the service.

Dr. Burgess said the visiting committee, advisory body for the bureau, recommended discharge of 10 per cent of the workers, but he could only see his way clear to dismiss 5 per cent. They will be selected from the lower efficiency classifications.

Similar lay-offs are considered almost inevitable in other departments of Government if the Senate allows the House provision to stand.

Malcolm Kerlin, administrative assistant to the Department of Commerce, estimated that the changes written into the bill by Representative McDuffie will force dismissal of 1,800 Commerce Department employes, many of whom are employed in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce here and abroad.

'Discrimination' Against Married Women Assailed

In writing "discrimination" against married women into the economy bill, conferees are denying married women workers "their independent bread," Sue S. White, executive secretary of the women's division, Democratic National Party, charged last night in a statement.

Quoting from Susan B. Anthony, late suffrage leader, that women would "never be free until they eat independent bread," the Democratic woman executive called on the Senate to strike the provision denying husband and wife both the right to stay in the Government service.

"The idea should not be even entertained," she said. "Single women should be as alert to uphold the right of married women to work, as married women themselves are."

$5,000 Is Sought For Rent Inquiry

Report on Summer Probe to Be Given to Senate in December.

Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, chairman of the Senate District committee, yesterday asked the Senate for $5,000 to finance a District subcommittee investigation of high rents in Washington this summer.

Senator Capper asked for the authorization in a resolution introduced immediately following an executive session of his committee. Members instructed him to appoint a subcommittee of three to investigate charges of an alleged rent-fixing combine and report back to the Senate in December.

The resolution would empower the group "to avail itself of the services of all agencies of the Federal and District governments within the District of Columbia; to hold hearings, and to sit and act at such times and places as it deems advisable; to employ such assistance as it may deem necessary; to require by subpena and otherwise the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers and documents; to administer oaths and to take testimony."

ARMS CUT ACTIVITY GAINING MOMENTUM

Stimson Talks With Claudel and Di Martino as Hope for Accord Grows.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The drive on disarmament continued on many fronts yesterday with diplomatic activity concentrating to wind up with a measurable degree of success the general conference now sitting in Geneva. President Hoover, at the Cabinet meeting, is understood to have discussed the developments of the last three days in Geneva, which indicates a definite result within 24 hours.

Secretary Stimson remained at his office until a later hour last night, presiding at a "board of strategy" meeting, which included Assistant Secretary of State James Grafton Rogers, Allen T. Klots and J. Pierrepont Moffatt, the disarmament expert of the Department of State.

At the conclusion of the meeting, none of the conferees would make any statement, but the Secretary looked smilingly optimistic.

Confers With Claudel.

In the course of his day, the Secretary of State held a long conversation with the French Ambassador, Paul Claudel. Ambassador Claudel is understood to have called at the department to pay his respects to the Secretary, whom he had not seen since his return from Chicago. In the course of the conversation, Col. Stimson told the Ambassador that he was in close contact with French Premier Herriot at Geneva and at Lausanne through the medium of Chairman Hugh Gibson, of the American disarmament delegation, and Norman H. Davis.

France has demonstrated a definite intention to get an agreement out of the disarmament conference. Not the least important factor in the eleventh hour change in the French position is the ultimatum recently delivered Premier Herriot by his minister of finances, Germain-Martin, that France will have to make a radical reduction in her military budget if the French budget is to be put through Parliament without a deficit.

Antimilitarism Gains.

In addition there is rapidly coalescing throughout France, but conspicuously absent in Paris, a strong sentiment of antimilitarism, due in large measure to the enormous military credits voted successfully by Nationalist governments for the past five years, which have gone to swell the profits of the French armament trust and the powerful steel cartel.

The conversations which have been suddenly charged with activity in Geneva ever since the arrival there of the French and British premiers, have been marked by the sudden reversal of the French position. As far as has been reported here, the French are willing to drop the Tardieu plan of internationalization of police forces under the League and accept a definite numerical reduction.

It is understood that Ambassador Claudel took up with the Secretary in greater detail the elements of the Herriot disarmament project. After an exchange of information on the most recent phases of the Geneva negotiations, the ambassador cabled a full report of his talk to Premier Herriot at Lausanne.

The Italian Ambassador, Giacomo di Martino, also called at the department to secure any information the department might have as to the possible outcome of the disarmament talks.

The greatest variety of reports has been current with regard to the latest spur in the disarmament negotiations. Officials of the State Department have so far been able to keep secret the details of the latest disarmament program which is now being worked out. In some respects it is said to be "so fantastic" and such a departure from the hitherto accepted plans of disarmament as to constitute a new era in the approach to the problem.

Stimson's Denial.

Col. Stimson exhibited considerable asperity in denying the reports from Switzerland that the American delegation had been discussing the reciprocal effect of the debt question and the disarmament question. In the face of his denials, a subsequent report from Geneva quoted Chairman Gibson in effect as linking the two subjects.

The Secretary's full statement is as follows:

"There is no truth whatsoever in the statements from Lausanne that the American Government or its representatives have had any negotiations or made any suggestions as to debt questions at Lausanne or Geneva. Not only have no discussions taken place between our Government and our representatives, but they inform us that no such discussion on this subject has ever taken place between them and the representatives of any foreign government. The American representatives at the Geneva conference are dealing solely with the question of disarmament."

PARIS SEEKS YOUNG PLAN'S OVERTHROW

governments of Europe today that so long as they continue heavy expenditures for armaments they need expect no revision of war debts.

This policy, hailed by experts here as a significant reversal of the American position that war debts and disarmament are wholly separate problems, was set forth by Hugh Gibson, head of the American delegation to the Geneva disarmament conference, in a dramatic midnight meeting with Premier Edouard Herriot of France.

The two men came together at a hotel in the village of Morges, halfway between Geneva and Lausanne, where M. Herriot is heading his nation's delegation to the debts and reparations conference.

That secret meeting—lasting from 10 p. m. yesterday until midnight—was followed this afternoon by a surprise visit by Mr. Gibson to Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain, who also is at Lausanne.

"We talked of nothing but disarmament," Mr. Gibson said after spending an hour with the prime minister. "That is categoric, and, strange as it may seem, it is true."

Mr. Gibson was accompanied by Norman H. Davis, another member of the American delegation to the Disarmament Conference, who also denied that "we entered the financial field," but their visit was accepted as particularly significant, in view of the Gibson-Herriot meeting at Morges.

On good authority it was said that Mr. Gibson invited the French premier to Morges after having telephoned to President Hoover. The impression here was that the initiative came from Washington.

Democratic Rum Plank Whittling Now Awaited

By JOHN J. DALY

AND now, all the Democrats have to do is to whittle themselves a clean-cut plank on prohibition to be placed in the platform formulated at Chicago.

The question is, How must it be whittled? Is it to call for repeal, appeal, or just peal? Submission, resubmission, or just plain mission? That is the question.

Now a prohibition plank, like any other plank, ought to be a simple plank to whittle; but is it? It is not. For as fast as the whittlers get it whittled one way, say on the repeal side, the submissionists get their knives out.

Finally, in despair, and knowing full well they can not satisfy both sides, the whittlers throw the plank, as is, into the general convention. It is voted on, accepted or rejected, and the battle starts all over again.

* * * *

IN fact, the battle starts even as the whittlers start whittling. It is the nature of their whittling that starts the fighting.

There is an old saying that too many cooks spoil the broth, but too many onlookers, and advisers, set the whittlers on nerves' end.

The boys, whittling the plank on prohibition, are never quite sure what ought to be done, unless the whole plank could be dropped overboard and set sailing up Salt Creek—until after the elections.

It will be argued that the Democrats ought to have easy sailing, since the Republicans sailed before them and, so to speak, charted the sea.

That is a fallacy, open to anybody's argument. The Republicans did nothing of the kind. They did not chart the sea. Nobody charted the sea. The sea refuses to be charted.

SO the Democratic whittlers of the prohibition plank must keep whittling away, receiving advice and threats from all sides, until the day the convention convenes, 'til the keynote speaker has sounded his A and the bearers of the platform bring in the bone of contention, in the form of a prohibition plank. Then, hear the howls go up!

A man who helps whittle a prohibition plank, be his whittling ever so humble, ought to be given the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Distinguished Service Cross, a pension for life, and a yatch on which to sail the seven seas, away from his native country, to be gone during the post-mortem meetings which precede the conventions and sometimes linger after—talking about the prohibition planks.

Such a man, by his bravery, his unselfishness and utter devotion to a lost cause, wins all the honors that can be conferred by the citizenry, no matter what their political beliefs or affiliations. If the Government has no way to take care of this crying need—complete rest and relaxation for the prohibition plank whittlers—the party campaign funds should be turned over to these poor fellows, martyrs all, bravest of the brave.

Government Workers Get Campaign Warning

With the beginning of the activity of political campaigns, the Civil Service Commission yesterday warned Federal employes throughout the country to obey its rules not to take part in affairs political or risk the possibility of losing their jobs.

The threat of action was issued after the commission had become aroused by political activity of a large group of Government workers who had begun campaigning against members of Congress who had backed legislation considered unfavorable to Federal employes.

Records of Winners.

This contest, conducted in the colleges and universities throughout the country, was promoted in each State by State contest committees cooperating with the Federal Bicentennial Commission. Each of the nine finalists was chosen in his college to compete in the State Oratorical Contest and winning that, competed successfully in the regional contest, comprising many States. The winners in the regional contests became eligible for the finals on Friday night.

James R. Moore from Washington & Lee University, Lexington, Va., a native of Somerset, Ky., was winner of the National High School oratorical contest in 1928, and the Kentucky State High School oratorical contest the same year.

J. Milton Richardson, a sophomore in the University of Georgia at Athens, Ga., representing the Southeastern region, represented the University of Georgia in the international debate with the University of Puerto Rico on March 2 of this year. Mr. Richardson is the first student ever to be awarded the Demosthenian Honor Key, for public speaking and debate, in his freshman year.

One Girl Finalist.

The one girl in the group of finalists, Margaret G. Degnan of Derby, Conn., representing the Northeastern region from the New Haven State Normal School, New Haven, Conn., may prove a formidable adversary, to judge from her high school and college record. Her topic is "Washington: Exemplar of American Ideals."

Donald Holand, representing the North Central region is a student at the University of North Dakota, and was winner last year of the Stockwell freshman oratorical contest.

The other finalists are: Martin J. Tracey, of New York City, who represents the Middle Atlantic region from Fordham University, New York City, whose oration is on the topic "The Spirit of Washington;" Felicien Lozes, of New Orleans, La., who represents the South Central region from Loyola University, New Orleans, La., who will speak on "First in Peace;" John W. Crawford, who represents the Central region from Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., whose topic is "The Spirit of Washington;" Bryson Hays of Multnomah, Oreg., who represents the Northwestern region from Columbia University, Portland, Oreg., and whose subject is "George Washington's Understanding of Men;" and Fred Coney, who represents the Southwestern region from Colorado State Teachers College, Greeley, Colo., whose oration is on the topic "First in Peace."

KEEP OUT OF ASIA, AMERICA WARNED

Effort at Domination Would Bring War, Avers Former Tokyo Envoy to U. S.

Tokyo, June 21 (A.P.).—Viscount Kikujiro Ishii, former Japanese Ambassador at Washington, served notice on the United States tonight not to attempt domination of Asia. Such an attempt, he declared in a speech at a dinner in honor of Joseph C. Grew, the new American Ambassador, would mean war.

The viscount said he considered armed conflict between the two nations extremely improbable, and Mr. Grew departed from the prepared text of his speech to assert that America's concern in the Orient was the maintenance of peace and respect for her treaties.

The Ishii address amounted to an enunciation of a Monroe Dictrine for Asia.

"A grave situation would be created," the viscount said, "if the United States ever attempted to dominate the Asiatic continent and prevented Japan from her pacific and natural expansion in this part of the world."

He outlined two "extremely improbable events which would cause war. These were: "First—If Japan were foolish enough to attempt to unduly interfere in the Western Hemisphere, when war would be inevitable. Second—If America attempted to dominate Asia."

Dan Beard, of Scouts, Is 82.

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—Daniel Carter Beard, national commissioner of the Boy Scouts of America, quietly observed his eighty-second birthday today.

No Question About It

they are Milder!

YOU'RE RIGHT... there's one thing that stands out about Chesterfield. That is . . . they're Milder.

This means Chesterfields aren't harsh. It means they're not strong or heavy.

Early in the day or late at night you'll find that Chesterfields are always pleasing. They are mild and yet they satisfy.

What's more they taste better, too. That's it... milder and better taste. These are the two outstanding merits of Chesterfield.

Plus... a third important advantage. Chesterfields are as pure as the water you drink . . . as pure as science can make them.

WET, DRY, AND MIXED.

Senator Borah is in his element in opposing the wet-dry plank of the Republican platform, while offering nothing himself. Much is made of the idea that Senator Borah may go off the reservation and fight against the re-election of President Hoover on account of the wet-dry plank. This is nonsense. Neither Senator Borah nor Mr. Hoover is bound by that plank, but both, if they are honest, are bound to remain Republicans. There is no question of Mr. Hoover's regularity, but Senator Borah's regularity is orthodox only in campaign years.

Senator Borah has never bolted the Republican ticket. In his attack upon the Chicago wet-dry plank he speaks still as a Republican. But he can not remain a Republican and fight Hoover this year. The party lines tighten up during the presidential campaign, notwithstanding such questions as prohibition.

Unless President Hoover should declare himself squarely pledged to the wet-dry plank, there can be no major quarrel between him and Senator Borah. They differ on the world court proposal, but that matter is in the "academic" stage and is not likely to be discussed much. On all other questions, so far as known, Senator Borah supports his party leader and approves of the Republican platform. It is reasonable to presume that he will adopt his usual course and make a vigorous fight for Republican victory.

On the Democratic side the drift is strongly toward adoption of a plank declaring for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Some of the candidates are wise enough to suggest a substitute for the present prohibition system, but Speaker Garner, making a direct bid for the nomination for President, comes out for repeal and nothing else. His statement on this point reads:

> When the prohibition amendment was proposed I, as a member of Congress, voted against it. I have never believed it sound or workable and it should be repealed.

Naturally, if Mr. Garner should be nominated for President, he would be asked to answer the question, "After repeal, what?"

This is the question which moderate wets and moderate drys would like to have answered. They admit that the present system is unsatisfactory, but before they commit themselves to repeal they wish to know what is to be substituted. Wets generally declare that they are opposed to the return of the saloon, and drys make the non-return of the saloon a condition of their willingness to support a change in the existing system.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, a reliable dry, favors adoption of a plank by the Democratic convention proposing submission of a prohibition repeal amendment to the people, without suggesting an alternative, and without pledging the party to repeal. His proposal is hardly likely to find favor with the convention majority, because Democrats seem to have concluded that "repeal" is the winning battle-cry, and they will probably demand that the party pledge itself and its candidates, not merely to work for submission of the question to the people, but for outright repeal.

As the situation appears at this stage of the campaign, the Republican party will insist that there shall be no outright repeal of the eighteenth amendment without proposing a substitute system, and the Democratic party will insist upon outright repeal, leaving to the future the devising of a substitute system.

If the "issue" should thus be narrowed down, there will be no difficulty in President Hoover and Senator Borah standing on the same rostrum; but there will be a quarrel between Senator Robinson and his brand of drys and the Democratic nominee who declares for repeal, saloon or no saloon.

THE "FORGOTTEN" SPEECH.

Just a month ago Gov. Roosevelt, leading candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, came out boldly for economic experimentation as the way out of the depression. It was his second major address in his preconvention campaign. His first was a plea in behalf of the "forgotten man" and for restoration of the farmer's purchasing power.

On the last occasion Gov. Roosevelt seemed to realize that he had offered his audience vapor instead of meat, because he let it be known that he was merely setting forth his general purposes and objectives. "He expects," said a correspondent of the New York Times who had interviewed the governor after his Atlanta speech, "to launch into an extensive treatment of rehabilitation proposals in one or more major speeches, to be delivered a few weeks before the national convention."

The public has been waiting in vain for those speeches. But Gov. Roosevelt has been unusually silent. On several occasions he has spoken briefly, but he has not seen fit to make known his position on the vital problems that confront the United States. Now the convention is less than a week away. Delegates are already gathering at Chicago. It is improbable that Gov. Roosevelt plans to deliver any more major addresses before his name is placed in nomination.

For months Gov. Ritchie has been going through the Eastern States, speaking at every opportunity. His principles and his views on current problems have been set forth in detail. Al Smith announced his plans to combat hard times with refreshing candor and determination. Yesterday Speaker Garner came out with a belated declaration of policy. Virtually all of the Democratic candidates whose hats are in the ring have made their positions known, with varying degrees of definiteness.

But almost nothing is known of the national policy that Franklin D. Roosevelt would follow, except that he favors "more equitable distribution of the national income" and rehabilitation of the farmer. If the governor has said one word as to how these objectives shall be attained, it has escaped the notice of the public. The essence of his approach to the grave national problems of the day is well expressed in a few lines from his latest magazine article:

> There is no occasion for time serving and timid planning. Boldness alone will serve us. If one plan fails, we must scrap it and try another or take the consequences.

Only one explanation of Gov. Roosevelt's failure to announce the specific plans which he refused to divulge at Atlanta is plausible. He must fear that such a course would impair his chances for obtaining the nomination. The most formidable opposition that has developed against Gov. Roosevelt is a result of his two major speeches. Did friends advise him to postpone the announcement of his specific program until after the convention, in fear that further opposition would be aroused?

In view of the reaction to his former addresses from Democratic as well as Republican circles there seems to be no doubt that Gov. Roosevelt has been politically discreet in remaining silent for the last month. But a question remains as to whether or not the Democratic convention will feel free in this critical period to select a candidate who deals with the great problems of the hour only as glittering generalities.

FRANCE'S POSITION.

Just at the moment when the Lausanne conference was convening, the Bank of France withdrew the last $50,000,000 in gold to its credit in the United States. The French gold reserve is now approximately as large as the American, a fact which is of particular interest when it is remembered that the population of the United States is about three times that of France.

France, as represented at Lausanne, contends that war debts and reparations are a single problem and, presuming upon a general acceptance of this view, the French government claims the right to deal with the United States as the United States deals with Germany. Apparently if Germany defaults, France will claim the right to default also.

Germany can not pay all that the Allies desire. She may be able to pay something. But France is not dependent upon Germany's performance. France today has more gold than she needs. She can meet her obligations without any sort of risk to her present or future welfare. The failure of France to pay, conditions being what they are, would be a declaration to the world that she intends to repudiate her debts, contracted in an hour of extreme peril and since revised to less than half the original figure.

In the course of the next few days the French government must decide between the path of honor and the road to isolation and international discredit. For the moment, the American people should suspend judgment, but if France chooses repudiation, the meaning of her default will be clear. She will have failed a friend whose good will has been of inestimable advantage to her and whose help she may need again as she required it in 1917.

France, being able to pay, can not honestly adopt the plan of defaulting merely because Germany defaults. That course would inflict irreparable injury upon French credit.

MAPES TAX BILLS FAIL.

Residents of the District will be pardoned if they see an element of poetic justice in the fact that the incomplete status of the measure to repeal the 60-40 substantive law defeats the Mapes committee tax bills at this session of Congress. The Bureau of Efficiency requires at least another month to finish its investigation of the Mapes committee bill, which would sweep away the legal obligation of the Federal Government to help support the National Capital. Inasmuch as the District committee intends to consider the Mapes bills only as a group, no action can be taken this year.

The proposal to repeal the existing law prescribing the fiscal relations between the Government and the District goes to the heart of this problem. By all means it should be disposed of before any new taxes are levied. For years Congress has ignored the statute requiring that 40 per cent of the District appropriations shall come from the Federal Treasury because Washington is the Nation's seat of government. Congressmen who have been voting to starve the District lacked courage to repeal the substantive law. Enactment of new taxes, while that law remains in effect, for the purpose of reducing the present meager Federal contribution would add insult to injury.

The Senate District committee is to be commended for its fairness in handling this difficult problem. If the committee insists upon a fair distribution of the cost of maintaining and developing the Federal City, residents of the District will not complain. They have never sought to escape just and reasonable taxes. They are willing to supply ample funds for Washington as a municipality, if the Government will meet its obligation to Washington as a national center belonging to the people of the whole country. No other basis of dividing expenses is worthy of consideration.

The Government's liability in this respect and its liability as a taxpayer were taken into account in a previous study by the Bureau of Efficiency. These factors will doubtless be the basis of the present study. Before Congress meets again the recommendations of the bureau will be available and the Senate District committee will be able to go ahead with a reasonable plan of dividing District expenses.

MUNICIPAL CENTER.

Before Congress adjourns it should authorize the beginning of construction work on the new Municipal Center. The taxpayers of the city have done their part; they have purchased the site. The Senate appropriations committee has approved the expenditure of $778,000 for the project. The whole matter is now in conference. It should be recommended by the conferees and given final sanction by both House and Senate.

For years various departments of the municipal government have been inadequately housed. Proper quarters are required for the Police Court, the Municipal Court, the Juvenile Court, the Metropolitan Police Department, the Traffic Bureau, the Recorder of Deeds and other offices. These units of the municipal establishment should be brought together in the single structure for which plans already have been made and approved. The building could be built now for considerably less than originally was estimated. There would be a saving in the elimination of rentals and other waste.

The project has general civic indorsement. It would aid the city in dealing with the unemployment situation. Congress should take the necessary final steps immediately.

The Chicago donkey may find himself confronted by a dark horse.

THE HAWES-CUTTING BILL

By VICENTE VILLAMIN.

As the Senate enters the last few days of its intense legislative labors it may yet find itself in the midst of an animated debate on the Hawes-Cutting bill. The bill puts off independence for 20 years, an action that gives a new meaning to the phrase "friend of Philippine independence." The bill does not alter the legal or international status of the Philippines, the sovereignty of the United States in the premises remaining intact. It merely introduces changes in administration by reallocating responsibilities and making the position of chief executive elective.

For the Filipinization of the government, which is but a short step from the present position, where over 98 per cent of the personnel are already Filipinos, the Philippines get an American high commissioner, who will act as guardian of American authority, and they surrender two precious privileges—the free and unrestricted entry of their products to the United States and immunity of Filipinos from the operation of the American immigration laws.

The bill creates new Federal offices such as the high commission and its staff, but authorizes no appropriation. To leave this matter for future legislation is to inject a basic element of uncertainty into the situation, for the refusal of Congress to appropriate will render the bill nugatory.

The administration of Philippine affairs in Washington is transferred from the War Department to the President. Again there is no provision for an additional office force to discharge the new duties, which are heavy and varied. To create a new office by executive order is out of the question.

The bill deprives Congress of the power to alter or repeal any law passed by the Philippine Legislature, but empowers the President "to suspend the taking effect of or operation of any law, contract or executive order" of the Philippine government. Whether Congress can or means to give away its inherent power over the Philippines, which is absolute, supreme and plenary, presents not only a constitutional but a political problem.

The Philippine government is authorized under the bill to contract bonded indebtedness in foreign countries with the approval of the President of the United States. This presidential approval will give Philippine bonds held in foreign countries the moral guarantee of the United States, which implies moral responsibility. This is one of the most extraordinary powers that Congress has given the President.

A capital provision in the bill is that which directs the Philippine government to levy export duties on Philippine goods shipped to the United States and to apply the proceeds to the liquidation of the bonded obligations of that government to American bankers.

Section 6 (e) is discriminatory, for it excludes from its operation certain Philippine tariff-protected products.

POST HASTE.

It is difficult for Senator Borah to be impressive in the unaccustomed role of opposing progressive tendencies.

Dr. Garfield's pride of authorship need not suffer, since Senator Borah could not write a resubmission plank to suit himself.

Herriot's announcement at Lausanne that France would not forgo reparation payments must have been a bombshell of surprise, like that caused by the sun rising on time that morning.

President Montero being out of the city for his health, the Communist revolt in Santiago got the start of him.

The House takes its motto from Samuel Butler:

"Why should not conscience have vacation
As well as other courts o' the nation?"

Geneva and Lausanne are so close that delegates running back and forth are becoming confused as to how to disarm criticism and make reparations for lack of accomplishment.

With Mr. Farley asserting that 90 of New York's 94 Tigers will wear Roosevelt stripes it can not be denied that the governor has a good claim agent.

Chairman Sanders will shut up Republican headquarters in Washington. It looks as though the Democratic convention would do as much for Mr. Shouse in Chicago.

That is an awful indictment of the national political convention of the Republican party hurled by Senator Borah—that the adoption of the prohibition plank was an act of political expediency.

Naturally a national convention should be motivated, not by the majority opinion, but by divining the sentiments of a lone maverick sulking in the hills.

Now try not to get all het up over the advent of yesterday's new arrivals—official summer and officious taxes.

The Pittman pitiful palliative for silver is before the Senate—insignificant as a monetary measure, but a little sop to by-product silver mines.

THE LITTLE COUNTRY DRUG STORE.

Liniments for horses,
Medicines for cows:
Oils to rub on women folk
To soothe their aching brows.
Little country drug store,
Not like those in town,
Where is heard the rustle
Of many a silken gown.

Remedies in bottles
For bruises, hurts and sprains,
Panaceas commended
For human aches and pains.
Tonics for the poultry
When hens refuse to lay
Put out where city druggists
Have perfumes on display.

Cures for every ailment
To which flesh is heir;
For mothers in the country
Have little time to spare.
And so the village drug store
A hundred needs supplies,
Including soothing syrups
Whene'er the baby cries.

The city drug store glistens
With countless pretty things,
And all the trifling trinkets
Which love of beauty brings.
But still the country drug store
By every inch of space
Proclaims the care and problems
The wives of farmers face.

Poor Were Robin Hood's Friends Because the Law Was Their Enemy, Too.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

YOU are a free-born American citizen, a taxpayer and supporter of good works, and this happens to you.

In a city some distance from your home you are visiting a sister. Standing on a street corner one day, waiting for the traffic lights to change, you feel a touch on your shoulder and turn to face a hard-visaged individual who shows you a star.

The police are looking for somebody. You are somebody. Therefore you are arrested, held in jail 24 hours without permission to communicate with anybody, and then told to go your way a free man.

But you now have a police record. And police departments exchange records.

Two years later business calls you to another city—an excited and wrathful city where the police are searching for a baby killer. You arrive in the midst of the round-up.

As your car passes an alley, a truck driver emerges without warning crumples your fenders and begins a noisy indictment of your carelessness.

A crowd gathers, a policeman among them. You are taken to headquarters.

Innocently you give your correct name; confess being a stranger in town. The police consult records from other cities. And because you were once unjustly arrested, they find you have a police record!

That settles it. You get the third degree. You are denied food and water while relays question you under glaring lights. You are beaten with a length of rubber hose—which breaks no bones nor leaves tell-tale wounds.

If you are a weakling you may confess killing the baby to escape further torture. Many men have chosen that way. If you are strong and endure and eventually win freedom—with a second police record, this one reading: "Murder suspect."

You think it can't happen to you? Why? Are you better than other men? It happens to thousands of them every year.

Even in Baltimore, where men boast of the "Free State" and claim superior regard for the Bill of Rights, 1,150 men were arrested without cause in one year's time, held in secret as kidnaped people are, and eventually released—the last one of them—without charge.

It happens in every city, every day and nobody is safe but the rich man and the politician—and perhaps the gangster.

Do you wonder that ordinary poor men often side with criminals? Criminals don't kidnap thousands of decent citizens, nor beat them up to get "evidence."

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Fading Issue.

Minneapolis Journal.

Liquor planks in Republican and Democratic platforms are not going to be so important next November as this summer's pother over them would make it appear. Wet congressional candidates wearing Republican labels will doubtless be just as strong for outright repeal as though the convention Wednesday night had adopted the minority report. And no matter what the Democratic convention does, that party's candidates in the more drastically dry districts of the South will be as strong against any kind of resubmission as though they were running on a platform drafted by the late Carrie Nation.

Change Dangerous.

Los Angeles Times.

It is evident the Nation needs Herbert Hoover for four more years. His demonstrated capacity, his grasp of the problems with which the Nation is now confronted, not only warrant his retention in office, but make it positively dangerous to trust the administration to less experienced hands. As former President Coolidge said in a recent Saturday Evening Post article, "In an emergency like the present the responsible elements of our party should offer a solid front in their support of the President. That is the course I propose to pursue."

Interested? Oh, Very!

Chicago Tribune.

The simple-minded American male imagined, when he consented to give the franchise to women, that he was opening the political door to the untutored female who would bring a charming disinterestedness and guilelessness to the play of politics. He didn't know that the self-interest of women has been a dominanting factor in government from the time of Eden.

Don't Yield.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The country cannot stand mob legislation. It strikes at free, orderly government and republican institutions. Yielding to it would be a decisive step toward ruin.

How to Beat Hoover.

Brooklyn Citzen.

It is up to the Democratic party to make prohibition the dominant issue in the campaign. If it fails to take advantage of its opportunity, Mr. Hoover will be reelected.

Prof. Ripley Tells Them.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Senate banking commitee had an interesting witness in Prof. William Z. Ripley, of Harvard, an economist who speaks a vivid language and emphatically "knows his stuff."

He told the committee how stock manipulation might be controlled. Corporations doing an interstate business, if big enough to be important, should be required to file frequent reports with the Government on their earnings, depreciation and other operating data. There has been little fluctuation, he pointed out, in railroad, telephone and telegraph stocks since they have been giving this information to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Quite a Problem.

Detroit News.

Before the inevitabale Democratic storms begin to burst at Chicago, sober Democratic thought upon Hoover's strength should prove wholesome. Gov. Roosevelt, Gov. Ritchie, Gov. Byrd, Gov. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, former Senator Reed, Newton D. Baker—how well or ill does each contrast with Hoover? In personality and representative quality, issues considered? In background which contains political, governmental and the statesman's experience?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

"Virginia Democrat" Believes Senate Saved the Country—Urges Vote Against Pork.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Regardless of one's political affiliations every conscientious thinking person will heartily agree with your several editorials in which the complete breakdown or lack of Democratic leadership in the House has been stressed. Had it not been for the more patriotic and statesmanlike stability and leadership exercised in the Senate this country would have been plunged into a complete state of chaos and ruin.

No better illustration of the truth of these statements is needed than the recent action on the veterans' bonus bill which was passed by the overwhelming votes of the Democrats in the House without so much as even a statement from the Speaker advising against this unjust legislation. But in view of his own pork-barrel raid on the Treasury the Speaker could not be expected to exert his leadership against a bill that was hardly less obnoxious than the one of his own making. The Senate has promptly and wisely spoken for the people in overwhelmingly defeating the bonus grab, and it is hoped that it will likewise defeat the Garner bill now pending.

While the leadership of the B. E. F. in Washington is reported to be advising those veterans who have come here, at the unwise suggestion of irresponsible persons, to vote against all senators who opposed the bonus bill, these senators need have no fear of any such threats. The voters who will see to it that these statesmen are returned greatly outnumber the veterans. When these veterans realize who have actually betrayed them they will reverse their present attitude and urge every voter to cast his vote against those who disregarded the welfare and stability of our Government in order to gain some political advantage at the hands of an organized minority.

If the Senate will now continue its sensible and constructive policy by defeating any proposal to further embarrass the Government and increase the already heavy burden of the taxpayers by the issue of bonds, the people will be grateful and the country will be in a position to regain at least a part of what has been lost in the past three years of depression. As a Democrat, it is my sincere hope that every Democratic senator will have the courage to vote against the Garner bill and any other bill which provides for the issuance of bonds for the construction of postoffices and other purposes not now needed.

VIRGINIA DEMOCRAT.

Mr. Gauss Suggests Fertilizer Plan to Aid Back-to-the-Land Movement for Veterans.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The mountains in the history of nations have been forced up by the determination of groups of destitute people to secure self-support. Hence the exodus of the Hebrews, the descent of the northern tribes on Italy, the westward push of the Tartar hordes and every great revolution of the modern era.

The industrial army which was disorganized by the collapse of the financial Tower of Babel in 1929 will be turned into banditti unless reorganized. The quickest, simplest and most practical method lies in the "back to the land" movement to make the individual self-supporting.

This movement would fail if left to individual initiative. The Nation, the States and the municipalities must take a definite and strong position in organizing and leading the agricultural army.

I have written to Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, and to others interested in relief measures as follows: "Will you not endeavor to have a clause included in the relief legislation requiring States to which relief loans are made to investigate and put into effect means for using the municipal garbage and sewage wastes as fertilizing material? This can now be done in a completely safe and sanitary manner, and the results would be: 1. Opening up in every community a new industry requiring a large amount of hand labor. 2. The development of a supply of fertilizer at a nominal cost, which would not only make agricultural operations show a profit instead of a loss but would enable the individual householder to raise food on even a small plot of ground. 3. A marked reduction of taxes due to the decreased cost of municipal administration.

"If any doubt exists as to the practicability of utilizing these wastes, I am ready to make a demonstration of methods and results which should be seriously considered in the present depression brought about by the presence in the United States of a large number of people who lack means of self-support."

Ugly Reviewing Stands Along Pennsylvania Avenue Object of Complaint.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why is the Bicentennial Commission permitted to erect unsightly reviewing stands along Pennsylvania avenue and leave them there for an indefinite time? They furnish convenient perches for loafers, and underneath them all kinds of filth and litter are accumulating. Thousands of pedestrians are daily forced to use the streets where these stands block the sidewalks.

Individual property owners have been urged to keep their premises looking as attractive as possible in order that the Bicentennial visitors may be favorably impressed by the beauty of the Nation's Capital. Why, then, should the commission be allowed to give Pennsylvania avenue the appearance of a third-rate street carnival?

DISABLED VETERAN CHARTERS REVOKED

Disbanding of State Bodies in Alabama and Nebraska Laid to Dissension.

San Diego, June 21 (A.P.).—Announcement was made at the annual convention of the Disabled American Veterans here today that its executive committee had revoked the charters of the Nebraska and Alabama State organizations.

The Nebraska State Department and the Wildcat Post, Omaha, were ousted, Vivian Corbly, national adjutant, said, as a result of internal dissension and inability to adjust differences with the national organization. The D. A. V. post at Lincoln, Nebr., and one post in Omaha were not affected by the action.

The Alabama charter was revoked as a result of the election at the State convention of a man generally known to be ineligible to the post of commander, Mr. Corbly said.

Mr. Corbly also announced that President Hoover had signed a House bill incorporating the D. A. V. nationally.

"The action gives the D. A. V. the status of a Government agency," he said, "and serves further to stabilize it."

The D. A. V. parade, in which blind and crippled veterans marched to the stirring tunes of 1917, was the morning feature of the convention.

Detective Is Indicted In Death of Veteran

Marion, N. C., June 21 (A.P.).—W. A. Banks, railway detective, was indicted on a first degree murder charge today by a McDowell County grand jury investigating the fatal shooting last week of Louis Chiapetta, Houston, Tex., homeward-bound bonus marcher.

Chiapetta was shot in the abdomen while sleeping in a freight car here. His companions said the shot was fired by Banks after the latter had kicked and cursed some of the veterans. The wounded man died yesterday and Banks' bond was set at $10,000. The officer has made no statement in regard to the case.

House Inquiry Is Voted Into Postal Contracts

(Associated Press.)

The House yesterday ordered an investigation of postoffice leases and air and ocean mail contracts. The vote was 189 to 139.

The inquiry was sponsored by Representative Sabath (Democrat), Illinois. The sum of $10,000 was provided for costs of the investigation. It was opposed by the Republican side on grounds of economy. The vote followed party lines.

BONUS ARMY PLANS POLICY CONVENTION

expects to make final plans with railroad officials at a conference today.

Many members of Congress have told Gen. Glassford they were anxious to aid units from their States to get transportation home. The police head said he believed the thought of riding home as passengers might entice more men to leave.

"The peak has been reached," Gen. Glassford said. "By the middle of next week, more than half of the veterans will have left." He declared the men have been departing quietly in small numbers, without reporting to their officers in the camps.

"We are losing lots of men," Waters said, but added that he expected new recruits to arrive as a result of his enlistment drive. Waters estimated there are now 19,000 men in the city, although Capt. William G. Stott claims to be feeding only 15,000.

Agreement Is Denied.

After disclosure of the plan to evacuate the men by Gen. Glassford, Waters denied that any agreement had been made on the evacuation program. Any agreement, Gen. Glassford said, would be dependent upon the acquisition of permanent quarters for the nucleus of the army which would remain here to further the bonus cause.

Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas, is No. 1 member of the newly formed organization of the bonus expeditionary forces. Gen. Glassford was the recipient of the second card issued.

Meanwhile, Waters sought to soothe the rankled minds in the ranks by appointing George Alman, deposed billeting officer of the army, to the position of national "canten officer." Alman, who was ousted after he had quarreled with Capt. Stott over quartering the men, was refused permission to speak yesterdya at Camp Glassford, on Pennsylvania avenue near Fourth street northwest. He intended to take his case to the ranks.

Disabled veterans in the ranks will be taken on a sightseeing tour today by a fleet of 60 cabs, offered by the Premier Cab Co.

BOY'S ARM CRUSHED IN ELEVATOR SHAFT

glass of the door on the floor below and rest his feet on one of the fragments left in the frame. Meanwhile, a frantic resident of the apartment had sent in a call for the fire rescue squad.

The youth never for a minute lost his nerve. "Hurry up," he told the firemen. "If you don't get me out of here pretty soon, I'll miss supper, and I always like to be on time for my meals."

Members of the fire rescue squad on the fourth floor lowered a rope to Perley which he managed to fasten in a half hitch around his waist with his free arm. Then a rope was tied around his feet by firemen on the third floor.

During the proceedings the boy continued to wisecrack with the firemen who talked with him to keep his spirits up.

When he was securely fastened by ropes the elevator was slowly started back to the third floor. The firemen on the third flood drew his body into them as the car came down.

"I didn't worry much," Perley said at the hospital last night. "I knew they would get me down safely."

The youth is a second year student at McKinley High School.

Bonus Men's Wives Threaten Invasion

Pittsburgh Women Vow to March Here Unless Aid Is Voted.

Pittsburgh, June 21 (A.P.).—Mrs. George Huey, of Pittsburgh, said today that if Congress does not give war veterans a cash bonus by the end of the week, she will lead a group of wives of former soldiers to the Capital to join bonus seekers encamped there.

"The wives of the veterans already in Washington are as much in need as the men," she said.

"If immediate action is not taken on the bonus this week, a group of veterans' wives will leave for Washington Saturday. And if we go we will stay until the bonus is passed."

Mrs. Huey's husband has been in the Capital for two weeks. Between 300 and 500 veterans from Pittsburgh plan to leave for Washington tomorrow to join their former "buddies." A committee is active today borrowing trucks and soliciting food for the trip.

Sentence of Al Capone In Contempt Dismissed

Chicago, June 21 (A.P.).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals dismissed a six months jail sentence against Al Capone today. But it doesn't lessen the time the deposed czar of gangs must spend behind prison bars.

The sentence was for contempt of court in evading a grand jury summons. The appeals court ruled the sentence should be served concurrently with the income tax evasion term.

U. S. Trade Probe Will Carry Over

Inquiry Into Competition to Be Continued at Next Session.

Drive of the Shannon committee of the House of Representatives to end steadily increasing competition by the Government with private business is to continue over into the next session of Congress, Representative Joseph B. Shannon (Democrat), Missouri, said yesterday.

Today the committee, meeting in open session in the caucus room in the House Office Building at 10 a. m., is to hear Representative Will R. Wood (Republican), of Indiana, who has been some time gathering data to show how necessary is a detailed investigation and to indicate just what such an investigatioin would disclose.

Just what legislation will be proposed to eliminate various Army posts and Government bureaus from competing with private business in everything from pajamas and night gowns to sets of dishes, Representative Shannon, committee chairman, is not prepared to say. But it seems certain that Congress will give a wide open ear to the pleas of private business against the expansion of Army post exchanges and various other aspects of Government competition with citizens.

"SALLIES" BIG HELP TO BONUS VETERANS

"Hut" Established at Camp and Smiles Rule as Men Throng Around.

The "Sallies," as Salvation Army workers were called in the World War, are on the job again at Camp Marks, in Anacostia, where thousands of bonus marchers have gathered in mud, heat and hope to wait for some kind of congressional action.

Using a green sail cloth as the foundation for the "hut," the "Sallies" are carrying on their war-time program on behalf of the men with smiles and good cheer, not asking questions about the political aspects of the bonus struggle or the wisdom of the visitors remaining in the National Capital. They are simply extending the right hand of sympathy and good fellowship to these former soldiers of the Wrold War and giving them books, games, tobacco, writing paper, a place in which to enjoy a game of cards with friends and other comforts. The "hut" is in command of Comrade Willis, assisted by Salvation Army lassies, and Maj. James Asher, divisional commander, is giving it his supervision as well.

Yesterday the Salvation Army distributed hundreds of books, magazines, packs of playing cards and writing paper, as well as clothes, which has been collected for them by the emergency committee of the Woman's Naval Service at its temporary headquarters, 206 Ourry Building, Eighth and G streets northwest.

The committee renewed its call yesterday for contributions of blankets, smoking tobacco, reading material, toilet articles, writing paper and other small comforts to be distributed to the bonus marchers through the Salvation Army. Its headquarters are open daily from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 2 p. m. to 5 p. m. for gifts.

Veterans Urged To Demand Work

Former Soldiers' Idleness Stressed by Babcock in California.

San Diego, Calif., June 21 (A.P.).—One hundred per cent disability pay or the opportunity to work should be demanded by disabled American veterans of the Government, E. Claude Babcock, of Washington, D. C., national commander, told the twelfth annual convention of the disabled veterans.

Approximately one-fourth of all service-connected disabled men in the United States are employable, but unemployed because of war disabilities," said Mr. Babcock, in reporting to the 1,500 registered delegates.

The veterans employment service of the Department of Labor was commended by Mr. Babcock, who said the disabled men had 32 times as much chance of Federal appointment as had nondisabled men. A parade was to be held today. The convention will close Saturday.

REALLY DIFFERENT PERFORMANCE

Slip-Stream Body
A new body of unusual beauty. V-radiator and Beavertail back reduce air resistance, thus adding miles to top speed. (All models.)

X-Dual Frame, Super-rigid
Strongest type of frame. The massive inside girders extend practically entire length of chassis, giving car, virtually, a double frame. (All models.)

THE Slip-Stream body design avoids wind resistance and adds to Nash top speed. The X-Dual frame protects the car against road-twist and helps lengthen car life.

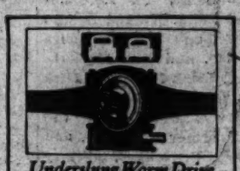
Full Range Ride Control, at the dash, assures you of smooth roads all the time regardless of road, load, or speed.

Twin Ignition increases power 22%, adds 5 miles to top speed, and saves gas. Automatic chassis lubrication saves you time, money, and lengthens life of car.

Silent underslung worm gear rear axle enables Nash to lower over-all height nearly 3 inches. And this lower center of gravity makes the car wonderfully easy to handle, steadies it to the road at high speed or turning corners sharply, and mechanically is one of the most trouble-free units known to motor car engineering.

Bohnalite aluminum alloy pistons and connecting rods lengthen motor life and make get-away far faster, finer, and smoother.

These and many other new developments give the new Nash a really different kind of performance. We cordially invite you to drive a Nash and see for yourself.



Underslung Worm Drive
Lowers center of gravity nearly 3 inches, without decreasing head room or road clearance. (Ambassador, Advanced, and Special Eights.)

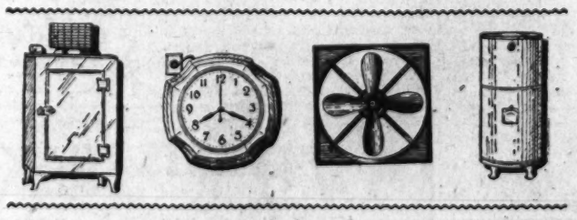
FAST as MODERN TRANSPORTATION— as ACCURATE as a FINE WATCH

The Modern Electric Range cooks meals with speed! At the mere snap of a switch you have immediate heat. There is no flame, therefore there is no smoke, no soot, no odor and no fumes. The automatic time clock and temperature control are as accurate as a fine watch—you merely set them and forget them—entire meals cook themselves without the least bit of attention.

Here in Washington Electric Cookery is really cheap. The average family pays less than $3 per month to cook by this speedy method. Our electric rate for cooking is as little as 2¢ per K. W. H.—one of the lowest in the entire country. In addition to this extremely low rate Electric Cookery brings you further economies because you actually use current only a small portion of the time—stored heat does the rest. Too, you save on food purchases because there is so much less shrinkage of meats and vegetables cooked this modern way.

Many housewives have already adopted the modern kitchen idea. It saves them time, money and labor. If you have not already asked about it, go to your electrical dealer at your earliest convenience for complete details.



FOR perfection in cleanliness and convenience, the Modern Electric Kitchen also includes the Electric Refrigerator for keeping foods at a constant, healthful temperature; the Electric Clock for absolute accuracy in timekeeping; the Electric Ventilating Fan to keep the cool, fresh air of the Electric Kitchen in constant circulation; the Electric Water Heater which assures a plentiful supply of hot water at all times, without the soot, odor, and fumes so common to other types. These Electric Servants, like the Electric Range, operate for surprisingly small cost.

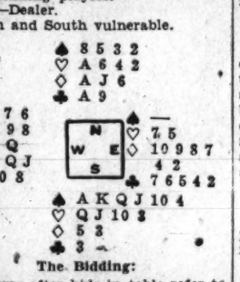
AN INVIDIOUS DISTINCTION.

I HAVE frequently stated that the most eloquent of all declarations is the pass. As regulation bids paint the picture of the great majority of hands, Overcalls tell the story of others. Forcing bids picture the holdings which are strong enough to guarantee game if partner holds even distributional values. Preemptive bids paint a picture of unusual distribution, and passes tell the story of hands upon which the holder at the moment can suggest no further action. Some passes are made because the hands are weak. Other passes are strategic and are based on the hope, generally founded on something that has already transpired, that the opponents will overbid.

Today's hand, sent to me by Dr. E. Reed Whittemore, of New Haven, Conn., is the story of a pass, after a Takeout Double and a Redouble by the partner of the Opening bidder, that was converted into a bonus greater than would have been made by the bidding and making of a Grand Slam. Surely, as Dr. Whittemore suggested, the hand is a possible candidate for the distinction of being the world's worst bid on the part of the defending players.

East—Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
			Pass
1♠	Dbl.(1)	Redbl.	Pass(3)
Pass	Pass(3)

1—A bad double. The hand, it is true, contains 3 honor-tricks, but the distribution is not such as to warrant this bid. An Overcall of two clubs, thereby erecting a possible bidding defense against North and South's game, if not Slam, declaration, would be much sounder.

2—East should bid. A bid of two diamonds at this time might have saved at least part of the penalty in store for the East and West partnership.

3—Utterly inexcusable. West explained it later by saying that in a temporary lapse he did not realize that he still could rescue himself.

The Ace of clubs in Dummy won the first trick. Then the adverse trumps were drawn, the hearts finessed and run down. Following this, South led three more rounds of trumps, the remaining cards in his hand being the five and three of diamonds. West held the King-Queen of diamonds and the club Queen. Dummy held the Ace-Knave of diamonds and the club 9. West, thus, on the lead of the last trump, was helpless. Whatever card he chose to throw, the Dummy must take the remaining tricks.

The squeeze, which developed, enabled the Declarer to win all 13 tricks, and the score was thus set down, the total points accrued for the North and South players, including the rubber bonus, being 3,570.

One spade, redoubled	120
Five honors in one hand	150
Contract, vulnerable, redoubled	200
6 overtricks, vulnerable, redoubled	2400
Rubber bonus	700
	3570

Had West elected to defend, he could have made, in actual play, four clubs, and thus even a bid of seven clubs would have been a "paying penalty" for him. I might add that Dr. Whittemore, who held the South hand, played it in masterly fashion for the maximum attainable.

TODAY'S POINTER.

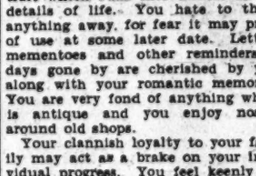
As the cornerstone of correct bidding, there is nothing more important to remember than what the future of any declaration you may make may be. For instance, you should not double for a penalty unless prepared for partner's response or able to make a bid in turn which will not be disastrous.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

North—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.



Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

What Today Means

"GEMINI."

IF June 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 3:40 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 10:30 p. m. to 11:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:40 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:20 p. m.

Depressing influences will prevail June 22; solitude should be avoided and amusements or diversions sought to dispel the spiritual gloom. Adverse for health and invalid's charts will show "a bad day" and possible setbacks. No business complications for those in ordinary walks of life.

The child born on this June 22 will be capable of an infinite variety of moods. Its emotions and feelings will be the dominating factors in its life, more than intellect or reason. It will be somewhat a slave to its weaknesses and appetites. It will love show and display and will seek first-class passage through life.

It is difficult to place a finger on your dominant characteristic if you were born on June 22. Your moods are too changeable for you to be a "certain" person. You live entirely in your feelings, which range from sentimentalism to the highest and purest of emotions. You are psychic enough to easily feel the impressions around you, and often feel silently hurt or wounded. You are fanciful, romantic, and probably superstitious.

You have a pronounced economical streak, and are very fond of saving, a trait which runs into almost all the details of life. You hate to throw anything away, for fear it may prove of use at some later date. Letters, mementoes and other reminders of days gone by are cherished by you, along with your romantic memories. You are very fond of anything which is antique and you enjoy nosing around old shops.

Your clannish loyalty to your family may act as a brake on your individual progress. You feel keenly everything that affects any member of your blood relations and you will not listen to a word against them. When ailing you become morbidly nervous and your own mental state aggravates the real trouble. Your stomach is the sensitive part of your system, and worry and anxiety bring on indigestion.

Successful people born on June 22:

Paul C. Morphy, chess player.
Julian Hawthorne, author.
Charlie Murray, film artist.
Frank Damrosch, musician.
Arthur Bourchier, actor.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

Girl Graduating From Elementary School May Be Given Brushes or Bath Articles—Cosmetics Not Necessary.

A "PROUD MOTHER" writes: "Your recent article urging readers to make every day Mother's Day sure give her a gift of beauty, has made me think that perhaps the tables could be turned and mother give daughter some. What would you think appropriate for a young girl graduating from elementary school?"

* * * *

Most young girls graduating from their first school are between the ages of 12 and 14, I believe. For them beauty in its first form—cleanliness—is the finest foundation gift any one can present. A gift of a good hair brush, pretty and practical would be suitable. A bath brush, too. And a clothes brush. An eyebrow brush, or a few of these tiny brushes will be welcome and the young miss is not too young to start training every little hair of her brows to stay put and in place. Get her a sewing basket with darning thread and needles. That seems far removed from beauty, but it isn't. It will help instill a feeling of responsibility and lay the foundation for good grooming.

Bath articles are very welcome and there are any number of intriguing things to choose from. You might give daughter a box of bath dusting powder, even a bottle of bath salts (to make the daily cleansing tub take on a new role of importance and fascination for her), or a bottle of toilet water. There are bath mitts made of Turkish toweling which can be used instead of the more prosaic wash cloth. Or get her some towels with her own initials (young girls love the personal touch of initialed accessories), large, fluffy bath towels and smaller hand towels. I am laying so much stress on bath articles because I firmly believe that the daily cleansing tub at night and the cold shower and brisk Turkish towel rub in the morning are an important cleanliness foundation. And cleanliness is kin to beauty.

Too Young for Rouge and Powder.

As for cosmetics, the girl of 12 or 14 should need none. If she is particular to have sufficient water within and without and heeds all the other hygiene and health rules, her skin should have that smooth, clear, luminous quality that her older sisters strive so tc retain. More inner care, but less external applications. A little witch hazel if her skin is very oily, or a little skin food if her skin is very dry. Beyond that—nothing. As for rouge, powder or lipstick, naturalness is the order of the day. Under 16 is too young for rouge and powder, looks loveller without and there's no need for it.

Proud Mother (and all who are in your class), I hope the above suggestions will prove helpful. And if you wish my "Health Rules" bulletin to pass on to your daughter, simply send self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Yellow and brown make the checks of a chic woolen dress for fall, and then the couturiere has the happy idea of adding yellow and brown crepe de chine for collar and cuffs and front tie incrusted. (Courtesy of Jenny, Paris.)

NEW YORK, June 21.—Oh dear! Just when we have succeeded in training that coiffure, too!

Why, it took months, positively months, to train that coiffure so that it would stay put when only one side of the head was covered with a hat! And now what, now what!

Why, hats have decided to tip-tilt down in the front! Are we to have the eyebrowless ladies again—who only about eight or ten years ago had to hold their heads wa-a-a-y up in order to see at all?

Mebbe—mebbe.

For all Paris is whispering that hats "level with the eyes" are going to be the order for fall. Which means that for summer, too, many a hat will go "Edwardian" and find itself set squarely over two eyes instead of perilously over one ear.

Now we have to pay more attention to the backs of our coiffures, don't we? And surely elaborate back curls, puffs—and long white and slender necks will come back into style, too.

* * * *

The most popular types of hats that are set at the new angle are the sailor and the turban. The sailors have two to two and a half inch brims and shallow, round crowns. While the turban has a tendency to roundness, both emphasize their particular angles by being worn as they are—straight on the head and parallel with miladi's eyebrows.

* * * *

Flowers in the mode must be flat—don't forget! Meaning that you wear 'em flattened out so that they look almost like memories—pressed flowers in books, letters— /ho doesn't remember? Bracelets, cravats, belts — all the flower fancies in today's mode must be of flat flowers, though—maybe that is why they have come back into style.

* * * *

I'm not going to tell you that we have the most wonderful, remarkable, unusual, etcetera ideas for hiding telephones—in this week's illustrated leaflet. What I am going to tell you is that the leaflet is good, and that there are really some unusual and novel ideas in it for hiding telephones. And that you will enjoy making them yourself during the summer—and can easily fro our illustrated directions, which tell you how to go about it, step by step. So if you care to send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's leaflet it will tell you how to make telephone hidies of various sorts—no dolls, though.

Fashion French Pronunciation.

Coquelicot (ko-kel-i-ko) poppy; coquillage (ko-kee-yazh) shell; corail (kor-eye) coral; corsage (kor-sazh) bodice.

* * * *

A little sleeveless coat worn with a dress—both in brown and yellow checks, which look more like a yellow woolen with brown stripes forming checks, and there you have a charming early fall frock from the latest collection of Jenny. The collar and cuffs of crepe de chine in yellow and brown are interesting and colorful—and the tie is appliqued flat to the bodice, after all.

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

A LAWN REQUIRES REGULAR CARE.

THIS is the time when you must take regular care of your lawn.

It must be mowed carefully and regularly. Do not allow the tall seed stalks to form, for if they do, no matter how fine a variety of grass you may have, it will appear coarse and unsightly.

When the grass becomes too tall and is then mowed, you will find that the sod is no longer smooth in texture, nor is it a good, clear green. In fact, it is usually a dull brown color which gives the appearance of dead grass. When a lawn reaches this stage, it usually takes several weeks to recover. Regular mowing, at the height of three-fourths of an inch will prevent this injury. A little later one inch will be better than three-fourths.

Most people do not understand how grass grows. Seed stalks are produced when the grass is not cut, but if it is mowed regularly, as soon as it reaches the knives of the mower, it will be stimulated and roots and creeping stems and leaves will be produced instead of seed stalks.

If mowed regularly it will be beautiful and green at all times. Sometimes turf grasses require more frequent cuttings. Where there is an abundance of rain or where a sod has been well fertilized so that plenty of food is available, you may mow grass as often as twice a week and have most excellent results.

After the middle of August is a good time to remove plantain and other weeds from your lawn. Dandelions may then be uprooted by the merest twist of the wrist, since at this season the roots lie close to the surface. After each weed is gone you should sod the bare spot. Carry a small bag of seed and soil about with you, reseeding as you remove the weeds.

Iron sulphate is now being used extensively for eradicating weeds. This chemical can be purchased from any drug store. It is very cheap. Merely add one pound and one-half to a gallon of water. Mix the solution in a wooden bucket (never metal) and spray it over the weed areas. It may cause the surrounding grass to appear injured if it touches it, but it seldom injures a lawn permanently.

Helping the Homemaker

By NANCY CAREY

Mixing and How It Should Be Done

WELL, Mrs. J. K. M., next to measuring ingredients comes the care of combining them, and this is done in three ways, namely, stirring, beating and cutting and folding. When we stir a mixture we do so by a circular motion, stirring until all ingredients are thoroughly blended. When we beat a mixture we turn the ingredients over and over, thus bringing all the mixture to the surface.

And when we cut and fold a mixture, we do so by the use of two motions, one with a spoon, using a vertical downward motion, which is known as cutting, and the other by turning the mixture over and over, allowing the spoon to come in contact with the bottom of the bowl. Each one of these methods of mixing has a different purpose.

When we stir a mixture the purpose is to mix the ingredients thoroughly. When we beat it we incorporate a large amount of air, and when we cut and fold, we prevent the air already introduced from escaping.

And so, in addition to careful measuring, we must also take care of the mixing thereof.

And I hope that with this information you will no longer beat your cake after the addition of the egg whites, for these should be folded in, and not beaten, as you say has been your custom.

Dash of pepper
2 cupfuls onions—sliced
½ cupful cream or milk

Cover onions with boiling water and cook for five minutes. Drain. Cover again with boiling water and cook until soft. Drain and rub through a sieve. Melt butter in saucepan, add flour and seasonings and stir until thoroughly blended. Pour the hot stock on gradually, stirring constantly; bring to the boiling point and boil three minutes. Add the onions and one-half cupful of cream or milk. Additional seasoning may be added to taste.

Sour Milk Biscuits.

2 cupfuls flour
½ teaspoonful soda
2 tablespoonfuls butter
2 tablespoonfuls baking powder
½ teaspoonful salt
¾ cupful sour cream or milk—thick

Sift the dry ingredients and mix them well. Cut in the butter with a knife or work it in with the tips of the fingers. Add the sour cream until the given quantity is used, more if necessary to make a soft dough. Drop into muffin pans, thoroughly greased, and bake in a moderate oven until done or toss on floured board, pat out to ½-inch thickness, cut with a biscuit cutter and bake in a quick oven.

THE WEIGHT GUIDE.

For individual assistance, write to Nancy Carey, sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope and give age, weight, height and habits of life.

Answers to Readers.

Dear Miss Carey—I am 21 years of age, 5 feet 3 inches tall and weigh (don't gasp) 169 pounds. I have lost seven pounds after dieting for three weeks. I eat the same thing each day for breakfast, luncheon and dinner. Do you think if I used a calorie system of dieting, I would be allowed a greater variety of foods? I should like to weigh about 130 pounds.

FLORENCE.

You would feel very much better weighing about 125 or 130 pounds, Florence, but don't be in too much of a hurry to get there, please! Remember that you are much more likely to reach your normal weight and to stay there permanently if you exercise precaution and good judgment in your schedule of diet and exercise.

There is no doubt that by following a calorie system of reducing, a greater variety of foods is allowed. Just so long as the daily allowance is not exceeded we may eat whatever foods we wish. A little study of caloric values, however, will soon show you that too concenerated foods are not advisable. They use up the allowance long before the appetite show you that too concentrated foods as sweets and starches are not only very high in caloric value, you see, but are also very quickly assimilated.

If you should like, we shall be very glad to send you our folder of reducing suggestions. This will explain to you all about caloric values and will help you plan your menus accordingly. You will find that a more varied diet will be more satisfactory in every way. Health and digestion are very often seriously impaired by too much monotony in foods. That is why nature furnishes us with so many, many varieties. Wise mother that she is, she knew that man would not eat merely for sustenance, but for enjoyment and pleasure as well. And just because you are reducing you need not punish yourself to such an extent. Give that stomach of yours a little something to look forward to at every meal. Surprise it occasionally and see how decently it will treat you in return.

How to Keep Well

TAKING IODINE.

THE veterinary medical profession advocates periodic giving of a very small dose of iodine to all kinds of domestic animals in those parts of the country in which the soil and water are deficient in iodine. Opinion as to which sections have soil that is deficient in iodine may be based on several kinds of information. One is the prevalence of goiter, myxedema and cretinism among men and domestic animals. Based on this information, we have known for more than a quarter of a century that certain regions were goiter belts.

Systematic examination of drafted men during the World War made it possible to say more certainly just what were the goiter belts. Nearly 20 years ago the authorities, as well as research students, began examining water supplies to discover how much iodine they contained. Almost any official laboratory can tell its clients whether the local water supply contains enough iodine. Something like five years ago the systematic examination of field, garden and orchard products was begun in certain sections. A few State laboratories can now tell their people whether locally grown vegetables and fruits are rich or poor in iodine.

The original source of this metal is the fire-made rocks. As these are worn down by the weather the iodine finds its way into the soil. It is taken up by pasture grasses and other plant life. Some of it goes into solution and finds its way into wells, streams, lakes and oceans. Since the sea is the end of the chain, seaweed and seafish are rather rich in the element.

In the goiter belt farmers complain that some of their cows, hogs, sheep, dogs and horses have "big neck," or goiter. Every now and then a farmer complains of hairlessness among his young stock. Veterinary research has shown that goiter and hairlessness in live stock are caused by iodine hunger. Furthermore, this research has shown that if brood animals are given food poor in iodine they are uncertain breeders, their young are apt to be weaklings, and to die easily, they grow poorly, some are hairless and many have goiter. They find that giving brood animals some extra iodine will cause them to breed better, to have larger broods, and to beget young that are more vigorous, have glistening full coat and freedom from goiter. If it was given to milk cows they gave more milk and of better quality.

The preparation usually given was iodide of potash. One method is to dissolve 1 ounce of iodide of potash in one gallon of water and then mix one teaspoon or more of this solution in the feed, or to put it in drinking water or salt. A cow should have about one-half a grain of the salt, or about 1 teaspoon of the solution.

Another method consists in putting 1 five-grain tablet of the salt in the water trough once a week. Another is to dissolve two-thirds of an ounce of the salt in 1,000 pounds of food concentrate. This is given especially to animals soon to bear young. One-half a grain a week is enough for a ewe. It is generally agreed that giving too much is more harmful than giving too little.

The experience of stock men indicates that persons who live in the goiter belt, or where the water and home-grown foods are poor in iodine, will do well to put a little of this element in their food or drink. Those who are most apt to need it are those with myxedema, cretinism and some other thyroid troubles; present women, especially those who have borne sickly, feeble babies; rapidly growing children; possibly young persons whose hair is disposed to drop out and, especially, the totally bald young persons.

The dose taken should not exceed one-half grain of iodine of potash a week. It can be eaten in salt or dissolved in water and put in water or milk, or on salads and other foods.

THERE IS DANGER.

Mrs. E. S. writes:

Can a mother whose child is down with the measles carry the germ to another child whose mother she works for? Or must that child come in direct contact with the child who has the measles?

REPLY.

Much the most important method of spreading is by direct exposure. However, if the mother is taking care of her sick child it is hazardous for her to leave the sickroom and come in contact with susceptible children. Furthermore, it is illegal.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Great Bitterness Here.

DEAR Frances McDonald: Terrence, who is a slave to his wife, wonders in your column why women laugh at their husbands' love and devotion. I wonder how many men know anything about love? Some men think they love their wives, but they usually love themselves much more. Not having a slave for a husband one fails to understand just how much one would be inspired by that type of devotion. Some husbands are tyrants, reared by weak, indulgent mothers. His mother having given him his own way, he expects his wife to do the same. Whether he gets it or not depends upon his wife's temperament.

If a woman expects too much of love it is partly the fault of the psychologists who tell us that the love of a man is beautiful, understanding, long suffering, patient and kind. So we marry the man who loves us and experience the opposite. He immediately takes the attitude that "having caught his train why run for it?" Of all people he comes into contact with his wife's feelings are least considered. He nags and finds fault with things that really do not matter. Because he pays expenses he may criticise everything. He speaks to her like he would not dare speak to anyone else. Sympathy? One finds it in the dictionary. Understanding? Not so you could notice it. He might bore his wife sick but he would never understand why he should not be her only interest forever and ever. His egoism is boundless. He would kiss her one minute and glare at her the next. And he wonders why she laughs! However, one does not always laugh because one is amused.

I am fed up on being told what magnificent sacrifices a man makes when he marries. If marriage costs him so much, why does he go to so little trouble to make it worth while? The ability of a husband to consider his own wishes more important than those of his wife and still be perfectly satisfied with himself, is amazing.

It is impossible for a man to hold the affections of his wife he at least might command her respect. For the day a woman's feelings of affection and respect are replaced by indifference and disgust is a bitter one, for she has nothing left, unless she is able to successfully substitute the love of her children and material interests for the love of a man.

Terrence wonders why woman is crowned the faithful sex. Well, a woman might be a hundred times more inclined to be unfaithful than her husband but she has a few more things to consider than he would. Some husbands do not deserve faithful wives, and if women were as indifferent to their reputation as men are to their wives' affections, while they have them, some of the egotistical, nagging, fault-finding husbands might have plenty of reason to feel sorry for themselves. The world is not interested in why women behave as they do, therefore we will get the credit for being the faithful sex, regardless of what we might do if we could get away with it. LAUGH.

Bitterness like this is poison to the soul. Here is a woman whose handwriting proclaims her sensitive, artistic, conscientious. Quite evidently she has married for love, hoping for happiness. Instead she has become what this letter reveals—cynical and skeptical, bitter and contemptuous. And let us see just why. Her husband was spoiled by his mother. He is self-concerned as a result. Sees everything from his own little corner of life. Is in a word ridiculous as only the self-concerned can be. Very well. What of it? Why should his infirmity destroy his wife's spiritual perfections? Answer? The wife is as ill-prepared to meet life as he. Her mother failed quite as seriously as his.

Life—including husbands and other phenomena—is a matter of viewpoint. If we expect it to be a magic carpet to transform us to bliss, we are little better than children. If we admit that it is a series of situations, tragic or humorous as we determine, then we are adults and will meet any situation with serenity.

None of us ever get the man we think we marry. He hangs up his hat and sheds his shining armor without a qualm. We can either take it philosophically or go into hysterics. The wise woman chalks up one more life experience, and goes on to the next chapter. Denouncing the poor and sorry knight for the shabby picture he presents without his armor is soul-racking business—and fruitless to boot. The sane way is to forget the armor and try to love the man—shabby though he be.

We hope our saddened reader will ponder these few words, and forget the armor that was shed revealing an unheroic spoiled son of a foolish mother. Perhaps that sorry spectacle may still conceal the heart of a man—puzzled quite as much as her own heart is puzzled by what life can do to love!

Are you troubled over some situation in your life? Why not talk it over? This paper has selected Frances McDonald to conduct this column because of her wide experience with problems of marriage. You may consult her in perfect confidence. We hope that you will.

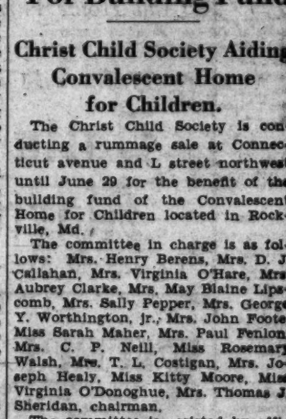
"No laundry bills for handkerchiefs!

now we're all using KLEENEX disposable tissues



"I CERTAINLY cut down our laundry bills when I started using Kleenex for handkerchiefs!" What a joy to find a way to economize without hardship!

Kleenex is a real pleasure to use. It's a handkerchief-size tissue, made of rayon-cellulose, and is far softer than any handkerchief made of linen, silk or cotton.

Kleenex is many times more absorbent, too—therefore is a great comfort during hay fever or colds.

But here's the big thing about Kleenex. Once used, you simply destroy it! No washing. No laundry bills. No storing away in laundry bags, to scatter germs through clothing.

Kleenex costs so little. You can use many tissues for the price of having one handkerchief laundered! Kleenex is handy in other ways, too—for polishing spectacles, for a quick shoe-shine—for shining bathroom fixtures. And ideal for removing cosmetics.

COUNTY ORDINANCE DECISION DEFERRED

Judge McCarthy to Determine Duties of Court Before Taking Action.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Fairfax 168.

Until he has definitely determined the duties of the court in passing upon ordinances proposed by the county board of supervisors, under an act passed by the last session of the Virginia Assembly, Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the Fairfax County Circuit Court, will not approve the proposed county ordinances governing the establishment and maintenance of commercial hog farms and public dance halls in the county.

The new law gives the Fairfax County board of supervisors the same power to adopt ordinances and regulations as has heretofore been exercised by Arlington County and cities of the first class in the State. The law also provides that such regulations shall not be effective until approved by the judge of the circuit court after he has heard evidence of their necessity in open court.

A hearing upon the proposed dance hall regulation was held yesterday in the Fairfax Courthouse and the question as to the court's duties and power under the law was raised by opponents of the ordinance. It was stated that the ruling of the court had the effect of a prejudicial decree as to whether the board of supervisors was exercising its constitutional police powers under the statute.

Judge McCarthy stated that there might be a question as to whether the court's duties were ministerial or judicial, and he did not believe it the duty of the court to tell the supervisors what they should or should not do.

Attorneys for the owners of certain dance halls appeared and after Judge McCarthy ruled that testimony of witnesses was not necessary, argued against the proposed ordinance as being unreasonable.

The hearing on the proposed commercial hog farm ordinance was held two weeks ago, and Judge McCarthy stated that they involved the same legal questions as to the court's power.

Chevy Chase Land Rezoning Favored

Col. Barroll Tells Commissioners It Would Help County.

Rezoning of the property of the Chevy Chase Land Co. on Connecticut avenue near Chevy Chase Lake to enable the construction of apartment houses and stores is indorsed by Col. Morse K. Barroll, of Saul road, who says he is owner of considerable land on both sides of Connecticut Avenue between North Chevy Chase and Chevy Chase View, in a letter received yesterday by the Montgomery County commissioners. Col. Barroll says that such an increase in the taxable basis can not help but be of great aid to the progress of the county.

A large scale map of the political divisions of the county, prepared by Serge K. Dubroff, of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, was received by the commissioners and ordered hung on the hearing room wall. The application for a permit to operate the Chevy Chase Lake dance pavilioin also was received.

CANDLE CEREMONY ENDS 4-H CONCLAVE

Farm Boys and Girls Are Addressed by Federal Agriculture Experts.

A unique candle lighting ceremony marked the conclusion of the 4-H encampment in Washington last night.

G. E. Farley, State camp leader from Massachusetts, from a lighted candle imparted a flame to candles held by the 150 delegates to the sessions here during the last meeting of the convention. The remains of the candles will be taken back to the State from which the delegates came and will be used there to light a torch. The significance of the ritual is that the spirit of the club will be carried to the many rural districts where the 4-H organization operates.

A number of the delegates have already left for their homes and the remainder will probably leave today. R. W. Dunlop, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, described the functions of the various governmental bureaus to the gathering last night. He explained the value of the departments as a source of information and aid to farmers.

Carl Williams, member of the Farm Board, said yesterday that cooperation between farmers and the Federal Farm Board would relieve depressed conditions. The board without the assistance of the farmers was of little value, he asserted. Mutual operations between that agency and the rural district, he claimed, was necessary. He predicted that the members of the club will do all of their buying and selling cooperatively, when they grow up.

New Oil Station Hit By Bethesda Chamber

Construction or operation of any further gasoline stations on the Rockville pike is opposed in a resolution adopted by the board of directors of the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce, it was announced yesterday by John A. Overholt, secretary.

The resolution specifically opposes the proposed station near the Waverly Sanitarium, claiming that it would destroy the peaceful surroundings necesary for the effective operation of the sanitarium. It further opposes any industrial activity on the Rockville pike between Bethesda and Rockville. The board states that it is interested primarily in the orderly development of the adjacent territory in Montgomery County.

Arlington Credit Group to Meet.

The Arlington County Credit Association will hold its monthly meeting tonight in the postoffice building in Clarendon at 8 o'clock. Charles J. Martin, Eastern field representative of the National Retail Credit Men's Association, and County Manager Roy S. Braden are announced as speakers.

Brandywine Parents Veto Consolidation of Schools

Although school officials say the enrollment of the Brandywine High School can be accommodated in either the Surrattsville or Marlboro schools, patrons of the Brandywine institution have voted, 96 to 26, against the proposed consolidation.

The suggestion that the pupils of the Brandywine school be taken by bus to either Marlboro or Surrattsville was made by a delegation from the parent-teacher association. This delegation said that it expected little opposition to its scheme, and called a meeting of the association to ratify. This first meeting favored the proposal, 19 to 13, but a second meeting was called, in view of the small attendance at the first. It was the second meeting which turned it down.

After the delegation had proposed to the school board that Brandywine be merged with one of the other schools Nicholas Orem, superintendent of schools, was directed to learn whether there was room for Brandywine's 50 or more pupils. Mr. Orem said last night that an additional class room would be necessary if the children were taken to Surrattsville, but that a merger with either school was feasible. The consolidation of the Brandywine school has been discussed since a reduction in its teaching force was made necessary by a decreased enrollment.

LEGAL POINT IS WON BY BLUE LINE BUSES

Supreme Court Grants Appeal From Fine Against Alexandria Line.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Washington-Alexandria Buses, known locally as the Blue Line, has won a preliminary skirmish in its fight against the State Corporation Commission, which recently fined the bus company $100 on each of two counts for alleged hauling of passengers for hire within the State of Virginia without having a permit or franchise to operate.

The point won by the company was when the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia granted an appeal against the Commonwealth from the order of the corporation commission assessing the two fines.

The fines arose from the fact that the Blue Line has an interstate certificate, but no intrastate certificate from the corporation commission which would permit it to engage in traffic between local points in Alexandria or Arlington County, in addition to transporting passengers between Alexandria and Washington. The company is now understood to have abandoned its intrastate traffic, and its buses are now marked "Interstate traffic only." The Alexandria City Council also recently adopted an ordinance restricting the route of the Blue Line buses to that followed by interstate carriers whose traffic is carried through Alexandria.

City Collector Purvis Taylor, of Alexandria, will inaugurate tomorrow a personal canvass for the collection of delinquent taxes in the hope that the personal contact with the taxpayers will speed up collections. It is understood that approximately $25,000 in delinquent taxes is due, a large amount of which consists of the 50-cent tithe which is assessed when no real estate or personal taxes are levied.

Oriental Lodge, No. 6, Knights of Pythias, of Alexandria, will receive an official visit tonight from Col. Harold T. Ballard, of Fredericksburg. A class initiation in the rank of page will be conferred on twenty candidates, the class being named in honor of Col. Ballard, who is grand outer guard of the grand lodge of Virginia.

William Morgan, 44 years old, and Frank Hughes, 52, Washington, and R. W. Wilhoit, colored, of Alexandria, were each fined $10 and costs by Judge William S. Snow, in the Alexandria Police Court, yesterday on a charge of fishing at Hunting Creek and the dyke without a license. They were arrested by Game Warden Harry Johnson.

Thomas Alton Moore, aged 78 years, died yesterday at his home, 419 South Lee street, after a long illness. He was one of the owners of Moore's Foundry, but had retired from active participation in business several years ago. He is survived by the following children: William E. Moore, Mrs. Lee M. Watkins, Frank D. Moore and Miss Lena Moore, Alexandria, and A. A. Moore, of Washington. The deceased was a member of Alexandria Lodge No. 758, B. P. O. Elks.

The Alexandria Garden Club held a business meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Overton W. Price, with Mrs. Louis S. Scott, the president, conducting the meeting. Mrs. Richard Williams has recently been selected as the recording secretary, succeeding Mrs. Richard Hammett, who had served for over two years.

Paul E. Brown Made Judge Of New Court in Fairfax

McCarthy Names Head of County Trial Justice Tribunal.

JUDGE PAUL E. BROWN.

Judge Paul E. Brown of the Fairfax County Court of Juvenile and Domestic Relations yesterday afternoon was appointed judge of the newly created County Trial Justice Court by Judge Walter T. McCarthy of the County Circuit Court. Judge Brown qualified immediately by giving the necessary bond and will hold his first session of court this morning in the county courthouse. Judge McCarthy issued an order addressed to the justices of the peace of the county that all actions pending before them are to be certified to the trial court for hearing, even though warrants and summons have already been issued by the justice.

The trial justice law was adopted last week by the county board of supervisors and bridges the gap between the justice of the peace courts and the circuit court. The newly created court will have original jurisdiction in all misdemeanors, including first offenses against the State prohibition law, and all civil matters to any amount not exceeding $300. The justices of the peace will continue to have the same jurisdiction in issuing warrants for arrest, taking bonds and issuing summons, but are precluded from hearing the case and passing judgment. All matters tried before the justices will be heard in the new trial court.

Judge Brown, a resident of Fairfax, is 28 years old. He was born in Arnett, Okla., and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jennings E. Brown, of Five Oaks, Va. His youth was spent in southern Missouri, St. Louis, Madison, Indiana and Washington. His parents moved to Clifton Station in Fairfax County in 1918, where he attended the local school.

Judge Brown is a graduate of old Tech High School, of Washington, and attended Devitt Prep and Temple Business School. He was an employe in the Southern Railway offices in Washington from 1922 until 1927. He was graduated from the National University Law School in Washington in 1927 and was admitted to the Virginia bar in June, 1927. He immediately became associated with State Senator John W. Rust in the practice of law at Fairfax. He has been secretary of the Fairfax County Bar Association since January, 1929, and is a charter member and secretary of the Fairfax Rotary Club. He has been a commissioner in chancery of the circuit court of Fairfax County since 1928. He is married and has two children. Judge Brown stated last night that he intended to continue his private practice of law so far as it did not conflict with his court duties.

BAILIFF DECLARED PAID OUTSIDE LAW

Act Abolishing Arlington Office Effective March 28, Kelley Affirms.

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Declaring the act of the General Assembly at its last session, abolishing the office of bailiff of the county court, was an emergency act and became effective March 28, 1932, the date of passage, the Arlington County Board has illegally paid A. B. Eaton, bailiff since that time, Lyman M. Kelley, member of the board, said yesterday.

Mr. Kelley said he had just received his copy of the acts of the last session of the General Assembly and found that the bailiff has been acting contrary to law since March 28, 1932.

The records at the courthouse show Eaton received during April, $48, and in May, up to and including May 31, $50, making a total of $98, which Mr. Kelley says, will have to be refunded to the county. The bailiff is paid only for days the court is in session.

The matter, Mr. Kelley stated, will be brought up at the meeting of the county board on July 2.

He says the Commonwealth's attorney is the legal adviser to the board and it will be up to him to collect the money.

The acts of 1930 provided for appointment of a bailiff by the judge of the county court.

At the time of the appointment there developed much discussion among members of the county board as to the salary to be paid. After considerable debate on the question, the board voted to pay at the rate of $2 a day when acting.

It is understood that it was the purpose when the act was repealed at the last session, to place the court in charge of the sheriff, but there is nothing in the act giving the sheriff jurisdiction.

Sheriff Fields stated yesterday that unless he wishes to act under the old law prior to creation of the new county court which places the court under his jurisdiction, the county court will be without a bailiff.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

BECAUSE an editorial commentator on the Motion Picture Herald referred to certain of the sequences in "Bring 'em Back Alive," the extraordinary film of wild animal life opening Friday at RKO-Keith's, as having been made in a "compound," the impression seems to have gained currency that there is, after all, trickery of some kind in the depiction of certain scenes so thrilling that they seem almost too good to be true.

It may still be authoritatively stated that such is not the case.

In some quarters the idea seems to prevail that such a compound as is employed as a game preserve near Singapore, in the Straits Settlement, must be about the size of a wild animal cage at a circus! As well say that Franklin Square, or Thomas Circle, or even Potomac or Rock Creek Park is a fair approximation of Yellowstone!

The astounding battles to the death in "Bring 'em Back Alive"—which constitute the high points of excitement in the picture—were no synthetic scraps devised on the spur of the moment to simulate the real thing for the sole benefit of the camera. They were bona fide battles royal, staged by denizens of the jungle that have been bitter enemies since time began.

Frank Buck, author of the book whose title is borne by the picture, spent long, tedious weeks waiting for animal animosities to come to the boiling point. There were probably a good many first-rate fights remote from his carefully camouflaged cameras that he missed entirely. One can not be everywhere at the same time. That, however, is less important than the fact that more than once Buck and his staff happened to be where ferocious feuds broke out in all their primitive fury—not too close, mind you, but close enough so that with the aid of telescopic lenses and the usual mechanical aids of any well-equipped expedition into the wilds, some of the most astounding close-ups ever photographed were secured.

It is, of course, not necessary to rely on press agentry for corroboration of these facts. "Bring 'Em Back Alive" is already on view at the RKO Mayfair Theater in New York, where it is proving one of the most sensational "audience pictures" in the history of the cinema. It opened to the biggest first-day sale ever written into the records of the Mayfair, such crowds flocking to the premiere that mounted police had to be called out to clear the streets and keep traffic moving. It has been packing them in ever since.

It is expected by the picture's sponsors that the Washington engagement will likewise set a new high for exhibits of this nature.

"Bring 'Em Back Alive," by the way, was previewed by the press last midnight—too late to catch this column. I'll be dropping you a line about it!

Speaking of "Bring 'Em Back Alive," there are already in evidence in the lobby of the RKO-Keith Theater signs of the elaborate display Manager Hardie Meakin is arranging for this jungle classic.

Tiger skins, leopard skins, elephant tusks, hartbeeste skulls and horns and many other trophies of the plains, jungles and mountains, are scattered about in more or less profusion. The collection will be added to prior to the opening of the film and at least part of the lobby converted into a typical strip of African veldt.

It is of interest to Washington that all of the trophies so far on view are from the private collection of Representative George Holden Tinkham, of Massachusetts, big game hunter and explorer, and represent souvenirs of the congressman's prowess as a marksman and intrepid nimrod.

Years ago, when Harry M. Crandall, about to crash back into the amusement field with his "Pantheon de la Guerrre"—which, I am led to believe, was hoisted at least partially into place yesterday—was in active control of the theaters which he founded, now the Warner Brothers' Washington chain, he returned from an exhibitors' convention held in the wilds of Tom Taggart's recherche reservation at West Baden, Ind., or somewhere out there, all hopped up about the box-office wallop he had just learned was possessed by one Tom Mix. Every other theater owner in the world, it seemed, relied on Tom to pull him out of the red when the going got rough. And here we had been passing up the Mix pictures and letting Ninth street get all that dough!

So the Crandall executive staff screened all the Tom Mix features it could get its hands on and finally booked the best of the lot into the Metropolitan Theater, then the ace house of the Crandall string.

And did it die an awful death! The public didn't go to see it in tremendous crowds! In fact, they couldn't be wheedled into gunshot of the place.

So what? So nothing, except that this week George O'Brien in "Mystery Ranch," the present-day counterpart of the sort of thing Tom Mix used to do, is packing them in at the Columbia, running a close second to Loew's Fox and Warner Brothers' Earle in clicking up customers at the turnstiles.

What's happened? And has it happened to the "Westerns" or to the viewpoint of the public? I'm asking you.

And would you believe it, up on Fifteenth street, at RKO-Keith's, ZaSu Pitts, Lucien Littlefield and their associates in the cast of "Strangers of the Evening," are outdrawing the stunning and stellar Ann Harding in "Westward Passage," her most recent vehicle on the same screen.

Didjaever!

Following the Jesse L. Lasky trail to retirement from the high councils of the company, B. P. Schulberg has relinquished his duties as production chief for Paramount. It is rumored, according to Variety, that either Sam Goldwyn or Walter Wanger stands ready to step into his place as associate of Emanuel Cohen, at the moment in complete charge of Paramount productional activities.

One needs hardly more than the normal quota of fingers to count the years back to the time when Mr. Cohen was a comparatively minor cog in the big juggernaut of the movies, serving as head man of the group that ran down pictorial events for the Pathe News. He was drafted by Paramount to take command of Paramount News when that reflection of world-wide goings-on was created to add to the duplication of news shots on the screens of the world.

Among the theatrical attractions promised for this city next season is "Whistling in the Dark," the comedy in which Ernest Truex recently completed a successful six months' run on Broadway. The play is by Laurence Gross and Edward Childs Carpenter and is counted among the outstanding Broadway successes of the present season.

With the original cast intact, "Whistling in the Dark" is now playing in Los Angeles, whence it will go on a tour of various Pacific Coast cities. Alexander McKaig, the producer, plans to bring the company East when the West Coast tour is finished early in the fall, and to send it to the principal cities of the East and Middle West.

Late next winter Mr. Truex will go to London to appear in the play under the joint auspices of Mr. McKaig and Gilbert Miller.

I told you that guy would get licked over in Long Island City last night!

68 ARE GRADUATED FOR BUSINESS LIFE

Prof. Kayser Addresses Class at Exercises in Eastern High School.

"Look upon your business careers as a constant field of study," Elmer Louis Kayser, professor of history and director of university students at George Washington University, told a class of 68 graduates, 58 girls and 10 boys, who have completed the three-year business course at Eastern High School, at graduation exercises last night.

"You must approach business from the very beginning with the consciousness that you are part of a great economic and social structure," he told the graduates. "If through you a weakness is imparted to that structure, you are an enemy of society. Look upon your business as a constant field of study. Delve into the literature of economics and see where your activity touches the larger world. Read works on social problems. Learn the workings of your Government."

Miss Rose Lees Hardy, assistant superintendent of public schools, presided at the exercises; the Rev. Frederick Vining Fisher, of the Ingram Memorial Church, gave them invocation; Theodore Cogswell, register of wills, presented the diplomas, and Rosella Marie McLaughlin, president of the class, offered the valedictory. GRADUATION HELD AT BUSINESS HIGH

Rev. H. A. Woolfall Cites Need of Leadership of Three Types.

Stressing the need for leadership in the world today, the Rev. Hulbert A. Woolfall, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, told the last class to graduate from Business High School at commencement exercises last night, that they represent part of the leadership that must take the place of the youth killed in the war.

Dr. Woolfall stressed three types of leadership needed today—moral leadership, economic and spiritual. The younger generation of today is well qualified to fill these needs, he added.

In economic leadership, Dr. Woolfall said, there is a need for Christianizing the business world. He pointed to the need also of inculcating the mechanical speed age with a spirit of good fellowship and intellectual achievement.

Daniel C. Roper, retiring Board of Education member, presided; Dr. Houston Greenwell gave the invocation and Raymond Bernard Chiam gave the valedictory. Allan Davis, principal of the school, announced the scholarship awards. William Lee Corbin awarded the diplomas.

SHARKEY TAKES WORLD CROWN FROM SCHMELING; CROWD OF 72,000 AMAZED BY UNEXPECTED DECISION

Trip to Title Long, Hard, Says Jack

Discouraged Many Times in Battle, He States.

Would Give German Chance to Regain World Crown.

By BILL KING.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN BOWL, New York, June 21 (A.P.).—The Long road down which Jack Sharkey has been swinging his fists for the past eight years has turned for him.

"It was a long, hard trip up to tonight," the new heavyweight champion exclaimed calmly, once he had gained his dressing room, which bulged with scores of his friends.

Sharkey was wildly excited when the officials gave their decision in his favor and Announcer Joe Humphries declared him the new title holder.

As police pushed him through the crowd to his quarters, he regained the calmness that so ably aided him during his bout with Schmeling.

He quietly accepted congratulations, accepted their pats on the back and then addressed them as follows:

Realizes Ambition In Victory.

"It was a long, hard trip up to tonight. At last, after eight years, my ambition has been realized. I am returning to Boston the heavyweight champion of the world. The title that our great John L. Sullivan lost 40 years ago.

"Schmeling was very hard to fight. I was discouraged many times during those fifteen rounds, but I kept right in there, didn't I? And I didn't blow up, either." Sharkey was asked if he would give Schmeling a return bout.

"I'd be glad to," Jack said. "Any time there is some money in it. You know I fought for bare training expenses. I took the short end to get another crack at Max. He will have to do the same if we meet again."

Sharkey was dressing as he talked. Several times photographers interrupted him. These folk generally annoy Sharkey, but not tonight. He granted every request to pose, giving them his profile, with the eye out of focus, to shoot at.

After dressing, Sharkey gulped some ginger ale, tossed the bottle away and hastened for the door as he exclaimed: "I'm going back to Boston, and I'm going right now. So long, fellows."

After Sharkey made his exit, Johnny Buckley, his manager, had a chance to be heard.

Buckley Knew Jack Would Win.

"I knew he could do it," Buckley said. "I am more than gratified Jack won. It was his battle of vindication. And vindication was all he got. We got little or no money for it."

Al Lacey, Sharkey's trainer, said the Boston battler never behaved better.

"He handled just like a preliminary boy," Lacey said. "He followed every word of our advice and did not deviate an inch from the plans we laid for Schmeling months ago."

Schmeling Would Fight Again.

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—A tanned, black-browed young German, baffled, disconsolate, sat on the rubbing table in his dressing room tonight, trying to reason out how he could have lost the greatest possession of his life, his heavyweight championship, to Jack Sharkey.

Over and over again, Max Schmeling, trying to grin and take it gracefully, said to himself and the crowds that jammed in on him:

"If some one beats me, I don't care, I say, 'the better man he wins' and that is all right.

"But how can Sharkey beat me running away all the time?"

His manager, Joe Jacobs, in a towering rage over what he charged was a "plot" to steal the championship from them, tried to console him.

Diegel Installed Favorite As National Open Nears

By GAYLE TALBOT.

FLUSHING, N. Y., June 21 (A.P.).—The Fresh Meadow Country Club, long-hitters' paradise, where the National Open golf championship will be decided Thursday, Friday and Saturday, seethed with golfers and golfing talk today, and the name most frequently heard in the clubhouse and around the spacious grounds was that of Leo Diegel.

The popular professional from Agua Caliente, who boasts the oddest putting stance in the world, is a pronounced favorite right now to dethrone Billy Burke, current champion, and win the country's highest golfing honors.

Gene Sarazen, fresh from his triumph in the British Open, and such recognized stars as Tommy Armour, George Von Elm, Macdonald Smith, Billy Burke, Walter Hagen and Denny Shute all have their individual following, but Diegel is the popular choice.

The reason is obvious. He is the only man in the field who has ever broken par 70 for the 6,815-yard trap-infested course over which the championship will be played. And he has done it not once but five times, including twice within the past week.

Back in 1928, the man from Mexico had successive rounds of 68 and 69 in qualifying for the open. He shattered par again with a 69 in qualifying for the 1930 P. G. A. He has had two 69s in practice for the approaching tournament. No other player has bettered 70 from the back tees, although the record for the regular course is 64, held by Al Ciuci, the club professional.

Seldom have there been as few low scores posted in practice rounds for the coming event.

Although most of the field of 150 has been here several days and practiced arduously, only five had turned in perfect 70s. The best card turned in by Burke, the defending champion, was a 72. The champion, who defeated George Von Elm in last year's thrilling 72-hole play-off, is given little chance to repeat. He is not long enough with his iron shots, observers declare.

Few entries made a serious attempt to score today, contenting themselves with trying out all their shots and frequently playing two and three balls on a hole.

Of the few scores recorded, Walter Hagen led the way with an approximate 70. His foursome, however, was conceding putts frequently. Francis Scheider, of Dallas, Tex., sank all putts and had a 71. Gene Sarazen, playing the course for the first time since his return from England, had about a 75, he said. Armour refused even to estimate his strokes. Johnny Goodman, the Omaha amateur, had a splendid 72.

Chicago Hurler Helps Win Game, 3-1, With Double.

CHICAGO, June 21 (A.P.).—The same Philadelphia Athletics who batted out 26 hits yesterday, got just six off Milton Gaston today and the Chicago White Sox defeated the American League champions, 3 to 1, to even up the series.

Gaston not only held the socking A's to a half dozen hits, but his double in the eighth inning drove in Charlie Derry, his battery mate, with what proved to be the winning run.

Verdict Disappoints Fans in Argentina

Buenos Aires, June 21 (A.P.).—Jack Sharkey's victory over Max Schmeling in the world heavyweight championship fight tonight disappointed Argentine fans, who expressed a belief that the German clearly was the victor after following cabled and radioed reports from New York.

Victorio Campolo and Luis Angel Firpo, the Argentine heavyweights, had predicted that Schmeling would win easily.

Attachment on Purse Of Schmeling Upheld

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Valente late today declined to vacate a warrant attaching $25,000 of Max Schmeling's earnings in his championship fight tonight with Jack Sharkey, pending the outcome of a $100,000 suit brought against the German heavyweight by Primo Carnera, Italian boxer.

Carnera alleges Schmeling broke a contract to fight him in 1930. The attachment order was obtained ten days ago.

ERRORS HELP YANKS BEAT BROWNS

Leaders Win in 9th, 11-8, Aided by Foes' Six Miscues.

ST. LOUIS, June 21 (A.P.).—The New York Yankees took an old-fashioned thriller from the Browns today, 11 to 8, scoring the winning run in the ninth when Chad Kimsey made a three-base wild throw of Dickey's sacrifice bunt to let two runs in and Lazzeri followed with a double to score Dickey.

The Browns contributed five other errors, four by Jim Levey, but remained in the running through Goose Goslin's homer with the bases full in the seventh. Lou Gehrig hit his fifteenth homer with two on base in the third to cap a five-run rally.

Cochet Bows To Tennis Unknown

Collins, of England, Beats French Ace at Wimbledon.

Mrs. Harper Is Lone U. S. Player Beaten in Tournament.

By ROBERT C. DOWSON.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 21 (U.P.).—Ian Collins, a comparatively unknown British player, overcame the handicap of a leg injury today to eliminate Henri Cochet, of France, in a sensational upset at the British national men's tennis singles.

Collins employed dazzling placements and cannon-ball services to defeat the famous French star, 6—2, 8—6, 0—6, 6—3, on the court where, a year ago, Cochet was eliminated in his first-round match.

Meanwhile, American stars, with a single exception, continued their triumphal advance.

The first and only American casualty thus far was Mrs. Lawrence Harper. She lost to Miss Kathleen Stammers, 18-year-old British high school girl, 1—6, 6—0, 7—5.

British Girl Nervous At Start.

Like Cochet, Mrs. Harper never had a chance. The British girl was unsteady in the first set, but she shook off her nervousness at the start of the second set and won out easily. It marked her first appearance in major competition.

Cochet's defeat all but assured America of retaining the singles title, for he was regarded as a 5-to-4 favorite for the honors. The American delegation's chief opponents for the honors appear to be Jean Borotra, of France, and Fred Perry and H. Wilfred (Bunny) Austin, of England. All three of the stars came through their third round matches in easy fashion.

Wilmer Allison had the hardest battle of the Americans today, being forced to five sets before he defeated G. L. Tuckseet, of Great Britain, 6—3, 4—6, 6—1, 3—6, 6—2.

Frank Shields had a comparatively simple task in Pierre Grandguillot, of Egypt, eliminating him by scores of 6—1, 6—3, 6—3.

Sidney B. Wood, defending titleholder, advanced at the expense of I. H. Wheatcroft, of England. The scores were 6—3, 5—7, 6—1, 6—3.

Playing under wraps after the first two sets, Ellsworth Vines, United States singles champion, defeated H. S. Burrows, of Great Britain, 6—1, 6—2, 3—6, 6—3.

Mangin in 3-Set Victory.

Gregory Mangin won from C. Sproule, of Australia, 6—2, 6—2, 9—7, while Van Ryn turned back Charles H. Kingsley, of England, 6—3, 7—5, 2—6, 8—6.

Playing in her usual invincible style, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, California's Queen of the Courts, started the defense of her women's singles crown by defeating Miss Rollin Couquerque, of Great Britain, 6—1, 6—1. By the same score Miss Jacobs defeated Miss G. M. Southwell, also of Great Britain.

Other results included: Perry defeated Herman David, of Great Britain, 6—4, 6—3, 5—7, 6—1; Austin defeated K. C. Gandar Dowar, of Great Britain, 6—2, 4—6, 6—3, 6—2; Borotra defeated C. N. Oritchie, of Great Britain, 6—4, 6—1, 3—6, 6—1; Enrique Maier, of Spain, defeated A. D. Porta, Great Britain, 6—1, 6—3, 6—1; Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, of Great Britain, defeated Miss Nancy Lyle, also of Great Britain, 9—7, 4—6, 6—0.

Second-round matches in the women's and men's singles and the start of the men's doubles competition are on the program for tomorrow.

Majority of Writers At Ringside Favor Max

Madison Square Garden Bowl, New York, June 21 (A.P.).—Jack Sharkey's victory over Max Schmeling for the world heavyweight title tonight aroused more fuss in the working press section than took place during all 15 rounds inside the ropes.

A poll of newspaper opinion showed a big majority convinced Schmeling should have received the decision and kept his title. Twenty-three out of twenty-five writers, in an Associated Press round-up, showed a consensus of eight rounds for Schmeling, six for Sharkey and one even.

The disagreement with the official verdict was the sharpest in any title fight in years.

BLACKBURNE MANAGER.

Toronto, Ont., June 21 (A.P.).—Russell (Lena) Blackburne, former manager of the Chicago White Sox, tonight was appointed manager of the Toronto Club of the International League. He succeeds Tom Daly, who will be retained as a player, taking his regular turn back of the bat.

Booth, Ever the Hero, Hits Homer With Bases Full to Win for Yale

New Haven, Conn., June 21 (A.P.). Albie Booth, Yale's little three-sport hero, chose commencement day to hit a spectacular home run with the bases full this afternoon, enabling the Elis to win, 4 to 2, the first baseball game in the annual series with Harvard.

Although Albie did not receive his diploma because of work missed during his illness last winter, the disappointment did not daunt him.

Yale had two men out when he came to bat in the first inning. Barry Wood, Booth's rival throughout the undergraduate competition, already had been responsible for Harvard's two scores, one of which came on Wood's triple and the other on his run.

Albie struck at the ball once and fouled the next. He looked around—the bases were loaded. Then he pounded the next delivery into the left-field stands for a homer.

While the crowd, composed largely of alumni in gay reunion costumes, yelled itself hoarse, Albie's teammates ran from the Yale dugout to escort him off the field in triumph.

Nats Trounce Indians by 8 to 3

Brown and Marberry Hold Tribe Safe to Take Decision.

Myer and Cronin Top Nats' 13-Hit Attack on Russell.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

LEAGUE PARK, Cleveland, Ohio, June 21.—The Nationals had to win today to keep from skidding all the way to fifth place in the standing, and, thanks to some timely hitting and good pitching by Lloyd Brown and Fred Marberry, they did so, making it two in a row over the Cleveland Indians. The final count was 8 to 3, with the victory enabling them to hold third place and to crawl up to within half a game of the second-place Athletics.

Brown was the victim of a technical knockout in the eighth when he was hit in the groin by a hard grounder off Dick Porter's bat. He refused to quit, however, but the blow evidently hurt him more than he thought, and after he yielded two hits and a walk and uncorked a wild pitch he was yanked in favor of Fred Marberry. Otherwise the southpaw undoubtedly would have finished in fine fettle.

Russell Victim of 13-Hit Attack.

Every member of the Washington cast took part in the thirteen-hit attack on Jack Russell, Nat nemesis when at Boston, and he was pounded off the hill under a five-run barrage in the eighth session, which put the verdict on ice for the Washingtonians. Oral Hildebrand and Willis Hudlin finished out the string, but the damage had been done before they appeared on the scene.

With Brown pitching steady ball, there was little doubt as to which team would be the ultimate winner after the third, when the Nats broke a one-all deadlock to score twice. Just for luck, they staged their big eighth, however. Buddy Myer, with a triple, double and single, was the big gun of the game, with Joe Cronin and Lis three one-shots running him a close second. This pair and Earl Averill and Joe Vosmik, of the Tribe, were the only ones hitting safely more than once. While Manush's record shows but one hit, he was credited with driving home three runs and Reynolds two.

Myer's triple in the first and Manush's long fly netted the first run of the game and the second tied the string when the Indians molded it in the second on a walk, Sewell's single and Cissel's long fly. In the third, the Nats broke the deadlock with a two-run splurge and then there was no more scoring until the eighth, when both teams were up and doing.

Nats Score in 3d Inning.

The Washington markers in the third session resulted from successive singles by Judge and Myer, Manush's fly to short right, Cronin's single and Reynolds' infield roller on which the Tribe failed in an attempted double play, with Myer checking in at the time.

Myer pried the top off of the eighth with a double and then followed successive one-shots by Manush, Cronin and Reynolds. These netted two runs and Russell then intentionally walked West to fill the bases. One scored on Bluege's infield out, another on Spencer's single, and a third on Brown's "squeeze" bunt.

Peckinpaugh sent Connatser to pinch hit opening the home half and he delivered with a double and took third on Porter's bad hopper which injured Brown, but which did not prevent the pitcher from making the killing at first. Brown tried to "shake it off," but when he granted a hit to Pinch-Hitter Ferrell, uncorked a two-base wild pitch, walked Averill, and yielded a double to Vosmik, Marberry relieved him. He fanned Morgan, filled the bases by walking Sewell, but then pulled out of trouble by forcing Kamm to hit into a force play.

Two more Cleveland pinch hitters were used in the ninth, Myatt delivering with a single, but Marberry, who appeared to be faster than at any time this season, saw to it that there was no more scoring.

Walker's Words Solace For German Listeners

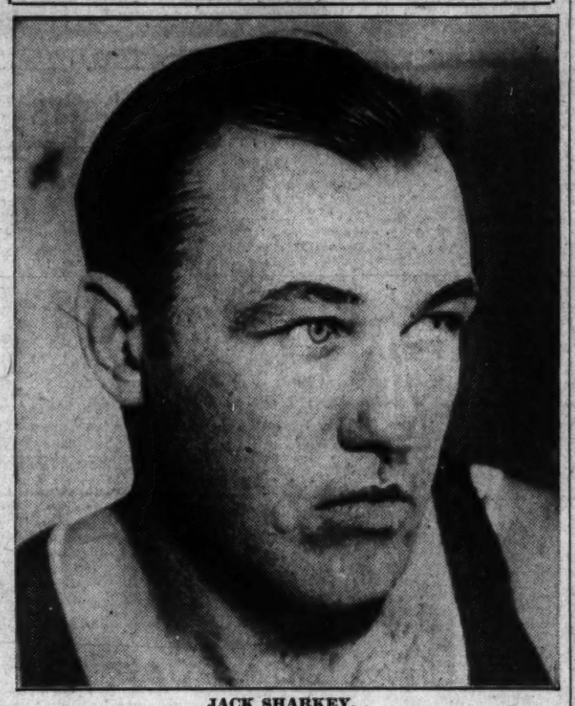
Berlin, Wednesday, June 22 (A.P.).—German radio listeners early today heard solacing words from Mayor James J. Walker of New York over the outcome of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight.

"In my humble opinion Schmeling should have won," was the message delivered by the mayor through the microphone.

Jack Sharkey said the championship fight with the German was hard. Max Schmeling's remarks were indistinguishable.

EXPERTS AGREE THAT GERMAN WON AS JUDGES VOTE VERDICT TO FORMER SAILOR BY 2 TO 1

New Heavyweight Champion



JACK SHARKEY.

Sharkey Retreats, One Eye Closed, at End; No Knockdowns.

Max Robbed of Title, His Manager Tells the World.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

MADISON SQUARE BOWL, Long Island City, N. Y., June 21.—The heavyweight championship of the world passed from Max Schmeling to Jack Sharkey by the decision of two judges and a referee at the end of a fifteen-round fight in the Madison Square Garden Long Island City Arena this evening, though Schmeling had won the fight and Sharkey fought the last round in a spirit of reckless desperation which indicated that he, himself, realized he had been beaten. The decision was contrary to the weight of evidence and Schmeling, as he stood in midring after the verdict, speaking into the microphone, seemed on the point of tears.

The German fighter was robbed of his title whether by the honest incompetence of the two officials who voted against him or by prejudice or some influence more sinister. Gunboat Smith, the old heavyweight fighter, who refereed, and George Kelly, one of the judges, voted for Sharkey, and Charles Mathison, the other judge, gave his choice to Schmeling.

There were about 72,000 customers in the arena and the gate receipts were estimated off-hand at $500,000, although Jimmy Johnston, the manager of the Garden's prize fight department, was willing to allow a few thousand dollars either way for error in the guessing.

Experts Favor Germen.

"We won't know for a day or so how much money we took in," Mr. Johnston said. "These returns will come in slow, like the Republican vote from up the State."

The crowd loosed a large roar at the decision from which it was impossible to determine whether the decision was popular or otherwise, but all along the working press row and in the preferred customers' rows close up to the ring the opinion plainly preferred Schmeling, and resented, if it did not actually suspect, the official judgment.

Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, a skinny little citizen of Hell's Kitchen, grabbed a microphone as the broadcasters popped into the air the consternation following the decision, and babbled his soul into the night air.

"I don't want any one to think I am a poor sport," Jacobs said. His sharp face was very pale and he waved his free hand in a persuasive gesture that would have sold a dress suit to a dock walloper. "I don't think I'm a poor sport. But my boy didn't lose the fight in this bowl tonight. He was robbed."

Speaking to the German populace over an international hook-up, Jimmy Walker, the mayor, exclaimed in English, "That is the rottenest decision I ever heard in my life."

Hans Reichman, a German journalist, who was in charge of these proceedings, turned to Walker and asked, "Do you really want me to say that in my translation?"

"Why don't you want to say it?" the mayor asked.

"Sure," Reichman said. "I'm a German and I think it was rotten, too, but I may be prejudiced."

"Well, you can go ahead and say it for me," Walker said.

Sportswriter Hit By Bottle.

Ten minutes after the fight while the semifinalists were mauling one another around in a meaningless chaser act, there was an explosion at the ringside and a bottle hurled from somewhere in the rear of the crowd burst against the skull of an innocent journalist who sat there taking his indignation out on the keyboard of a typewriter. The young man rose up, combing glass out of his hair, slightly dazed but apparently not seriously hurt, and the Garden firm's corps of house sluggers, trained in the rough-house school of the old six-day bike races went sailing up the aisle in an effort to round up the petulant patron.

The receipts, gathered in a rate of admission ranging from $23 down to $2.30, were almost as startling as the decision. The fight was the first held in the new saucer, scooped out, paved and furnished within the space of three months, and the mob closed in on the arena in increasing density from 5 o'clock until 9, when the place seemed full. Sharkey received 10 per cent of the net money and Schmeling 42½ per cent.

Statisticians Favor Max.

Schmeling had won at least nine rounds by the score of many of the serious statisticians, who sat in the press rows putting down chicken tracks jotting on sheets of paper to indicate jabs, hooks, swings and blocked punches. Sharkey had clearly

The Fight by Rounds

(Associated Press.)

ROUND ONE—Lean and browned Schmeling dashed into Sharkey, who met him with a short left hook flush to the jaw. Sharkey boxed coolly away as Max rushed in with a right to the body. Standing straight up, forsaking his former crouching style, Max matched left jabs with the American. But he landed only one punch to the head as Sharkey dotted his face with half dozen lefts. Schmeling shot a short right to the head and the crowd roared as Sharkey backed away. Jack jumped in and smashed the German about the body with both hands and then lifted his left sharply to the head. Schmeling boxed neatly, a far different fighter from the man Sharkey was overpowering for three rounds two years ago, but the American flung a hard right to the heart through the champion's defense as the bell rang.

ROUND THREE—Sharkey opened up a trifle, but missed with a long right and as Schmeling tried to cut loose with both hands, Sharkey wove under the punches. They were both extremely cautious, Sharkey feeling his way with left jabs to the head, grabbing with his right and trying to land left hooks to the chin as they came together. Schmeling drove a short right to the chin as they clubbed at each other's head in a corner, but Sharkey drove him out with a left hook to the body. Sharkey smiled as he continued to box carefully, bobbing under Schmeling's hands. He nailed the champion with a straight right, but as Max opened up with both hands he leaped back boxing carefully. Max tore in on him with a left hook to the head and a short right to the ear, but Sharkey was away again at the bell.

ROUND FOUR—Sharkey came out even more cautiously for the round that proved fatal to him two years ago. He whistled a right high to the champion's temple, but caught a short right to the chin. As they came in close he cuffed at Schmeling's chin, while Max beat the American's body with both hands. The dark, sturdy German shot Sharkey's head back with a left jab and Sharkey pedaled backward carefully. He stopped to rip a left into the German's body, but Max nailed him twice with lefts to the head as they battled at close quarters. Another right bounced off Sharkey's chin after he had driven the German to the ropes with a left hook to the head. Sharkey ducked a right, but Max ducked under his left hand and dropped another short right to the American's chin as the bell rang.

ROUND FIVE—There was not a mark on either warrior as a result of the battling. Max flung a short right into Sharkey's head and before they went back to jabbing. Twice Sharkey pulled back from the champion's left hand to bury left hooks into Max's body. Boxing beautifully, Sharkey stabbed the German's head, hooked a left to the jaw and a right to the body as Max tore back. Schmeling drove Sharkey to the ropes with his first sustained attack, whipping a volley of lefts and rights to the head and forcing Jack to hold. Sharkey steadied again, jabbed the champion away and smashed his body with both hands. A right uppercut shook Schmeling, but he bounced back to hammer Sharkey's head with both hands as the bell stopped the first real rugged punching.

ROUND SIX—The acme of cautiousness, Sharkey stabbed dispassionately at Schmeling's head. He was boxing like a teacher in the gymnasium school as he popped Schmeling's head and stepped in with a left hook to the body. Max drove Sharkey to the ropes with a left, but Jack leaned into him and ripped both hands to the champion's head. Schmeling following him across the ring, his right caught Sharkey's chin. Without venom, Sharkey shot a right and left to the head and rattled the champion's teeth with an uppercut, as the crowd cheered him on. But Jack was content to box carefully, stabbing with his left, shooting a neat left hook to the jaw as the gong sounded.

ROUND SEVEN—Sharkey was fighting the battle that he promised, cold and deliberate. As Schmeling wove in, he tipped the champion around with a right to the shoulder and beat his head with short lefts. They stabbed at each other with lefts until Sharkey smashed a right to Schmeling's head. The German suddenly spurted, driving Sharkey to the ropes with a half dozen clean rights to the head. Sharkey seemed to waver a moment, but he fought his way clear with a right to the head and went back to swapping lefts with the champion. They jabbed each other around the ring, both landing until Sharkey opened up with a left hook to the chin and a fine uppercut that shot Schmeling's head back. They traded short rights to the head at the bell.

ROUND EIGHT—Sharkey stabbed methodically at the German's head and dropped inside with a right to the body. Schmeling marched forward, as he had done from the start and shot a nice right to Sharkey's chin as the American backed into the ropes. Schmeling hooked Sharkey's head twice as Jack forgot to keep his hands up pulling away from a duel at close quarters. Twice Schmeling drilled his right to Sharkey's head but the American didn't seem to mind. He continued to step away, stabbing with his left as he went, and they both landed right crosses by way of variation. A swelling started on Sharkey's left cheek, where Schmeling had been landing his short rights. They were stabbing again with lefts when the gong sounded.

ROUND NINE — Sharkey backed carefully away from the German, as they again popped their lefts to the mouth. Schmeling's nose twice stopped Sharkey's left. Both missed rights, but Schmeling was the quicker with his left hook to the chin. Schmeling bobbed in front of Sharkey as Jack swung both hands to the head, but the German came out of the weave with a fine right to the jaw. Jack measured his man carefully with a pair of left jabs and a neat left hook, but again Schmeling drove over a right to the jaw. Sharkey got in two right uppercuts along the ropes, but again the smiling German, who seemed to be enjoying it all, rammed left and right into Sharkey's head. He bounced two more rights off Sharkey's bruised left cheek as the gong sent them to their corners.

ROUND TEN—Schmeling marched out as fresh as when he started, while Sharkey was cautiousness itself. As the German edged in on him, Jack stuck his left in Schmeling's face, but Max caught him and drove him to the ropes in the American's own corner with a harsh left hook to the head. Stung, Jack shaled back with both hands and forced the German to wrap both hands around his head in order to escape the storm. They jabbed carefully for a moment and again Schmeling ripped in with a left and right to the chin. They jabbed in unison, both landing and then went to the other extreme by swapping long rights to the head. Schmeling stung the American with another straight right to the jaw and he danced jauntily to his corner as the bell rang.

ROUND ELEVEN — Sharkey came out a bit more forcefully and ripped his right to the head. He forced Schmeling back with a left jab, but as they locked together, both stung

GALLANT KNIGHT SETS WASHINGTON PARK TRACK RECORD

Spanish Play Places in Feature

Audley Star Travels Mile in 1:35 3-5; Pittsburgher 3d.

Cutie Face Triumphs at Aqueduct With Nose Decision.

WASHINGTON PARK, Ill., June 21 (A.P.).—Gallant Knight, the Audley Farm Stable's handicap star, raced a mile in 1:35 3-5 today to set a new Washington Park record for the distance, in winning the Great Northern Handicap.

Gallant Knight, the favorite, ridden by H. Schutte, outfooted Spanish Play by a length and a half, with Pittsburgher third. His performance clipped two-fifths of a second off the track mark set several days ago by Polydorus. Gallant Knight paid $3.60 to win.

Cutie Face Wins By Nose.

Aqueduct Race Track, June 21 (A.P.).—In a furious finish which brought the crowd to its feet, Mrs. George M. Seglin's filly, Cutie Face, with Silvio Coucci up, defeated H. C. Phipps' Ballos, ridden by Hank Mills, by a nose in the Woodhaven claiming stakes for 2-year-olds here this afternoon.

Merry Caroline, representing Mrs. W. T. Anderson, finished third, a length off the pair. Cutie Face, a 16-to-5 hazard, ran the distance in 0:59 2-5, and earned $5,125 for her owner.

A good start saw Cutie Face first away. The daughter of Chilhowee stole a length advantage in the first furlong, with Merry Caroline and Ballos closest on her trail. Merry Caroline gave way to Ballos in the late stages and Mills rode his mount with all his skill, but barely failed to get up in time. Merry Caroline easily saved the show from Revonah.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRIMUTE, $3.10, $2.56, $2.38; SALLIE BOURLAND, $9.66, $5.38; PLUM ORCHARD, $5.04.

PRIMUTE went to the front early and, saving ground after being headed by SALLIE BOURLAND, took command again when the latter swung wide at stretch turn and drew into a long lead. SALLIE BOURLAND dashed to the front soon after the start and was racing gamely when she bore out at stretch turn, carrying HAPPY LOPE with her. PLUM ORCHARD made up ground steadily to finish well. MOM'S FOLLY also closed ground. HER ELEGANCE was weakening. HAPPY LOPE had early speed, but tired after being forced wide. CODETTA was shut off soon after the start.

ESKIMO, prominently placed in the early running, responded to urging in the stretch and, heading the leaders, held MANNERISM at the end. MANNERISM finished fast on the outside and was gaining. MARLENE was in close quarters near the end. BRIGHT BIRD had early speed, but tired. TAKE OFF acted badly at the barrier and showed early speed after breaking from outside the gate, but tired in final furlong. BOB CUSTER and BETTER FLY went fairly well.

GLORITONE was shut off after leaving back stretch, but came again after being quickly straightened out and, wearing down early leaders in the stretch, scored in a driving finish. MISS MELODY, always well up, took command when TIVERTON tired and held on well. AT TOP was going gamely at end. TIVERTON dashed to the lead on the outside in early running, but weakened after making pace well into the stretch. SPOT POT showed improvement. MINTOGEE weakened in the run home. LOVELY HILLS ran off slowly and never dangerous. BUN D was outrun throughout.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DYAK, $10.08, $4.64, $3.24; HIGHER, $4.60, $3.60; MISS MARR, $3.82.

DYAK came fast approaching stretch turn and, saving ground, caught HIGHER in closing strides. HIGHER improved his position to take lead when MISS MARR tired in stretch and barely missed. MISS MARR displayed most early speed, but weakened in run home. EVERGOLD never threatened leaders. HYMAN was outrun. SATIN SPAR, seemingly unable to run in early stages, was held under restraint and was not punished during stretch run.

FIFTH RACE—One mile (out of chute.) Purse, $1,200. Hotel Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:37. Off at 4:39. Winner, Audley Farm's br. h. (6), by Bright Knight—Ethel Gray. Trained by K. Spence. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23, 0:45 2-5, 1:10 1-5, 1:35 3-5 (new track record.)

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GALLANT KNIGHT, $3.60, $2.60, $2.26; SPANISH PLAY, $2.60, $2.16; PITTSBURGHER, $2.62.

GALLANT KNIGHT headed DOCTOR FREELAND after half the distance and, taking a good lead in stretch, was never in trouble thereafter. SPANISH PLAY, weakly handled, was allowed to drop far back in early running, was taken to the inside at the stretch turn and, finishing strongly, was gaining rapidly at end. PITTSBURGHER moved up stronsly in last quarter and, racing gamely to end, was barely beaten for second place. DOCTOR FREELAND tired when the real racing began. SIDNEY GRANT was badly outrun throughout.

SIXTH RACE—One mile (out of chute). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:00½. Off at 5:10. Winner, Lone Star Stable's b. c. (4), by Broomstick—Indian Rose. Trained by J. B. Theall. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23, 0:47, 1:12, 1:37 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TOTEM, $13.72, $8.74, $5.04; UPRIGHT, $17.26, $11.18; GRAND PRINCE, $5.34.

TOTEM was outrun to the stretch, then came under hard urging to catch UPRIGHT in closing strides. UPRIGHT pressed early leaders from start, assumed a good advantage after rounding stretch turn, but hung in closing strides. GRAND PRINCE was well placed near end after showing much speed. WISE ADVOCATE met with interference in the early stages and had little left at end. STONE MARTIN could never catch the leaders. CAIUS was in close quarters in early running and blocked several times. JACK COLLINS broke slowly and was never dangerous.

SEVENTH RACE—One and three-sixteenths miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:46. Off at 5:46½. Winner, A. A. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GABBO, $10.24, $5.48, $3.64; PING COATES, $6.24, $4.62; PUNISHMENT, $4.28.

GABBO, slightly outrun early, came strongly on outside after entering stretch and, despite interference from PUNISHMENT, headed the latter and was an easy winner. PING COATES came again in the stretch and finished well. PUNISHMENT was carried wide around first turn, then raced to contention and headed field after leaving back stretch, but hung in the final run. UNCLE HENRY, in close quarters after six furlongs, tired. HOWTIZ was shut off on the far turn. JIM ORMONT stopped badly in the stretch.

Markey-Mangan Duo Favored in Play at Columbia.

Navy Offers Threats for Title; Winner Goes to Boston.

TWENTY-EIGHT strong doubles teams will set sail tomorrow at Columbia Country Club for the Middle Atlantic men's doubles championship, now held by the team of Eddie Yeomans and Bud Markey. The current champions will not compete, but Markey has been posted as favorite to win the tournament, paired with Tom Mangan.

Two Navy Leech Cup teams, both of them first-rate combinations, promise to offer stern competition to the local pairs. One of these teams, Lieuts. Gerry Smith and Bill Graham, was seeded No. 2. Frank Shore and Anthony Latona were seeded No. 3, followed by Alan Staubly and Frederico Sendel.

The tournament will mark the return to competition of Clarence Charest, former District champion and national veterans champion. He will pair with Rickey Willis, promising young star.

Winning Team Goes to Boston.

The winner of the tournament automatically becomes the representative of the Middle Atlantic section in the national doubles at Boston in August.

Local teams have won three out of the last five Middle Atlantic championships. The title, in 1927, was won by Percy Kynaston and Anton Von Bermuth, at Richmond, followed by Mangan and Bob Considine, in 1928, at Columbia; Eddie and Billy Jacobs, in 1929, at Baltimore; Mangan and Considine, in 1930, at Congressional, and by Yeomans and Markey, at Richmond.

Cubs' Timely Batting Defeats Phillies, 12-3

Philadelphia, June 21 (A.P.).—Steady pitching by Pat Malone coupled with timely and heavy hitting by his mates gave the Cubs a 12-to-3 triumph over the Phillies today. Chuck Klein was the only one who could satisfactorily solve Malone's delivery and it was his nineteenth home run of the season with Bartell on first that gave the Phils their first two runs.

The Cubs went ahead in the fourth with a five-run splurge. After English had singled and scored on a one-baser by Stephenson, Moore hit a homer and came in behind Stevie. Grimm then got on base on Mallon's error and Hartnett brought him in with another home run.

Benge had retired for a pinch hitter in the fifth and Hansen, his successor, passed out the same way in the seventh. Berly was hurling when the Cubs strung together a half dozen hits for five runs in the eighth inning.

Uhle's Pinch Triple Wins for Tigers, 3 to 2

Detroit, June 21 (A.P.).—George Uhle, Detroit's pinch-hitting pitcher, slammed out a triple in the ninth inning today to spoil the afternoon for young Johnny Michaels, Boston southpaw, and give the Tigers a 3-to-2 victory. It was the second in a row over the Red Sox.

Uhle, batting for Elon Hogsett, who pitched the last two innings, hit after Rogell had doubled and Hayworth had gone to first on an error. Lawrence ran for Hayworth and followed Rogell across the plate.

Dean Hurls Cards To Win Over Giants

"Dizzy" Yields but Six Hits as Mates Club Mitchell for 5-1 Victory.

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—Jerome Herman "Dizzy" Dean, nailed another plank in his "more-pay" platform today by shutting out the Giants up to the ninth inning, giving them only six hits and striking out eight, as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated New York, 5 to 1.

The Cards rapped Clarence Mitchell hard, and Gus Mancuso touched him for three straight hits, including a homer in the fourth. The Giants broke their string of 28 scoreless innings when Mel Ott doubled and Frank Hogan singled.

Robins Down Bucs, 9-2; Gain Third-Place Tie

Brooklyn, June 21 (A.P.).—The power and timeliness of Brooklyn's hitting behind Freddy Heimach gave the Dodgers a 9-to-2 decision over Pittsburgh today and sent them into a tie with the Pirates for third place.

Heimach pitched shutout ball after the first inning and sent his team ahead in the second with the longest homer of the season at Ebbets Field. He later singled home another run. Joe Stripp and Danny Taylor also hit homers.

In the Wake Of the Game

LEAGUE PARK, Cleveland, Ohio, June 21.—Dick Coffman will be given his third chance to make good as a National in the third game of this series tomorrow and, incidentally, he will be trying to give the Washingtonians, their third straight victory over the Indians. Mel Harder is expected to do the flinging for the Tribe.

With the race tightened up as it is, it is up to the Nationals to keep on winning if they hope to remain in the first flight, in fact they must cop tomorrow to be sure of holding third.

Myer's triple in the first was an ordinary Texas League single. Instead of taking the ball on first bounce, Porter tried to snare it and it got by him and rolled to the fence.

When West fanned in the third, it was three successive Nat innings ended in this fashion, Cronin whiffing in the first and Brown in the second.

Porter made a diving, somersault catch of Judge's liner opening round five.

The game was delayed in the home sixth while Umpire Dick Nallin removed a hunk of coal or something from Pitcher Brown's eyes. Some one from the stands yelled, "Clear out Morgan's eyes, too," the first-sacker being at bat at the time, and drew a big laugh from every one but the hitter, who rolled into a double play.

Russell intentionally walked West to fill the bases, with none out, in the eighth. It was his only pass of the game.

Morgan unconsciously robbed Reynolds of a hit ending the Nats' ninth when he made a stab for a hit bounder over first and the ball stuck in his glove.

Cronin and Judge collaborated on a fine play which helped none in the ninth. The shortstop went behind second for Myatt's bounder and Judge made a fine gloved-hand catch, but the peg was just a trifle late.

College Net Stars Advance With Ease

Kamrath, Hess Only Seeded Players Extended in Eastern Tourney.

Haverford, Pa., June 21 (A.P.).—Only two of the twelve seeded players were hard pressed today, as sixteen top-flight favorites pushed through the third round of the national intercollegiate tennis championships with but two mild upsets.

Karl Kamrath, of the University of Texas, No. 8 in the seeding, was forced to three sets to dispose of H. J. Lynch, of Princeton, 6—1, 4—6, 6—1, and Jake Hess, jr., of Rice Institute, Southwestern intercollegiate champion, had to employ all his stroking wizardry to down Wilmer Hines, of the University of North Carolina, 6—3, 7—5.

Matches that might be called upsets found Claude Donmoyer, of Lebanon Valley, nosing out Harley Shuford, of North Carolina, 6—3, 5—7, 6—2, and Carl Schweikhardt, of Columbia, winning with surprising ease from Sterling Williams, of Texas, 6—1, 6—3.

Clifford Sutter, of Tulane, No. 1 seeded star, quickfully mowed down Joseph Case, of the University of Pennsylvania, 6—0, 6—2, and thus reached the fourth round with the loss of only six games in six sets.

Keith Gledhill, of Stanford, defending champion, overwhelmed Lehigh's entry, Donald W. Haff, in two love sets, and Richard T. Murphy, of Hamilton, provided his right to No. 4 seeding with a brilliant victory over Henry M. Holden, jr., of Rice Institute, 6—4, 6—3.

PEGLER SAYS MAX EARNED DECISION

German Struck Harder Blows From 7th Round On.

lost four of the last five rounds which he fought with his left eye sealed almost shut and that side of his face grotesquely swollen. Neither fighter was knocked down, neither one slipped down, and to give the men no more than their due, each man fought more than half the way with careful thought for what might be done to him if he let one fly. Schmeling was blocking Sharkey's hooks and swings for the head or drawing away to let them sail by or glance off.

Sharkey seemed to be fighting for his self-control at all times until the last round when he tore out of his corner swinging and apparently hoping to redeem a hopeless affair with one mad, lucky swipe. The swollen eye had reduced his visibility from the eleventh round on and he had been taking a rather persistent beating about in this stage of the battle, although it need not be suspected that he was in danger of a knockout even then.

Both men jabbed constantly and most of the jabs were doubles, with both gloves squashing on two sets of handsome features simultaneously, but Schmeling forced the fight all the way, inching constantly forward, often with a gay smile on his dark Oriental countenance. Sharkey did not land one punch that had the appearance of causing Max the slightest inconvenience, but in the later rounds Schmeling was raking Jack's head with both hands without any return but the constant jab.

First Seven Rounds Carefully Fought.

The first seven rounds were fought so carefully that the pair of them seemed over-respectful if not actually frightened, and Sharkey did run up a slight advantage when he outscored Max in the jabbing in rounds two, five, six and seven, but in the eighth, when they began to venture a few sturdy shots, Max took care of Sharkey's work with his gloves and elbows which generally were interposed just in time, then began to move out in front with some solid punches of his own.

Sharkey was timid until along toward the end when it seemed that he would have to win by an accidental knockout or lose the fight, and he went through rough discomfort in the eighth, twelfth and thirteenth.

However, there was not one punch in the entire fight which would have been a credit to a heavyweight champion and the patrons had to draw upon their amigination for their excitement until the last three or four rounds.

Sharkey was a beaten man at the close, and when the final bell rang he went to Schmeling's corner, put his arm around the German's shoulder and one foot up on Max's stool and stood there conversing seriously but on friendly terms. Max seemed surprised by this unconventional visit and turned to chat with Sharkey as Joe Humphreys went from one to another of the officials to gather their ballots. Tony Palozollo, Sharkey's trainer—a gaunt, comic figure in white golf bloomers, black stockings and white sweater, weighing about 125 pounds—ran over and tried to carry Sharkey back to his own corner. Sharkey turned on him with an angry snarl and a jerk that spun him several paces away and resumed his discussion calmly with his fortune and the ambition of his life depending on the announcement to be made in a few seconds.

Crowd Interrupts Humphreys.

In his own time Sharkey turned and walked to his corner. The ring was filling with sparring partners, bottle holders, politicians, photographers, newspaper writers and unidentified persons.

"The winner," Humphreys bared his nude, glistening dome to the glare of the ring lights with a sweep of his yellow straw hat. The crowd loosed a howl and Humphreys started over.

"The winner"—a long pause and a dramatic wave toward Sharkey, "and new champion of the world——"

That was as far as he could go. The crowd was up roaring. Jacobs turned green. Sharkey and some of his crowd began dancing—a jumping figure in an awkward huddle. His swollen face and his dama

Some Salaries Slashed In Westminster Schools

Westminster, Md., June 21 (A.P.).—To bring about further retrenchments, the board of education at the June meeting reduced the salaries of the music administrator, the attendance officer, the supervisor of Negro schools, the service man and attorney and dropped the office of county nurse.

The superintendent nominated for approval the principals, high school assistants, elementary principals and elementary assistants for the ensuing year, subject to such changes as are liable under the law before August 1, with the provision that changes in the appointments are to be approved at the August meeting and the list published.

Midair Explosion Kills Bombing Plane's Pilot

Manila, P. I., June 21 (A.P.).—A 100-pound bomb, exploding just after he released it from a rack under the fuselage of his plane, killed Lieut. Elwell A. Sanborn today over Fort Stotenberg, 50 miles north of Manila.

Soldiers and visitors saw the flying lieutenant fall to a flaming death as fragments of the bomb burst his plane's gasoline tanks. Two other pursuit planes flying in formation with Lieut. Sanborn 400 feet up were not harmed. Sanborn was alone in his plane. An inquiry was ordered.

OUTPUT OF POWER POINTS TO UPTURN

Electric Barometer of 1929 Cited in Confirmation of Dawes' Theory.

By FRANK N. M'CONNELL

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—The business barometer of electric power production, which Gen. Dawes recently cited as a hopeful omen, was one of very few which gave any inkling of impending trouble preceding the 1929 collapse.

Public utility statisticians recalled that in September and October, 1929, the weekly readings of this barometer showed unusual symptoms of stormy weather immediately ahead.

In the second half of September, 1929, power production receded sharply. It rallied again in the first week of October, but again wilted. This was distinctly contrary to usual seasonal trend. Ordinarily, September and October are months of steadily rising production.

Basis for Encouragement.

While these students of power statistics are not fully prepared to indorse the hopeful forecast of Mr. Dawes, they nevertheless find a reassuring basis for encouragement.

Compared with the first week of May, which ordinarily marks the low point of power production for the year, the figures for the week ended June 11 show an increase of 0.3 per cent. For the same period last year there was a decrease of 0.9 per cent.

In 1930 there was a gain of 0.4 per cent; in 1929—the banner business year—it was 0.7 per cent, and in 1928, when the boom period was attaining its greatest velocity, the gain was 2.8 per cent.

Production for May.

Production figures for the full month of May this year registered a weekly average of 1,431,000,000 kilowatt hours against output of 1,435,000,000 during the week ended June 11. In 1931, May production averaged 1,635,000,000 kilowatt hours weekly against the June 11 figures of 1,621,000,000. In 1930, the figures were 1,697,000,000 against 1,706,000,000; in 1929, 1,662,000,000 against 1,699,000,000, and in 1928, 1,440,000,000 against 1,480,000,000.

While statisticians admit that the present upturn may represent only a passing phase, they are inclined to share Gen. Dawes' hopefulness. Some of them place considerable stress on reports from electrical industry that recent gains have been due largely to increased demand from small manufacturers.

It was the evidence that smaller business men were becoming more active, which the former president of the Reconstruction Corporation especially emphasized in his recent prognostication.

Receivers Named For Grand Stores

More Than 200 Shops Are Affected by Order of Insolvency.

Wilmington, Del., June 21 (A.P.).—A receivership was granted in chancery court Monday for the F. & W. Grand Silver Stores, Inc., which controls more than 200 5-cent to $1 retail shops in the United States and Canada.

The decree was handed down by Chancellor Josiah O. Wolcott, who appointed James P. Winchester, Wilmington banker, as receiver.

At the same time, a petition in involuntary bankruptcy was filed against the company in Federal court by creditors alleging the corporation is insolvent.

In the chancellor's receivership decree it was stated the corporation was solvent in that the fair valuation of its assets exceeded the total amount of its outstanding liabilities, but that it was, nevertheless, insolvent in that it was unable to pay its obligations as they matured in the usual course of business.

The complainants, creditors of upward of $5,200, are Herman Gross, Harry Epstein, Harry Rabinowitz and Jacob Bernstein, all of New York, and copartners, doing business under the name of the Imperial Manufacturing Co. The decree points out that the corporation admits the allegations of the complainants, feeling that the appointment of a receiver will benefit the stockholders.

The bankruptcy petition was filed by the Syndicate Light Co., Inc., Mitchell Brothers, Inc., and the Fine-Star Shoe Co., Inc.

Judge John P. Nields ruled the defense returnable July 2.

Advertising and Buying Urged as Merchant Aids

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—P. A. O'Connell, of Boston, president of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, today told delegates to the convention of the merchandise managers and sales promotion divisions of the association, that more advertising and more careful buying would help to improve merchandising conditions.

"In spite of restricted consumer buying power," he said, "people today are reading the advertisements more than they ever did before."

MARKET COMMENT

Waggaman, Brawner & Co.—A little weakness developed in Tuesday's market, but the volume was so small that its importance is questionable. There is a general attitude of waiting on developments, particularly adjournment of Congress. Bonds were steady and bank stocks quiet, with slightly lower quotations.

Robert C. Jones & Co.—The decline in the general average of all stocks in the last two and one-half years has been about 85 per cent. This is about the greatest deflation in the history of our securities market. In our opinion, the purchaser of sound securities will, with patience, show a very substantial profit.

G. M.-P. Murphy & Co.—Speculative comment is still as pessimistic as ever but there has been a decided change for the better in many worthwhile opinions. The changes have been that calamities which appeared possible a short time ago are to be avoided rather than that business is turning. With any resumption of bullish operations in the stock market, however, the markets are likely to reach the latter conclusion, as they have several times during the bear market.

Westheimer & Co.—Professional character of current transactions in the market is making for irregular outlook concerning price trend. Prospect is for continued narrow movements and small trading volume.

New York Trust Co.—Average price of 103 stocks representing 12 industrial groups decreased 2.84 points during May, 1932. The aggregate decrease of the 103 stocks since December 31, 1931, amounted, at the end of May, to 7.29 points.

The following summary of yesterday's markets abroad are from the regular European service of the Associated Press.

London—Prices on the stock exchange reacted from recent advances. The appreciation of the dollar induced profit-taking in gilt-edged securities and this easiness spread to other sections. Favorable Lausanne and Geneva news caused a recovery later, especially in German bonds. The closing was steady.

Paris—After an irregular opening, prices on the bourse were stimulated by the rise in French rentes. The Young loan which was weak at the opening rose sharply and international issues were better. The market closed firm.

Berlin—Trading on the boerse was quiet and prices were generally weaker.

Yarn Company Reduces Products 10 to 18 Cents

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—Reductions of from 10 to 18 cents a pound on products of the Tubize Chatillon Co. announced this week are the second downward revisions of this company within the past month.

In the latest change the company marked down its 150 denier viscose lustrous and semidull yarns 10 cents a pound and its 150 denier chardonize yarn 18 cents a pound.

ILLINOIS STEEL HEAD TO QUIT LIFE'S WORK

E. J. Buffington Will Retire on July 1, After Service of Half Century.

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—Eugene J. Buffington, veteran steel master and head of the Illinois Steel Corporation, one of the largest subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation, will retire from the active sphere of steel making on July 1.

On that date Buffington will step down as president of the Illinois company and be succeeded by George C. Thorp, now vice president of the company, it was formally announced today by the United States Steel.

Identified with steel and iron manufacture for nearly half a century, Buffington is one of the best known men in the industry. He was not of the group of Carnegie's "young men" who were destined to gain celebrity out of the romantic history attending the amazing expansion in the steel industry in the past three or four decades, but his name for many years meant as much where steel and iron were talked as the names of Gary, Schwab, Corey and all the rest.

At his retirement Buffington will have served 34 years as head of the Illinois company. His first connection with the steel industry was in 1884 as a director and treasurer of the American Wire Rail Co. at Covington, Ky. When that company was acquired in 1898 by the American Steel & Wire Co., he continued with the latter. In the following year he was elected president of the Illinois Steel Co., succeeding the late John W. Gates, and in this post Mr. Buffington continued after Illinois Steel became a part of the United States Steel Corporation.

He will not entirely separate himself from the business with which he was identified so long, since he will continue as a director of the United States Steel Corporation.

Middlewest Utility May Quit Exchange

Stock of Concern Now in Receivership Likely to Leave Board.

Chicago, June 21 (A.P.).—Stock of the Middlewest Utilities Co., gigantic Insull-holding company now in Federal receivership, probably will be taken off stock exchange boards, Judge Walter C. Lindley was told today.

John W. Kearns, attorney for the receivers, said a charge of 50 cents would be made henceforth for the transfer of stock certificates.

"Does that mean the stocks will be relisted from the exchange?" the court asked.

"I think it will," Kearns said.

The court authorized the receivers to pay $858,000 to several Chicago banks on loans for which they held collateral, to discontinue premium payments on twelve policies insuring lives of twelve former officials of the company and permit the policies to lapse. Three others, including one of $750,000 for Martin Insull, the president and younger brother of Samuel, and one of $495,000 for Samuel Insull will be allowed to lapse next year.

Discontinuance of transfer agencies and registrars will save $45,000 annually.

The insurance policies total $2,436,000, their beneficiary being the utilities company. The court authorized that the receivers obtain their cash surrender value.

Construction Contracts Show Gain in 37 States

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—Construction contracts awarded in the 37 States east of the Rockies during the first half of June had a total valuation of $57,813,100, according to the F. W. Dodge Corporation.

This compares with $63,079,100 for the first half of May and $153,073,800 for the comparable period of June, 1931.

Murray to Force Proration of Oil

Oklahoma Governor Takes Charge; Military Law Goes Into Effect.

Oklahoma City, Okla., June 21 (A.P.).—Gov. William H. Murray took Oklahoma's oil proration into his own hands today, extending a military law zone to include storage tanks and pipe lines and creating a proration board of five members.

"Alfalfa Bill," who last summer closed down thousands of oil wells under martial law to bring the price of crude oil up, ordered out 30 national guardsmen today to enforce his new order.

He asserted orders of the State Corporation Commission, normal arbiter of proration, are being violated and that oil was being illegally run at night from leases in the Oklahoma City field.

The guardsmen will be on 24-hour patrol duty under the command of Lieut. Col. Cicero I. Murray, the governor's cousin.

Murray's proration board will hold hearings to fix production allowables, but all orders will be subject to the governor's approval.

The martial law zone as regards wells has been in effect since Murray first called out guardmen last summer, but the shutdown was lifted two months later and only a skeleton detail of troops has been maintained in the Oklahoma City field.

Expenses of the new board, Murray's order stated, will be borne by oil producers on a prorata basis.

U. S. Oil Men Go To Parley in Paris

World Producers Said to Agree on Curbing of Roumania Yield.

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—Charles E. Arnott, president, and Harold F. Sheets, vice president, of the Socony-Vacuum Corporation, were booked to sail on the Ile de France for Paris tonight for a conference of American and European oil producers. It was understood that an agreement to curtail Roumanian production was the chief objective.

Representatives of the Russian oil monopoly, who recently participated in an unsuccesful conference in New York looking to curtailment, were not slated to participate in the Paris parley.

White Truck Firm Gets $1,000,000 U.S. Order

Cleveland, June 21 (A.P.).—The White Motor Co. today announced receipt of an order for 435 six-cylinder trucks, costing more than $1,000,000, from the U. S. Postoffice Department.

The trucks will be assigned to various sections of the country.

Freight Loadings Increase in Week

54,373 More Cars Used, Representing 230,649 Loss Under 1931.

(Associated Press.)

Revenue freight loadings for the week ended June 11 were announced yesterday by the American Railway Association as totaling 501,760 cars.

This was an increase of 54,373 cars above the preceding week, but a reduction of 230,649 cars below the corresponding week in 1931.

Miscellaneous freight totaled 195,549 cars, a decrease of 99,052 cars under the corresponding week last year; merchandise 176,681, decrease 42,035; grain and grain products 24,623, decrease 6,336; coal 66,833, decrease 39,577; forest products 17,074, decrease 13,472; ore 3,141, decrease 24,473; coke 2,647, decrease 2,815; live stock 15,212, decrease 2,889.

Trade Board Split Of Deals Is Booed

Chicago Members Resort to 1-16 Transactions in Minimizing Tax.

Chicago, June 21 (A.P.).—Board of Trade members enforced one of their own rules with boos and hisses today to minimize the cost of the new tax of 5 cents on each $100 deal.

Rules of trading on the board are that the minimum price change shall be ⅛ of a cent a bushel. But traders had used a subterfuge called the "split price," to effect a variation of only 1-16 cent.

But today when the new tax went into effect, many traders booed and hissed those who tried to use the "split price," as close figuring showed a greater cost in taxes. The storm of disapproval soon resulted in disappearance of this feature of trading.

The old tax on trading in grain futures was 1 cent on each $100 involved in the transaction. The new one is 5 cents on the same volume.

With wheat selling at 50 cents a bushel, the tax on a sale of 10,000 bushels would be $2.50. If it were sold at the "split price" of 50 1-16 the tax would still be $2.50 and the traders' margin of profit would be only $2.75 for the transaction.

The first 5,000 bushels at 50 cents would bring $2,500. The second 5,000 at 50⅛ cents, $2,506.25, making $5,006.25, which, subtracting the tax of $2.50 would leave the trader only $3.70.

If the entire lot were sold for 50⅛ cents, the total tax would be $2.55, but this subtracted from $5,012.50, total selling price, would leave the trader $9.95.

Borden Reduces.

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—The Borden Co. today reduced its quarterly dividend, payable September 1 to stockholders of record August 15, to 50 cents a share. The rate paid three months ago was 75 cents.

FEDERAL TAX TAKES EFFECT IN MARKETS

Short Interests Wince as Rates Cut Trading to Record Low.

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—Increased Federal tax rates on all stock sales went into effect today and Wall street's speculative short interest did most of the wincing.

The shorts stand to pay more to the Government as a result of the new revenue act than the stock market's bulls. At the end of May, the New York Stock Exchange showed that the short interest had dwindled to its smallest size since a public record was kept on short selling.

The new tax rates are 100 to 150 per cent higher than the old. They impose a charge of 4 cents a share on the sale of stocks selling at $20 or less, and of 5 cents a share on higher priced stocks. The former rate was 2 cents flat.

Shorts Have Troubles.

But short sellers had something more than a general advance in the rates to puzzle about. In addition to the regular Federal tax on sales of stock, they must pay a tax of 5 cents a share on all stock they borrow for their speculative excursions.

These loans are called from time to time, necessitating delivery of the stock against which a short commitment is made, and the short is obliged either to borrow the stock again, or close out his transaction. If he borrows again, he must meet another tax charge of 5 cents a share. This process can be repeated indefinitely.

Assuming that a speculator went short 100 shares of United States Steel stock, he would be obliged to pay a tax of $5 for the stock he borrows. Every time the stock might be called for delivery, and every subsequent borrowing would mean an additional $5 tax charge. To these costs would be added the regular brokerage commission of $25 and, on top of these costs, the trader would face the additional possibility of paying a premium for the loan of stock to him.

Stock Lending Charges.

Premiums are charges set by the Stock Loan Corporation before it will lend stocks to speculators for the decline. Whenever the short interest becomes crowded, premiums are frequently demanded—ranging in most cases from $12.50 per 100 shares up to more than $50 for a single day's accommodation.

Aside from the added clerical work of familiarizing themselves with the new rates, little difficulty was encountered by brokerage houses in putting the new taxation schedules into effect. There were no indications of short covering today, but it was said in brokerage circles that some buying of this character had occurred in the first half of June. On June 1 the short interest aggregated about 2,000,000 shares, or about one-half its size earlier in the year.

Dividend Is Omitted By American Smelting

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—Directors of the American Smelting & Refining Co. today omitted the quarterly dividends of $1.75 on the 7 per cent preferred stock and $1.50 on the 6 per cent second preferred stock, due at this time.

The company in a statement said that the decision to omit the dividends was deemed advisable in order to conserve the company's strong cash position in view of the prevailing low prices on all metals and consequent reduction in earnings.

The company has no bank loans, it was stated.

Move Is Made to Slash Stock Exchange Fees

New York, June 21.—It is said that a mild agitation has been started for a reduction in stock exchange commission rates and that some brokers are among the proponents of the scheme on the theory that business may be thereby stimulated.

Under the present scale it costs $7.50 to buy or sell 100 shares of sotck selling under $10, and it is argued by some that this is a heavy charge on the shares selling around $1 or $2, which now are particularly numerous.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Tuesday.	Monday.
Number of advances	87	155
Number of declines	227	149
Stocks unchanged	133	116
Total issues traded	447	420

Stocks.

After holding steady in the recent dull trough for three hours, the market slid off in a wave of late selling which clipped 1 to 2 points from the leaders. The omission of the American Smelting dividend gave the bears the break. Outside interest still is lacking.

Bonds.

Irregularity characterized the corporate list, but U. S. Governments and Germans continued the advance. Big Four refunding 6s were an air pocket in the rails, down 25 points from the previous sale.

Curb.

Prices drifted irresolutely until the break came on the big board. Cheseborough was a feature at 74, against 53 on the previous transaction. Oils were steady, but quiet, utilities mixed at fractions up and down, and the industrials neglected.

Wheat.

Pit traders were indignant over the new produce futures tax, and several influential traders withheld bids for hedge sales by recent buyers of new crop wheat. In the resultant thin market prices slid down ¾ to 1⅛ cents net for the day.

Cotton.

Near months started up firmly at the outset, on better Liverpool cables, continued excessive rains over the belt and bearish weevil reports, but sold off late in sympathy with stocks and grain, to close only 3 to 4 points net higher. The New York Cotton Exchange estimated world carryover of American August 1 at 13,250,000 bales, against 9,000,000 last year and a five-year average of 5,000,000 bales.

Railways Discuss Combining Trains

"Doubling Up" Considered as Economy Move in Transportation.

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—A plan to "double up" present services, in order to reduce competition, was discussed informally at a meeting of the advisory committee of the Association of Railway Executives today.

The proposal was one of several which, it was understood, would be placed before leading officials of the transportation industry in an effort to reduce heavy expenses on the steam roads. It was pointed out that some of the Eastern trunk lines, at considerable loss to themselves, continue to compete with limited passenger trains between key cities, although, in many instances, these trains are losing money.

The meeting was held behind closed doors and no formel statement was issued.

The session was attended by a few leading executives, who, it was said, would prepare a detailed program which would later be submitted to the full membership of the association.

Those present included: R. H. Aishton, president of the Association of Railway Executives; J. J. Pelley, president of the New Haven; J. J. Bernet, president of the Chesapeake & Ohio; W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania; Hale Holden, chairman of the executive committee of the Southern Pacific; Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio, and H. W. Scandrett, president of the St. Paul.

Harrison New Member Of Trade Bureau Board

John P. Lynch, local New York Life Insurance Co. representative and newly elected president of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association, has appointed Dan J. Harrison, of the local office of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co., to membership on the board of trustees of the Better Business Bureau for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Mr. Harrison will represent the life underwriters' group on the directorate of the bureau.

MONEY MARKETS

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—Some foreign exchanges steadied against dollars today, although in general the market showed irregular variations at the close.

Japanese yen, on the other hand, sagged to a new low. Scandinavians also eased.

GOLD MOVEMENT.

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—For the second successive day the gold statement of the New York Federal Reserve Bank showed neither exports, imports nor change in earmarked stocks at the local banks today. The bank announced that $21,700 had been received from Mexico on Monday and that a shipment of $78,000 from San Salvador had arrived at San Francisco.

STOCKS AGAIN REACT IN DULLER MARKETS

Losses of One to Two Points Are General; New Tax Adds Discouragement.

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

New York, June 21 (A.P.).—Stocks loafed through most of today's market, but quickened their step in the last hour when the recent deadlock was broken by a definite sag.

Trading picked up moderately on this dip which established numerous net losses of a point or so. But even at its liveliest the market was bull, although some traders found grounds for disappointment in the ease with which prices tapered off when offerings increased. Buying incentive was obviously absent and leading shares apparently had to depend on requirements of professionals, many of whom seemed to be unenthusiastic about the new stock transfer taxes.

Rails again tried to lead the list higher. They were fairly successful during the first hour, but their improvement lacked conviction and omission of American Smelting's preferred dividends found all groups ready for a letdown.

Dullness Increases Gloom.

Prevailing dullness made brokers rather gloomy, although it was pointed out that this would prove a blessing in disguise if it signalled final cessation of important liquidation. Doubtless the short interest has been substantially reduced, thus leaving prices susceptible to even slight increases in selling pressure.

Today's sales totaled 491,988 shares, against yesterday's eight-year low of 388,165. Until the final hour volume was about duplicating Monday's.

Omission of the American Smelting dividends was not unexpected. It did, however, indicate clearly that large corporations can hardly be expected to draw on surpluses to maintain unearned payments at a time when managements are so uncertain as to just what demands may be made on even comfortably filled cash boxes. Smelting 7 per cent preferred broke 8 points.

Same Reasoning Followed.

The same line of reasoning is apparently being followed in the case of numerous other stocks, among them American Telephone. There has been no intimation as to what this company's directors have in mind regarding the dividend. Wall street is looking for a reduction at the August meeting and the stock has been in rather steady supply for several months. Today it reacted below 80 for a net loss of nearly 2 points.

Consolidated Gas, North American, Allied Chemical, American Tobacco B, Santa Fe, Public Service of New Jersey, Union Pacific, Eastman, McKeesport Westinghouse and Standard Oil of New Jersey lost from a major fraction to 1⅜, while American Can, Auburn and Coca Cola were off 2 or more.

Preliminary estimates of steel ingot production mentioned another small decline for the current week.

The weekly condition statement of Federal Reserve member banks in 101 leading cities showed a more liberal credit policy, but also indicated that banks were still staying out of the market for corporate bonds.

Loans on securities increased $30,000,000, and all other, or commercial loans, gained $88,000,000. There was an increase of $261,000,000 in bank investments in United States Government securities, presumably reflecting the June 15 Treasury financing, but holdings of other securities were off $4,000,000.

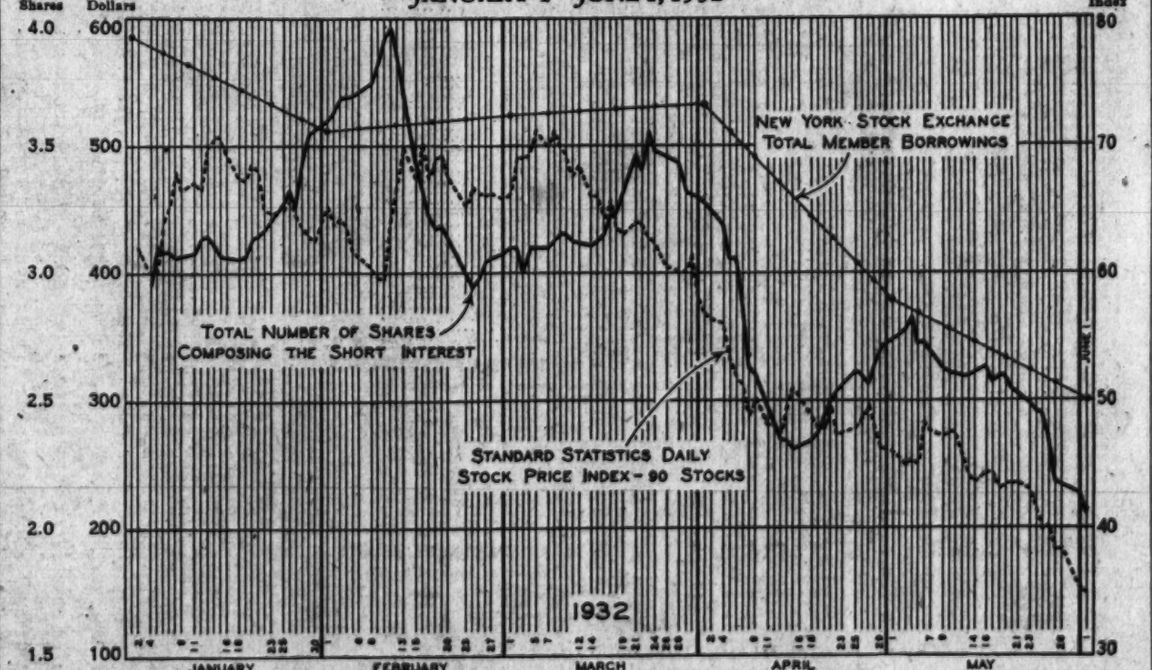
STATISTICS ON SHORT AND LONG INTERESTS, JANUARY 1—JUNE 1, 1932



THE total short interest outstanding on the New York Stock Exchange at the beginning of the present month was 2,060,633 shares, which compares with 3,985,467 shares on February 10, the high point for 1932 to date.

The steadily declining short interest during the last two months signalizes the conviction of the speculative community that the bear market now is dragging on the ultimate bottom.

The above graph traces the movement of the short interest in the market for the first five months of 1932. The solid black line indicates the total short interest open at the beginning of each trading day, and the broken line traces the movement of the Standard Statistics 90-stock price index.

The solid dotted line shows the total brokers' loans as reported every week by the Federal Reserve Board, which is offered by stock exchange statisticians as the only available index of the "long" account which on a given day tends to offset the price influence of the combined short accounts.

The June 1 short interest was the smallest since the stock exchange began compiling such statistics, in May, 1931. Similarly, the June 1 level of brokers' loans was the lowest since February 1, 1926. As of the same date, the stock price index was at the lowest point in the current era of the exchange.

Further interest attaches this chart in the light of the fact that the stock market inquiry of the Senate Banking and currency committee was announced on April 8 and actually got under way on April 11.

The short interest was greatly expanded during March and April when confusion and disorganization in the House of Representatives made it doubtful whether the Congress would balance the Federal budget. Aside from these ventures, however, traders on the short side of the market appear to have grown progressively more cautious as the depression dragged out toward the end of the third year.

As of June 1, 1932, there were 1,320,062,766 shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange, with an aggregate value of $16,141,061,060.

On January 1, 1932, the total number of shares listed was 1,318,729,621 and the total value $26,693,836,532.

Total January 1 values of all listed shares for previous years follow:

1931	$40,019,878,495
1930	64,707,878,131
1929	67,478,138,151
1928	49,736,350,946
1927	38,376,162,138

GRAIN PRICES SLUMP BEFORE TAX MENACE

Split-Trading Annoys Dealers as Volume Drops to Smallest in Years.

Chicago, June 21 (A.P.).—Faced by 400 per cent increase in the tax on trading, grain transactions suffered curtailment at times today to almost zero and prices tumbled in the final dealings.

Split-price trades that called for quotations on ¼ cent a bushel difference of values instead of a minimum of ⅛ cent were booed out of the pit by indignant brokers, who asserted that the new increased taxes had made such trades unprofitable to all concerned.

Wheat closed unstable at the day's bottom figures, ¾ cent to 1¾ cents under yesterday's finish, corn ¾ to ½ cent down, oats ⅜ off, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to an equal gain.

Trade Smallest in Years.

The aggregate of Board of Trade business today was estimated to be the smallest on record in many years. Bullish news in regard to wet harvest conditions in the Southwest and in regard to grasshopper ravages in the Northwest failed outright as a stimulus to buying power, although serving to give relative firmness to values until the final half hour. A little late hedging pressure from newly harvested wheat found the pit virtually bare of purchase orders and bearishly influenced to some extent by a reactionary trend of securities.

Foreign crop news and export developments were a further handicap to friends of higher prices on wheat and other grains as well. Advices at hand indicated that both France and Germany would be self-sustaining the coming year in regard to wheat. The fact that European stocks of wheat at present were believed to be much smaller than a year ago had no apparent market influence, and neither did scantiness of domestic primary receipts, arrivals being only about two-thirds as much as last year.

A report that black rust had been found in wheat fields near Eldorado, Nebr., was practically ignored.

Corn, oats and rye were unsettled within narrow limits and fluctuated erratically on small orders either way. Shipping demand for corn was slow.

Provisions were governed by the action of the hog market.

Beltsville Tourist Cabins Refused

Prince Georges Officials Deny Permits to M. H. Fearnow.

An application for permission to erect six tourist's cabins near Beltsville, Md., was refused yesterday by the Prince Georges County Commissioners, who also rezoned lot 1 in Bradbury Heights from residential to commercial, after two zoning hearings in Marlboro.

The application for the construction of the cabins was made by M. H. Fearnow, of Beltsville. His request had already been disapproved by the park and planning commission, and its rejection by the county commissioners was in line with a precedent they set some time ago when it was announced that no further tourist cabins could be built along the Baltimore Boulevard. The rezoning application was made by George J. Bradbury, who plans to erect a gasoline filling station on the lot.

The commissioners yesterday ordered that Florence J. Healy, charged with arson, be held in the Marlboro Jail after a lunacy commission had asked for more time to study her sanity. Mrs. Healy, a Washington resident, is accused of having set fire to a house in Capitol Heights to prevent other persons from gaining possession of it. She was sent to Gallinger Hospital for mental observation, but returned without any diagnosis being made.

The commissioners have also appointed John A. Downey dog tax collector in Hyattsville.

Electric Line Sues County for Taxes

W. R. & E. Co. Asks Refund of $500 Paid in 1929 in Montgomery.

Claiming that the Prince Georges County Commissioners had assessed the Washington Railway & Electric Co. for taxes on property not liable to taxation, the railway yesterday filed suit for $500 against the commissioners in the county circuit court.

The suit was filed by Attorneys Waldo Burnside and Lansdale G. Sasscer. According to Mr. Burnside, in 1929 the railway was taxed on the real estate in their right-of-way and for the tracks and roadbed on the right-of-way. Taxes were levied on the real estate and the improvements separately.

By ruling of the State Tax Commission, he says, the two should have been lumped and assessed together. This was done from 1930 on, but the railway was unable to get a refund of the extra taxes it paid in previous years. The difference in tax is about $500, but only those collected during 1929 are being sued for, as the statute of limitations has run on the collections before 1929.

FATHER FILES SUIT ACCUSING DAUGHTER

Alleges He Was Persuaded to Deed Home to Her and Then Mistreated.

A modern King Lear yesterday filed in Prince Georges County Circuit Court a petition setting forth the pitiful story of how he was induced to turn over his property to his daughter on her promise that she would take care of him, only to find that she neglected him after the transfer had been made.

The plaintiff is Charles K. Rocker, who states that he is 77 years old and the father of six children. The daughter to whom he assigns the role of Goneril, the grasping daughter, is Carrie I. Crawford. Both the parties to the suit live in Brentwood, Md.

According to Rocker, several years ago he deeded to Mrs. Crawford his house in Brentwood valued at between $5,000 and $6,000 for a "pretended consideration" of $10, which he says was never paid. In addition to this, he borrowed $1,500 which he put into a joint bank account with his daughter, and other sums were added from time to time. In return for this, he says, she agreed to care for him during the rest of his life.

After the ownership of the house had been changed, Rocker's petition says, he was "denied the usual comforts, abused and neglected," so that finally he left his daughter and went to live with a son, whose home is in Brentwood. He also claims that Mrs. Crawford drew out of the joint account $2,000 without his knowledge or consent. This sum, he says, is in a safe deposit box in a bank in Mount Rainier.

Rocker's petition is filed through Attorneys Charles C. Marbury and T. Howard Duckett. He asks that the court enjoin Mrs. Crawford against drawing the balance of the money in the joint account, about $375, or using the money already drawn. He also asks that a temporary receiver be appointed to open the safe deposit box and hold its contents until ordered by the court to dispose of them.

Cottage City Reports $1,287 Surplus in Year

The town of Cottage City, Md., ended its fiscal year with a surplus about $500 larger than at the beginning of the period, according to the financial report of the town, which shows a balance of $733.61 last year, contrasted with $1,287.65 this year.

Receipts during the year were $5,047, and $4,493 was spent for the expenses of the town. It was pointed out that $272 of the present balance belongs to the fire department, being the unexpended receipts of the fire tax. Surveys of the streets of the town are being made, with a view to resurfacing them and installing concrete curbs. Estimates on the cost of the work will be obtained, but a general referendum must be held to pass on the work before bonds can be sold to finance it.

20,000 SEE PAGEANT DEPICTING EVENTS IN LIFE OF WASHINGTON

Sylvan Theater Is Scene of Bicentennial Celebration True to Times.

UNITS OF U. S. SERVICE SEEN IN PRODUCTION

Major Occasions in History of First President Are Shown by Players.

While an audience of 20,000 looked on, George Washington and the men and women of his time lived again last night on the green slopes beneath the Monument that bears his name.

The occasion was the presentation at the Sylvan Theater of the Great American, a George Washington pageant, depicting the salient events in his career, written by Ethel Claire Randall and James K. Knudson, of the play department of the United States Bicentennial Commission. The pageant was offered under the auspices of the District Bicentennial Commission. It was directed by Marie Moore Forrest.

Not only Washington lived again, but the Battles of Monmouth, Yorktown, Valley Forge and the First Continental Congress. Such faithful heed was paid to both costuming and historic fact that it was as if the pages of history had sprung to life and the large audience had been transported from a period of airplanes and loud speakers to the time when the foundation of the country was being laid.

Service Units Take Part.

Cavalry and infantry from Fort Myer and units from the Navy and Marine Corps enacted the parts of colonial and British troops, giving a military precision to the maneuvers that took place on the broad sward of the Sylvan Theater. Capt. H. B. Turner took the part of George Washington. In both figure and horsemanship he made the characterization a realistic one.

Washington was seen first as the surveyor. This was followed by scenes showing the burial of Gen. Braddock and the marriage of Washington. Then was shown Washington as the colonist. He was seen next as the warrior, taking command of the army, at Valley Forge, at the Battle of Monmouth, at Yorktown, and when saying farewell to his officers.

In the third portion of the pageant, the First President was shown as the nation builder—at the Continental Congress when the Constitution was signed; at the first inauguration; at the presidential ball and finally as the planter at Mount Vernon.

Interludes Are Impressive.

Impressive interludes in the story were offered in the form of dances by Marian Chace and Lester Shafer, of the Washington Denishawn group, one representing bondage before the Declaration of Independence and the other liberty.

Success of the entire presentation was due to the coherence with which each one of the several hundred participants did his or her part. Especially vivid were the battle scenes in which the discharge of musketry mingled with the tramp of marching men and the flash of unfurled flags.

The lighting effects in charge of M. C. Turpin added beauty and artistry to the scenes.

Ball Park Venders Exempt From Tax

Internal Revenue Bureau Rules on Newsboys and Others.

(Associated Press.)

Newsboys admitted to baseball or similar parks will not be expected to pay taxes under the new revenue bill. This was ruled yesterday by the Internal Revenue Bureau. In a formal opinion, it said:

"Newsboys who are admitted to baseball or similar parks for the express purpose of selling newspapers to the patrons are not subject to the tax imposed on free admissions."

In such cases, the bureau held, newspaper venders would hold a pass to the grounds issued by the management, thus coming in the category of employes. The same ruling applies to venders of other concessions inside the parks.

Book-Making Raid Nets 25 Prisoners

First Precinct Detectives Seize Two as Owners of F Street Place.

Two detectives of the First Precinct late yesterday staged a spectacular raid on a downtown bookmaking establishment, arrested 25 men and confiscated a quantity of alleged racing sheets.

Detectives Jesse Birch and G. L. Saunders gained entrance to a room on the eighth floor of a building at 1317 F street northwest, where alleged betting on race horses was said to have been in progress. After standing around for some time, the policemen ordered the place closed and arrested those found in the room.

Two men were charged with setting up a gaming table. They were Walter G. Meeley, 30, of 2430 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, and Ashton P. Hughes, 52, of 1705 P street northwest. A bond of $2,000 each was ordered. The others arrested were released as witnesses.

Clerk Tag Privileges Bill Blocked in House

Passage of the Senate bill giving elective officers and disbursing clerks of the Senate and the House all of the privileges that go with congressional automobile tags, was blocked in the House yesterday by Representative Ross A. Collins (Democrat), Mississippi.

The bill came up on the consent calendar, requiring unanimous House assent.

Steel Check for $7,500 Indorsed by Arc Welding

Lieut. Henry A. Schade, of Navy, Joint Winner, Signs His Name.

Most every one, perhaps to their sorrow, has heard of a "rubber check." But Lieut. Henry A. Schade, U. S. N., indorsed one at the Navy Yard yesterday that was guaranteed not to "bounce"—it was made of steel!

It proved no easy matter, however, for Lieut. Schade to place his indorsement on the check, which is his share for a winning essay sponsored by the Lincoln Electric Co., of Cleveland, Ohio. The note, 24 inches long, 10 inches wide and one-eighth of an inch thick, had to be signed by the arc welding process.

Lieut. Schade is joint owner of the check, made out to the amount of $7,500. Lieut. Comdr. Homer N. Wallin, also a winner in the essay contest, based on the subject of "Savings Accomplished by Electric Welding," previously indorsed it at his station on the West Coast.

Donning a heavy pair of gloves, Lieut. Schade "went to work" and affixed his signature. The check weighed 40 pounds, and it took fast work to sign and deliver it to the Union Trust Co. before closing time.

The check is the first award in the contest, which began five years ago. Contestants from ten different countries took part. Written on steel panels, on the Cleveland Trust Co., the checks were sent to the various winners for indorsement and will be returned to the bank of issue.

The checks will be "canceled" by guards of the Cleveland Trust Co. They will be perforated by machine gun bullets.

Winners of the second and third prizes in the contest were Maj. G. M. Barnes, $3,500, and H. M. Tracey, constructural engineer, $1,500, respectively. Fourteen other prizes also were awarded, although payments were not made by the steel-check system. Harry E. Johns, of Keil, Germany, was awarded fourth place, and H. J. L. Bruff, of Harrowgate, England, fifth. The remaining winners were awarded $100 each.

The idea behind the contest was to show the world how the cost of steel construction can be reduced by the arc welding process. The total essays submitted showed conclusive proof that a savings of over $1,000,000,000 can be accomplished. The Navy Department also has been convinced of this fact and is now constructing an aircraft carrier at Newport News substituting welding for riveting.

PRISONER IS CALLED CHASTLETON HOLDUP

Auditor Identifies Friend of Suspect Held in $422 Robbery.

Albert Kimball Johnson, 26, of 818 Seventeenth street northwest, last night was positively identified by William H. Dunn, 34, auditor of the Chastleton Hotel, as the man who robbed that establishment at gun point of $422 last Friday.

The accused man had been held in custody since early Sunday morning. He was arrested at that time at his home by Detective Sergts. C. E. Mansfield and M. J. Mahaney. At the same time Harry Kite, 18, of the same address, was held for investigation. Police said they desired to question Kite about recent housebreakings.

It was learned that Johnson was not originally arrested as a suspect in the Chastelton robbery. He was taken along with Kite for questioning. Monday night he was at headquarters in the regular line-up. Dunn happened to pass the room where prisoners are held at headquarters. The auditor exclaimed to detectives: "That's the man in there that robbed me."

Dunn last night again picked Johnson from a formal line-up at headquarters in which a number of prisoners participated. Johnson denies any connection with the holdup and says he was asleep at home at the time. Detectives are checking his story. No charges have yet been filed against him.

$25,000 Damages Asked Of Capital Traction Line

Janet E. Litchfield, 1821 B street southeast, yesterday filed in the District Supreme Court a suit for $25,000 damages from the Capital Traction Co. because of alleged negligence on the part of a conductor on one of the company's cars.

The conductor, she claimed through Attorneys Herbert P. Leeman and Charles J. Dean, opened the door of the car on which she was riding while the car was midway in the M street block between Seventh and Eighth streets southeast. After she alighted she was struck by an automobile before she could reach the sidewalk. The accident occurred April 13 of this year.

DONOVAN TO URGE TAX RATE OF $1.70

Realty Assessments Are Expected to Gain, Total to Reach $1,230,000,000.

In accordance with the promise of the District Commissioners when transmitting the 1933 municipal budget to Congress some months ago, Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, announced yesterday that he would recommend that the present realty tax rate of $1.70 be retained during the 1933 fiscal year, which begins July 1. The rate also applies to tangible personal property.

The rate is the same that has prevailed for the last several years. The 1933 budget carried a stipulation that the $1.70 rate not be reduced during the new fiscal year.

Tax Assessor William P. Richards estimates that the realty assessment rate base next year will be slightly more than that of this year. The base for the year now drawing to a close was $1,226,948,000, from which $20,853,956 in taxes was collected. The assessments next year are expected to reach approximately $1,230,000,000.

Considerable reductions in the District's revenue from taxation of tangible and intangible property and public utilities are predicted by Mr. Richards for the new year. This year tangible personal property realized $6,866,170, intangible personal property $2,743,000 and public utilities $2,286,000. The greatest drop is anticipated in tangible property returns.

An indication of the troubles of Washington property owners to meet even the present tax rate is seen in the fact that this year some 20,000 pieces of property were advertised for sale, although only $300,000 was realized, as against $800,000 last year.

The number of appeals from property assessments almost doubled this year over the previous fiscal period. There were approximately 750 appeals involving 2,000 pieces of property, while last year there were but 400, according to Mr. Richards.

Burglar Gets $100 From Cafe Till.

More than $100 in bills was taken from the cash register of the Central Visible Lunch Room, 720 Thirteenth street northwest, by a burglar who gained entrance through a rear door, John H. Bacas, treasurer, reported to police yesterday.

City Heads Told Starlings Are Pest on Newton Street

In the summer a Washingtonian's fancy turns again to thoughts of starlings! And they're not nice thoughts, either, as illustrated by a letter received yesterday by the District Commissioners.

"I am writing to you in behalf of the residents of Newton street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets northeast, to ask you if you will take some measure to rid us of the great nuisance from which we are suffering, namely, the starlings," writes Frances Brawner, of 3600 Thirteenth street northeast.

"I am appealing to your board as the highest authority in the District of Columbia, and, as a property owner and taxpayer, I most earnestly request that you do something to relieve us of this really terrible pest."

The Commissioners, recalling their futile efforts of the past few years, filed the letter in the perplexing problem case and noted, in passing, that the starlings appear to have reversed Horace Greeley's advice and gone east.

BEDELL IS ONE OF 3 HELD HERE IN THEFT AT WESTERN UNION

Trio and Fourth Man Will Be Viewed Today by Robbed Jewelry Salesmen.

LEGATION RUM SUSPECT GAVE FICTITIOUS NAME

Two Women Taken at Same Time Due to Be Given Release Shortly.

Three of four mysterious police prisoners, one of whom is William E. Bedell, 35, recently indicted in the Salvadorean Legation liquor robbery, are important suspects in the $300 robbery of the Western Union branch office at 1729 Connecticut avenue on April 8, it was revealed last night. Bedell gave his address as 20 F street northwest.

The quartet, it was admitted by high detective officials last night, will be viewed today by the two New York jewelry salesmen who were robbed at gun point of $22,000 worth of jewelry here some weeks ago.

Those held besides Bedell are Frank C. Courtney, 37, of 7 Logan Circle; Samuel Glasser, 27, of 4712 DeRussey Parkway, Chevy Chase, and Benjamin Kovell, alias Philip Davison, 38, of 1425 Rhode Island avenue northwest. The last named is not being questioned in the telegraph office affair, police said.

Quizzed in Car Theft.

Police also are questioning Kovell and Bedell as to a stolen car said to have been in their possession recently. They were picked from a line-up last night by Robert Beaty, colored, who runs a garage in the rear of 1019 Columbia road northwest.

Beaty said he was employed by the two men he picked out to take a car from the rear of house in the 2400 block of Wyoming avenue about a week ago. Detective Sergt. Frank M. Alligood learned of the car being in Beaty's garage, and this information led to the arrest of the two men.

The quartet last night was lined up before a large group of witnesses to recent crimes. Employes of the East Capitol street and Georgia avenue branches of the Washington Mechanics & Savings Bank were among those present. None could pick any of the men as members of the holdup groups which recently robbed both institutions.

Two Women Also Held.

Bedell at the time of the telegraph office robbery was being sought by police here in connection with the liquor robbery indictment returned late last fall. He was arrested about two weeks ago in Baltimore and after a hearing before United States Commissioner Turnage was released in $2,500 bond for his appearance in court later to face trial.

Bedell was arrested Sunday, but gave his name as Louis Taylor. He was recognized by police who, however, did not record the fact. Two women, Ruth Bedell, 28, and Lillian Taylor, 22, who also gave the F street address, were also arrested, but police expect to release them shortly.

Municipal Center Building Is Urged

"In the interest of employment, economy and absolute need," F. H. Newell, chairman of the committee on unemployment of the Washington Society of Engineers, yesterday urged the immediate construction of the initial unit of the proposed Municipal Center project.

He pleaded that the building which is to house the Police Department, the Juvenile Court, the Police Court and the Traffic Bureau, now in temporary quarters, be built at once, both for greater efficiency and unemployment aid.

"It is highly desirable, it is necessary for economy and efficiency reasons, and it will help relieve unemployment in the District if this building is provided for in the District appropriation bill now in conference in Washington," he said.

MRS. ROGERS URGES NATIONAL BUDGETING TO PROTECT DOLLAR

Addresses National Retail Credit Convention at Mayflower.

DR. KLEIN MAKES PLEA FOR SOUNDER METHODS

Personal Contact Between Managers and Customer Stressed at Session.

A lack of protection of the dollar by the individual is one of the most glaring causes of unstable business, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts, told delegates to the National Retail Credit convention yesterday.

The fact that the United States was enjoying prosperity made its citizens feel that an even greater prosperity was just around the corner, and that budgeting and management of money was useless, Mrs. Rogers told the credit men at their session at the Mayflower Hotel.

She advocated a national budgeting or money management movement in the country. "The thousands of bonus marchers now encamped in Washington give testimony that there is something radically wrong in our economic structure. If these men had jobs they would prefer them to a bonus from the Government," she asserted. Americans will have to protect the dollar by watching the management of the penny, she said.

Sounder Credit Methods.

Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, who addressed the delegates at their first business session, said slipshod credit practices during recent years will have a redeeming feature if sounder credit methods and policies are evolved through the realization of the extravagance in the present and past lack of system.

To strengthen the Nation's retail credit structure, he advocated a careful consideration of the customer.

The buyer's willingness and ability to pay, his sense of pride in ownership and extension of time in payment, he pointed out, were important in gauging the reliability of extending credit to individuals.

Personal Contact Stressed.

W. W. Everett, vice president of Woodward & Lothrop department store, addressed the convention on the advisability of personal contact between credit managers with each customer. The ideal credit manager during the next few years will have to be a diplomat, he said. An elastic code of management which takes into account the case of the individual was necessary to proper business relations, he maintained.

Former Senator Henry J. Allen, representing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, explained the value of cooperation in checking the failure of banks and building loan associations. John D. Reilly, vice president of the Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co., addressed the session.

Luther Reichelderfer, president of the District Board of Commissioners, welcomed the delegates at the opening of the meeting.

Two Are Slightly Hurt In Ambulance-Bus Crash

A private ambulance on its way to Chesapeake Beach on an emergency call collided with a Washington Railway & Electric Co. bus yesterday afternoon at Kentucky and South Carolina avenues southeast. Two women, passengers on the bus, were slightly injured, but refused hospital treatment. Both cars were thrown to the sidewalk by the crash.

Mrs. E. M. Angell, 68, of 601 Raleigh place southeast, and Alice Washington, 45, colored, of 105 G street southwest, suffered minor cuts and bruises. Another ambulance was immediately dispatched to Chesapeake Beach and brought a woman, suffering a heart attack, to a Washington hospital.

Priest and Rescued Puppy Take Gospel on Long Trail

Touring the country to spread the Gospel, the Rev. W. M. Partridge and his dog "Spot" with the Rev. ZeBarney T. Phillips (right), pastor of Epiphany Church.

Father Partridge Tarries Here on Mission to Remote Places.

Some years ago a priest of the Episcopal Church in Boston, Mass., risked his life to save a puppy from burning to death in a blazing automobile. As a consequence, the priest—the Rev. W. M. Partridge—suffered severe burns, but the dog was rescued without injury.

Now these two, Father Partridge and Spot, are traveling through life together. They journey to remote corners of the country to preach the Gospel, which in many cases has never reached those part before.

Father Partridge and his little companion passed through Washington yesterday. They were received by the Rev. ZeBarney T. Phillips, pastor of the Church of the Epiphany.

Covering thousands of miles of territory, Father Partridge travels with no fixed schedule, stopping as often and wherever he finds need of his preaching. There is no missionary fund to cover his expenses and he depends on what may be given him en route to feed himself and Spot.

Leaving here on his "venture of faith," Father Partridge will journey through the South, across Texas and finally into Utah. During the trip he is acting as a representative of the Bishop of Alaska, under whom he served in the gold rush of 1898. He is seeking recruits, a physician and two nurses, to aid Bishop R. T. Rowe in his work at the far Northern post.

BILL ON GAS HOLDER IS SENT TO SENATE

Measure Would Authorize Closing of Virginia Avenue in Southeast Area.

The District Commissioners yesterday sent to the Senate District committee a bill drafted by the Washington Gas Light Co. to authorize the closing of Virginia avenue southeast, adjacent to the gas company's east plant, for the ostensible purpose of providing a site for a gas holder. The measure was offered as a substitute for a pending bill.

The legislation would close all of Virginia avenue between the east line of Thirteenth street, the south line of M street, and the north line of Water street, provided that consent of the property owners along the highway be obtained. The gas company in exchange would transfer to the Federal Government certain properties in squares east of 1025 and south of 1048. Moreover, the United States would retain title to the Federal reservations, which the company would be permitted to use under the exchange. Square 1025 is bounded by Twelfth and Thirteenth streets southeast, Virginia avenue and Water street. Square 1048 is bounded by Virginia avenue and L street, Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets southeast.

This measure, while favored by the Public Utilities Commission, does not affect the immediate status of the controversy over the site for the gas company's holder or holders, Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman, explained yesterday.

The commission still has under consideration the application of the gas company to erect a 10,000,000 cubic feet capacity storage tank on the Murphy tract at Riggs road and the Baltimore & Ohio Railway tracks in the Northeast. Since a public hearing was held on this petition, the utilities body has ordered the gas company to construct a 5,000,000 cubic foot holder before the first of next year. No site has been specified as yet.

During the hearing, at which a dozen citizens associations and several Catholic institutions protested against the location of a holder at the Northeast site, the gas company suggested a compromise plan that it be permitted to erect a 5,000,000-foot holder on the Murphy tract and a tank of similar size adjacent to its east plant, providing Virginia avenue could be closed.

Under the revised measure the gas company would also bear the expense of removing and relocating all surface material, sewer or water pipe lines, and any other public service improvements as directed by the Commissioners.

Taking Wrong Taxicab Lands Woman in Jail

Luck—lots of it, and all bad—followed Hester Smith's decision to hail a cab in Shepherd's court northwest yesterday, for the cab she hailed was occupied by two policemen, and they happened to be looking for her on a larceny charge.

Police Search for Coupe With Explosives Is Futile

Late last night no sign of the reported maroon coupe said to be loaded with explosives and en route here had been found by police of this or other jurisdictions.

Entrances to the city were still being guarded and all cars scrutinized. After dark all two-passenger cars were being stopped and searched, if they in any way resembled the reported machine.

Chief W. H. Moran, of the Secret Service, yesterday indicated he believed the rumor baseless and said it had come from a source in the Treasury Department which after investigation he did not believe to have good information.

Early yesterday a London newspaper called police headquarters here and asked if the report was true that "the White House had been blown up."

FIVE ARE ARRESTED IN 2 LIQUOR RAIDS

Extensive Rum Ring Believed Broken Up in Montgomery County.

Arrest of five persons, two of whom were women, by Montgomery County police in two raids yesterday is believed to have broken up one of the most extensive rum rings in the vicinity of Washington. Records seized by the police indicated that an enormous business was being carried on.

Entering a house in Friendship Heights early yesterday, Sergt. Leroy Rodgers and Policeman Frank Soper, of the Bethesda Substation, and dry agents led by Prohibition Officer George E. Deyoe, arrested two men as they were leaving the house and the others in the house. One woman, who gave her name as Mrs. Ethel Sparrough, 3209 Nineteenth street northwest, was found hiding on the roof of a porch. Others arrested were Mrs. Betty Donnolly, of Friendship Heights; Nathan Cosman, of Baltimore, Md.; John Duffy and James Duffy, both of Chicago, Ill. All were charged with possession of intoxicants with intent to sell and held on $500 bond each by Justice of the Peace Frederick Van Court, of Bethesda. Their trials were set for June 30 at county police court in Rockville.

The police found 20 cases of alleged Canadian ale and beer, 5 gallons of alleged alcohol and 36 bottles of home brew. One of the rooms was equipped as an office with two typewriters, an adding machine, two telephones and records of sales for the last month. Some of the orders, police said, were for as much as 100 cases of beer, ale or whisky.

The police then raided a vacant house in Chevy Chase near Western avenue and seized 38 cases of alleged liquor, mixing vats and other equipment for turning alcohol into the appearance of bonded whisky and a large supply of empty bottles. Twenty-five 5-gallon cans of water were found here, used, police believed, in mixing the drinks as there was no water supply in the house. Police said they believed this house was part of the storage system of the gang.

Later in the afternoon, county police, led by Sergt. Rodgers and Sergt. Roy Bodmer, aided by Policemen Webb Hersperger and Ralph Howard, raided the home of Sam Jackson, colored, near Great Falls and found a 50-gallon still in operation and a 25-gallon diamantled still as well as seven barrels of mash. Jackson was charged with possession of instruments for the manufacture of liquor and possession of liquor and held on bond of $500 for appearance in County Police Court June 30. Police said he had no connection with the alleged ring.

Mrs. Hausner Leaves Capital.

Mrs. Stanislaus Hausner, wife of the Polish aviator, who was rescued in mid-Atlantic after an unsuccessful attempt to fly to Poland, passed through Washington yesterday en route by air to Miami, Fla., to meet her husband when he arrives aboard a tanker tonight.

EFFICIENCY BUREAU DELAYS MAPES BILL DISPOSAL IN SENATE

Action by District Committee Is Postponed Indefinitely.

MORE TIME REQUESTED BY BROWN FOR STUDY

Analysis of Old 60-40 Basis of Federal Relations Is Incomplete.

Senate District committee action on the Mapes $4,000,000 local tax program was postponed indefinitely yesterday following final word from the Bureau of Efficiency that its local tax studies are not completed.

The bureau has finished work on four of the five Mapes bills, but wants more time to consider the old 60-40 basis of Federal-District fiscal relations, abolished under the fifth House measure.

"The question of fiscal relations between the Federal Government and the District of Columbia is so complicated and involved that its further consideration by the bureau, giving careful study to the effect the pending changes in the tax laws will have on this problem, will require at least a month," Herbert D. Brown, director of the bureau, wrote Chairman Arthur Capper of the Senate District committee.

Bingham to Call Parley.

Meantime, Chairman Hiram Bingham, of the Senate District appropriations subcommittee, planned to call House and Senate conferees on District supplies as soon as the economy conference report is disposed of by the Senate.

Despite the House resolution abolishing the basis of Federal contribution to District needs, he expects to hold out for the $8,550,000 lump sum proposed by his Senate subcommittee, as opposed to the $6,500,000 voted by the House.

The Mapes bills pending in the Senate tie into the problem of District appropriations by swelling the total revenues available for District expenses.

Former Report Quoted.

In his letter to Senator Capper, Director Brown called attention to a bureau report made to the Mapes committee. This held the Federal Government should contribute as an ordinary taxpayer and for liability due to the fact that Washington is the Nation's capital; and second, because of the District's loss of revenue from Federal property exemptions and from excess cost of park development and maintenance. Mr. Brown said:

"The bureau's study will require careful consideration of the extent to which the adoption of the proposed laws taxing inheritance and incomes and increasing the taxes on motor vehicles and public utilities, will change the general tax base in the District, and thus affect the fairness of the plan recommended to the select House committee for determining each year the contribution of the Federal Government."
